SKELETONS RATTLING.

McLean's Son Locks the Closet Door.

Restrains the Publication of Rare Secrets of Politics and Diplomacy.

Three Great Embassies in the City of Washington Said to be Affected.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 15.—Edward Beale McLean, only son and heir of John R. McLean, millionaire publisher, sprang another sensational chapter in his legal fight to break his father's will when he sought in the courts here today an injunction to restrain Francis T. Homer of Baltimore, a friend of the elder McLean, from publishing private correspondence of John R. McLean by delivering to him the papers of the McLean estate.

A temporary injunction was granted and Mr. Homer will hold the papers until the case is heard July 21. Sensational episodes in diplomacy, politics and society are chronicled in the letters and it is asserted by persons who know something of their contents that their publication would cause injury to men and women of prominence.

DISCLOSURES.

Disclosures concerning three foreign embassies are understood to be contained in the correspondence and papers and it was declared today that one ambassador would be recalled instantly by his government if certain of the papers obtained publicity.

Letters from women of prominence are said to be among the several thousand, which young McLean is seeking to recover. Two women, one a millionairess, and the other of national prominence, proposed marriage to John R. McLean, according to those in a position to know, and their letters were not destroyed.

"A gold mine of unwritten American history," was the way the McLean correspondence was described. John R. McLean led an active life. He had hundreds of acquaintances among people of importance and his family connections were of the most prominent socially. Stories of political deals, mainly involving persons in New York, New Jersey and Ohio, extending back to the days when Mr. McLean was prominent, counted in the letters. Many of those who knew the late publisher were associated with him in a social way, but were persons of importance who were deeply interested in the moves that go on beneath the surface of every political capital. The family connections of Mr. McLean were very prominent.

His sister, whose first husband was Gen. Hazen, the chief signal officer of the United States Army, is the wife of Admiral George Dewey, whom she married shortly after his triumphant return to the United States from Manila.

Another sister, who died recently, was the wife of Rear-Admiral Nicoll Ludlow, of the navy. When she

THE GREAT WAR. The Situation to Date: The British advance in France.

British occupy Trones wood.

COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

In Galicia, near Delatyn, Vienna claims the repulse of Russian vanguards which attempted to enter the town, as well as the failure of an attack against the Austrians southwest of the town. Petrograd also reports successful fighting at other points along the line principally in the region of Mush. The troops have taken strong Austrian positions at the head of the Posina Valley and stopped violent attempts to recapture them. On the sea there have been additional successes for the central powers. A German submarine, a Berlin statement says, has destroyed a British auxiliary cruiser of about 7000 tons, in the North Sea. Off the English coast, German submarines have sunk three British patrol boats. An Austrian submarine has sunk an Italian destroyer.

All accounts agree that the Mexican situation is deadlocked. It is said that the Wilson administration is about ready to turn the whole imbroigio over to an international commission.

The Great War.

MAY FORCE THE RETREAT OF WESTERN GERMANS.

Kaiser's Forces Reported to be in the Gravest Peril Since War Began.

BY ARTHUR S. DRAPER.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, July 16.—Additional and highly important successes have been achieved by the British within the second German line, according to a message from Paris tonight. The official communication of the War Office, issued at midnight, indicates that the British have advanced their positions four miles. They have captured the entire Bellville wood and have repulsed stiff counter-attacks by the Germans.

The British are now at the third line of German trenches.

LONDON, July 15.—Haig's troops battering at the third German line in Picardy are forcing a breach through which Bapaume can be won.

Today's stubborn fighting won for the British High Wood and Delville Wood north of the Bazentin-Longueval line carried yesterday. Thus Pozieres and Martinpuich—and through them Bapaume—are seriously menaced.

The Germans are offering the stiffest resistance, but they are no longer fighting in front of their second defenses, the line on which they relied to stem the British advance.

In this new drive, Haig's men have now advanced more than four miles. The energy with which the offensive is going on is indicated by the ground gained and in the number of prisoners. Within the last day 2000 were taken, bringing the total to 10,000.

LONDON STIRRED.

London has been stirred more by the second British assault than by any previous success. Even those in a high position, who were inclined at the beginning to be somewhat pessimistic about the advance, have now given themselves up to the highest hope.

Unofficially the statement is made that yesterday's fighting was the most intense of the whole war. It has resulted not merely in a British threat—and a threat that grows hourly—but menaces seriously Pozieres and Peronne, with the prospect of compelling the Germans to retreat precipitately.

GERMANY'S PERIL.

That Germany is now placed in the greatest jeopardy since the beginning of the war is the opinion of the officers who hold the highest stations and are known for their coolness of decision.

The ring of fire is being forged stronger daily. The tremendous pressure on the Teutons in the west shows no sign of relenting. On the eastern front the Germans are preparing to make a desperate effort to prevent further Russian advance near Kovel.

According to one report, seven army corps (140,000 men) have been rushed to this sector of the Russian front. With the offensive on the west they could hardly have been spared. The Austrians, too, are hard pressed, and rumors of a separate peace again are filling the air. And the Bulgarians refuse to leave Serbia with a scant garrison.

IN THE CAUCASUS.

As for the Turks, Grand Duke Nicholas is resuming the heavy push in the Caucasus. All signs point to a rapid and energetic advance on the Euphrates. The capture of the great Turkish military depot at Erzingan is expected in a few days.

Thus the Teutonic allies are each busy on his own front. None can aid the other materially and the scanty reserves left at the Kaiser's command are hardly enough to bulwark the defenses weakened by the enemy's repeated blows.

The operations on all allied fronts are going on according to a joint plan. But London is absorbed in the battle in the west, which grows fiercer daily and brings more promise daily. While the French remain comparatively inactive—they have fulfilled their share in the first phase of the offensive—the British push steadily on.

Berlin claimed this morning that the tide has been stemmed, but admitted that the fighting was continuing and that Trones Wood had been lost. The British losses were described as "most severe." Gen. Haig tonight reports that heavy counter-attacks were repulsed. The German losses, London believes, were as severe, if not heavier, than the British.

Asquith announced three days ago that the offensive had only begun. Each day brings new significance to these words. The question of munitions has been settled by a joint conference. Each day knits the allies closer and makes the "battle of Europe" a vast allied offensive, almost perfectly co-ordinated.

GERMANS AND RUSSIANS IN DESPERATE BATTLE.

Three Charges are Repulsed by Slavs When Kaiser's Men Make a Tremendous Attempt to Break Their Lines at Baranovichi—Ground is Covered with Bodies of the Fighters of Both Sides.

BY ARTHUR S. DRAPER.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, July 15.—With the obvious intention of relieving the powerful pressure exerted by the Russians on their lines in the Stokhod sector, the Germans today hurled themselves in great force against the Czar's positions near Baranovichi. The village of Skrobowa, the whirlpool around which the Teuton waves ebbed and flowed, was battered and pounded into a mass of smoking ruins, strewn thick with the almost shapeless forms of the Germans and Russians alike who fell in the desperate fighting that began at dawn and diminished in violence only when darkness made operations impossible.

Three times, in massed formation, under cover of almost unprecedented artillery fire from guns of all caliber the German armies advanced to the attack. Three times, caught under the sweeping fire of Russian machine guns and rifles, they were rolled back from the ruins of the village, leaving mounds of dead and wounded in their wake. All the assaults were made from the same direction, but at three diverging angles.

MANY MADE PRISONERS.

At times in the furious charges the Germans were able to break through the first Russian defenses, but in hand-to-hand encounters they were beaten back or swept behind the Russian vanguards and made prisoners. South and north of Skrobowa and east of Goroditche the Germans sacrificed their men by the hundreds. They lost part of the territory they had previously held when a fierce Russian counter-attack, following swiftly on the heels of the third German onslaught, swept far out beyond the outskirts of the villages and was not repelled until the Russians had enveloped and consolidated a wide stretch of new ground.

According to the German official statement issue tonight, these attacks won for Prince Leopold's forces "parts of positions on the first line of defense which had been held by the enemy since his first attack on July 3," Berlin also announced that more than 1500 Russians were made prisoners in the day's fighting.

IN GALICIA.

In Galicia the Russian vanguards have pushed on to the gates of Delatyn. Today they made strong attacks against the Austrian forces southeast of the town and swept into it at several points. Vienna reports the complete repulse of these attacks, but it is freely admitted that the city cannot hold out if the Russians put their full strength into an effort to capture it. On the northern line, both sides were active during the day, the Germans repulsing assaults northeast of Friedrichstadt and the Russians breaking up German attempts to extend their lines southeast of Riga.

ORPET IS ACQUITTED BY WAUKEGAN JURY.

Mother of the University Student Takes the Verdict as a Matter of Course and Routine—A "Friend of Humanity" in the Courtroom Greets the Judgment with a "Soblike Shriek."

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WAUKEGAN (Ill.) July 15.—William Orpet, the university student charged with murdering Marion Lambert, a high school girl and his former sweetheart, was found not guilty tonight by a jury in Judge Donnelly's court after five hours' deliberation.

The jury retired at 2:50 o'clock. At 6 o'clock its members were taken to dinner at a boarding-house where they spent half an hour.

One hour later came the flash that a verdict had been reached. Probably fifty persons were still waiting for it. Orpet, who had taken his evening meal, was sent for in his cell. Judge Donnelly, a cripple, who had been seated in a chair on the Courthouse lawn chatting with the lawyers, made his way painfully upstairs on a crutch.

The defendant as usual was seated between his mother and Mrs. Edwin Taylor, his landlady at Madison, when the jury filed in.

"FRIEND OF HUMANITY."

Only one sound broke the stillness, which lasted for a few seconds after the verdict was received. It came from a woman about 50 years old, dressed in black, who had attended every session of the court. She made an inarticulate sound—something between a sob and a shriek. She had never explained her interest in the case except to say that she was "a friend of humanity."

Orpet was silent through excess of emotion. He was barely able to return the handclasps of his attorneys. He accepted the hand of a reporter, but muttered a scarcely perceptible "Please don't."

He made his way to the jurors and shook their hands one by one, smiling wanly, but saying nothing.

Mrs. Orpet did not lose her self-possession for a second. She received the verdict as if it were a mere matter of routine. She noted that a photographer was trying to snap a picture of her son and herself and warned him, meanwhile shielding her own face with a newspaper.

James H. Wilkerson, chief of counsel for the defense, was unable to keep back the tears and they trickled from his eyes while he, with his associates, Ralph F. Potter and Leslie P. Hanna, were receiving congratulations.

Mr. Wilkerson stated that in his opinion Orpet had been more than declared not guilty.

"He was proved innocent," said Mr. Wilkerson. "He is going home with his mother now. Then he is going into the country for a much-needed rest after the nerve-racking experience brought on him by a remarkable, if not unprecedented, series of circumstances. Then he will come back home and make a man of himself."

The defendant, his father and mother, his brother, Mrs. Taylor and intimate friends made their way into the witness room, where their privacy was safeguarded by a bailiff.

Half an hour later they emerged. "We'll go home now, William," said Mrs. Orpet, and they made their way down the back stairs and to the jail.

Orpet's few belongings which he had in his cell were already packed.

SELF-POSSESSION.

He had recovered his self-possession by this time and thanked Sheriff Griffin for making his four months' stay in jail as comfortable as possible.

The important events of the trial all occurred on the 15th.

The selection of the jury began May 15; the taking of testimony was begun June 15 and acquittal, July 15.

Three ballots were taken by the jury. The first two stood 11 to 1 for acquittal. Foreman O'Shea stated that by agreement of the jurors the name of the obdurate member would not be made public.

The usual Saturday night throng of farmers and their families in for the week-end shopping and recreation was present in extra force and crowded the route which Orpet took after leaving the jail.

He went first to the office of Leslie P. Hanna, his local attorney, accompanied by those who had been in the witness room with him. Mr. Hanna's office is over a drug store. As the Orpet party passed they could see through the store window Attorney David R. Joslyn, who made the closing speech for the State, at the soda fountain with Frank Lambert, father of Marion, in deep conversation.

The Orpets had started for the interurban train when intercepted and taken to the law office. Mr. Hanna sent for his automobile, however, and it was from this that Orpet had his first full breath of freedom after four months' incarceration. The party was taken to the Orpet home on the McCormick estate.

LONGSHOREMEN VOTE TO RETURN TO WORK.

MEXICAN SITUATION DEVELOPS A DEADLOCK

Hostilities have Ceased, but Preparations for War are Going On.

BY HARRY CARR.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL PASO, July 15.—The Mexican excitement has come to a dead stop. Hostilities have ceased but military preparations are going right along on both sides of the border.

Two nations are waiting to see if Carranza can hang onto his job. If he cannot, all the international commissions in the world cannot avert war. At the present minute the armies of both countries are standing back to see what Carranza can do in the hanging on line when he tries hard.

The situation in Mexico may be summarized as follows:

The people of Mexico are starving. There is no money. All the sources of revenue have been driven out at the point of the bayonet. About the only real industry of Mexico is fighting. The peons become soldiers because they have no means of making a living except by looting. Even this industry has about petered out; every one has been looted to the limit.

One of the compelling causes of discord in Mexico that will continue to breed revolutions is the vast quantity of repudiated currency.

When Villa came into power he issued money of his own and executed any one who attempted to circulate money of any previous vintage. The recognition of Carranza by the United States threw all the Villa money into the discard.

Thousands of Mexican peons have bales of this Villa money hoarded up. You can buy it in El Paso at the rate of $30 for 15 cents. Should Villa return this money would become effective again. The peons are not entirely sentimental in their eagerness to have Pancho return to power.

Carranza's one hope of restoring livable conditions in Mexco is to induce the return of foreign capital. The only hope of inducing the return of foreign capital is to restore peace.

The prospects of his restoring peace look rather slim at the present time. The most conspicuous obstacle on the horizon is Pancho Villa.

No matter how his campaign in Chihuahua pans out, Villa will be a menace to the peace of Mexico as long as he is alive. The peons adore him and the border people remember with a regretful sigh the days of his rule. Graft was mighty good on both sides of the border while Pancho was in the saddle.

His campaign at the present time is about like a lighted match. It is likely to spread into a mighty conflagration, or some one is likely to blow it out.

That it has not been more easily blown out indicates a more dangerous state of affairs in Chihuahua. Either Carranza is woefully lacking in military force, or else he is afraid to trust his army's loyalty in a campaign against the peon Napoleon.

CARRANZA'S STATUS.

Even if he crushes Villa, the reign of Carranza is not a safe bet. There are half a dozen other men in Mexico stronger than Carranza who are known to bitterly resent his attitude toward the United States.

Gringo hating has become a cult in Mexico. The chances are very good that Carranza will be caught in the flame of this hatred and swept aside in favor of some stronger character.

Among the dangerous men of Mexico are Obregon, the military chief of the Carranza administration, Trevino and Calles.

Obregon is regarded along the border as the real chief of Mexico and as the probable successor of Carranza. Obregon, although not a peon, is a man of common origin. Trevino, is a Mexican aristocrat who despises all the rest of them and seems to cherish ambitions. Calles is practically an independent ruler in Sonora. Carranza is obviously suspicious of Calles and is now trying to strip him of power in favor of De la Huerta, the civil Governor of Sonora.

In the face of this storm of political complications, it is obvious that Carranza's tenure will depend really upon the support and the money loaned him by the United States.

WILSON FOR CARRANZA.

As nearly as any one can fathom the policies of the Wilson administration, the President intends to support Carranza even at the cost of our own prestige.

Although Washington has sought to make it appear that Carranza has knuckled down to the United States, the painful fact is that it is the United States that has knuckled down to Carranza.

The Pershing expedition was ordered to move no troops in any direction except northward. In defiance of that ultimatum Capt. Boyd attempted to move eastward at Carrizal and our troops got an unmerciful licking. Since then Gen. Pershing has moved troops in no direction except northward.

The release of the Carrizal prisoners was an event of no importance. If anything, it was an additional humiliation for the United States.

If Pershing comes back from Mexico it will lend no significance to any phase of the situation. Gen. Pershing has already yielded to every demand of the Carranza administration. If he comes out it will only be as a military measure to restore his wrecked cavalry horses.

The international commission has one function, which is to save the

RELATIVES OF BANDIT TAKEN BY AMERICANS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 15.—First official information about an expedition of American civilians into Mexico by automobile in pursuit of the bandit, Valenzueta, who murdered William Parker and his bride near Hachita, N. M., June 27, reached the War Department tonight in a message from Gen. Pershing. Valenzueta had escaped to the mountains, but the pursuers captured his wife and uncle and brought them back across the American border.

Gen. Pershing did not say what disposition had been made of the prisoners. His dispatch follows:

"Have ascertained definitely that about twenty Americans, accompanied by three Mexicans, entered Mexico in the vicinity of Hachita, in pursuit of Andres Valenzueta and wife, who murdered Mr. and Mrs. Parker near Hachita about June 27. Americans traveled in automobiles reaching San Pedro ranch about ten miles from Ogitas July 5. Valenzueta had fled, but his wife and uncle were made prisoners and taken back to the American side of the border. No one was badly treated or molested and only the wife and uncle made prisoners. Names of Americans not known, but have names of several men suspected.

VILLA SEEN IN MAPIMI BUT A FEW WEEKS AGO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EAGLE PASS (Tex.) July 15.—Francisco Villa was seen in Mapimi, State of Durango, Mex., on June 26, according to advices received here today. Mapimi was occupied by the Villa forces without resistance, the information stated, as well as the town of Bermejillo. The same source of information told of an engagement between Villa followers and de facto troops at Parral, saying the Villistas entered the town with cries of "Viva Felix Diaz."

On July 10, this report continued, Villa forces were attacking the city of Durango and at that time had hopes of victory before another three days.

Another attack on Torreon was expected at any time. This report stated that de facto government troops under Gen. Canuto Reyes, a former bandit, who was sent to Parral on July 7, had defected to Villa.

Famine conditions around Torreon were reported as never so bad. The people are subsisting, according to this information, on mesquite beans and prickly pear.

COLUMBUS (N. M.) July 15.—Following reports that Mexican smugglers have been taking stock south across the border west of Columbus, a cavalry patrol and a detachment of customs riders were sent from here tonight in an effort to capture the band. One report had it that the Mexicans are affiliated with the band said to have been operating south of the San Simon Valley along the Arizona-New Mexico line, but military authorities expressed belief that the reports are based on the depredations of a few ordinary thieves.

TEUTONS NOW ISOLATED; AUSTRIANS ARE RUINED.

Wilhelm Second's Diplomacy Contrasted with Bismarck's Policy.

BY WINSTON CHURCHILL,
Former First Lord of the Admiralty.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, July 15.—To dwell for many years under the suspense of a great decision, some irrevocable step to be taken or refused, some choice the consequence of which must affect one's whole life for good or ill, is by no means a common experience. The mind returns to a crucial point again and again. The ordinary affairs take their course all around the day's work done; its interests, pleasures, vexations flow on. But there in the background lies the dominating thought gathering force and intensity, consciously or subconsciously loosening one by one its restraining bonds until it is ready to leap across the gulf from thought to action. Still it remains inert. Something has yet to happen. Have you ever seen a great ship launched?

FINISH OF GREAT TASK.

The labors of thousands of men for many months are finished. One by one all blocks and shores have been struck away. The ways are greased and the paths cleared. Still the mighty mass lies on the slips motionless, seemingly immovable. A delicate hand takes a chisel and cuts a single strand of cord, and from that instant the deed is done. Nothing can recall it. All the science of the world, all the strength of man cannot arrest the almost imperceptible movement that has begun. Suppose a mistake had been made, some terrible miscalculation—it is too late. Whether to reach blue water or crash in destroying ruin depends on the way the ship is launched.

People have lived for years and years on the verge of suicide or murder or madness and die sane, innocent and honored. The terrible "it" has remained undone. The crouching tiger, though, has never made its spring, nay more, has withered with age and new conditions. Competing interests have arisen in the mind, new fields of consciousness are lighted up. There is a different world. All was ready; weapons lay to hand. Reason had talked itself to a standstill. Nothing stood in the way yet nothing happened. Or, on the contrary, the self-accusing figure flings open the door, mouthing the familiar words, "You all drove me to it."

GUILT OF THE KAISER.

"In God's name," we cry, "what have you done?"

In assigning supreme guilt to William II it is not necessary to impute conscious or deliberate intention, nourished over many years, to bring about at a given time circumstances which led to the general war. Forces were at work, gaining slowly in influence, far more profound than could issue from the will of a single ruler. But, at any rate he took, as the occasions came along, every step intended to create a deadly situation—rarely one step that would prevent it. He embodied and encouraged the system of military thought and organization, which made Prussia so terrible to her neighbors. His was the hand that plied the goad into the race of armaments. His was the voice that pronounced the fateful blunder of Germany's diplomacy, and in that climax his was the gesture, whether of malice or hysteria, that cast the nations into the general war. He knew that the French republic and pacific Russia were unready and none know better how earnestly and loyally Britain would have striven at his side—as she had done during the Balkan war—to ward off and tide over by any means the decided event.

There never was a state as ill content with prosperity as Germany before the war. Her strength gigantic, her energies carried her forward along every path of material progress at a pace without an equal in history. Wealth, power, continued to flow in upon the German people on every side. They dwelt in honor and security. The fears of their enemies and the envy or admiration of the rest of the world alike proclaimed their glory and at the pinnacle in a sunblaze of fame sat the favorite of fortune into whose lap all earthly advantages had been poured, unsatisfied and fretful, still hungry—the true representative of the people he ruled, the custodian of the hideous evils about to be released.

UNION OF GERMANY.

The union of Germany's people, their rise to a supreme position in Europe was viewed with general good will. With all its dark features, in spite of its plotted wars and harsh subjugations, Bismarck's life work had received assent and, on the whole, the approval of Europe. In England and Russia, particularly where the Napoleonic scars were plainly visible to the national consciousness, the accession of the masculine genius of Germany to a first place was viewed with undoubted satisfaction. France, beaten and isolated, Austria reconciled, Russia a friend, Britain independent and a supporter, Italy an ally—these were the conditions which Bismarck had in the main established. Germany isolated, Austria ruined, France, Italy, Russia and England sworn in a solemn league of war, even distant Japan made a foe—these are the results which the policy of his successor has achieved.

There was a Cabinet meeting on a Friday afternoon in 1914 which was occupied almost entirely with the Irish crisis. For two hours the discussion played actively and anxiously around the vital question as to what parts of the counties of Monaghan and Tyrone could be provisionally excluded from the ambit of the home rule. Never was partisanship outside more fierce. Never were the outstanding points of difference more petty, never was the deadlock more complete. Then, before we hurried to the House for the expected series of divisions, the quiet voice of the Foreign Secretary was heard reading the terms of the Austrian ultimatum to Servia.

The intention of these rasping sentences was unmistakable; but would Servia submit to terms more humiliating than any ever imposed upon an independent state? On Saturday Servia submitted. On Sunday it appeared that even this was not acceptable to his Austrian Majesty. During that day a wave of fear and excitement swept across Europe.

That night first measures of British naval precautions were taken and declared. Still, unless war had been irrevocably willed by Germany, which we could not then know, there seemed many bulwarks between Europe and disaster. Reason recoiled with indignation from the chain of consequences which threatened, in the name of the Balkan quarrel, to hurl into mortal conflict against each other the mightiest states of history and to condemn the leading races of mankind to miseries and butcheries beyond all measures.

BELIEVED IN REMEDY.

To those who had believed in Germany, which for more than forty years had waged no war, it was inconceivable that there should be no remedy, no break in this monstrous concatenation, and that one thing should lead to another in a senseless way till all were dragged into the abyss. Others who had been forced to watch more closely the military and naval aspects were oppressed by a sense of deliberate German purpose, of cold decisions taken months, even years, before, or preparations long maturing, of a terrible design. But, still, the Agadir crisis had passed away, safely surmounted. And then on top of all this momentous uncertainty came the special problems of Great Britain. We were free from all legal or formal engagements. One hundred and sixty thousand British soldiers was the most that, even if we sided with her, France ever asked for or expected. All our military and naval discussions with the French staffs had proceeded on the avowed and accepted basis that the British nation must be free to choose its own course when the moment came. Still, the French counted on us. They believed that not for war or revanche but in resistance to naked aggression they could count on us. They had made their military, even more their naval dispositions, in that hope—not, thank God, unfounded.

And what would be our position, anyhow, if they went down in the struggle and we were left to face a Germanized continent? And is it not in any case the ancient duty and special mission of this island, however, to prevent the military domination of Europe by any single state? Has not that always been our task? Do we not here subserve some cause in the vast economy of the universe? Still, by cool temper, by good faithful intention, by earnest assiduity not unbacked by some force, peace might be preserved.

POLICY OF GREY.

The following policy of Sir Edward Grey in the momentous hours which followed—for every hour might have counted—every hour will be brought under the scrutiny of posterity—was simply not to encourage France and Russia into an ambitious course by any assurance we should take their side, not to let Germany suppose that we were afraid or unable to fight her, to try somewhere, somehow, to get both sides to parley around a table. To this must be added the Admiralty policy—"Ready." And had there not been a deliberate, overriding intention to make war on the part of Germany, in which intention Emperor William had consciously and resolutely given his support, Sir Edward Grey would unquestionably have succeeded. But against the ram of stubborn purpose nothing could avail. It has often been asked whether Britain could have prevented war at this stage by an immediate declaration that she stood by France and Russia. It was not possible in the state of public or parliamentary or Cabinet opinion which then existed to make such declaration without tearing the nation in half. But had it been possible, would it have succeeded? The answer, according to all we know today, is a certainty that it would not. We cannot now tell at what precise moment the Emperor's decision to make war was taken. Whether it was weeks, or months, or if before the event is not yet provable. Perhaps it was after Agadir. Perhaps it was when the Balkan states defeated Turkey. Perhaps it was when the $50,000,000 capital tax in Germany was decreed. Perhaps it was not taken until after the murder of the archduke at Sarajevo. The preparations, however elaborate, however prolonged, however extensive, were not necessarily malignant.

The rather dubious maxim, "Si vis pacem," etc., can always be invoked. But at some point in this system of world-wide, lifelong preparation came the decision to pull the trigger. We can be sure, almost sure, the point had already been passed in the last week of July, 1914, and that the will that decreed the terms of the Serbian ultimatum had already resolved to launch the armies. A strange week to live. A week of passionate argument and grave action. A week lived in a world of small compass but of immense importance. A week lived on one side of the Horse Guards parade among only a few walking faces in tumultuous anxiety, and on the other in a vast, smooth organization, working with exact precision and behind only the vague impressions of wondering, inquiring eyes and ever growing turmoil or discordant councils, heard or half heard, as an unnoticed accompaniment.

THE UNCERTAINTY.

Each hour dispatches flowed in and the uncertainty as to war grew stronger, the struggle of honest opinion in the Cabinet became more intense, and one after another Sir Edward Grey plied his efforts for peace, and one after another the levers that bring the navy into full preparedness were pulled hard over until at last, diplomacy exhausted, the Cabinet was stunned into agreement by the Belgian crime and, the fleet ready, the door of the council room opened and those views which had in the end prevailed and had been carried by the march of events came out into the open air. War was resolved on. How to explain it to the country, to Parliament, to the empire? How to convince the millions who in this free land are the final arbiters? How to convince the distant dominions and the great dependencies? Not that we doubted the result. The instinct of the British empire is unerring. But the facts and arguments were so fearful, so immediate that the task seemed formidable in the extreme. But it was all unneeded.

The same process of conversion and conviction that had convulsed the Cabinet for a week had been simultaneously accomplished in each individual, true, beating heart. Already in every quarter of the globe the British race and all who share their fortunes and inheritance had sprung to arms. Then began what, with all disappointments and disillusions, with all mismanagement and shortcomings, long drab periods of toil and suffering, stabbing flashes of intolerable pain, shall yet prove to be the most glorious as it is the most dear-bought page in the history of our race and island.

BRITISH APPEAL THE MANILA FINE.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE.]

MANILA, July 15.—The agents of the British steamer Chinese Prince have suspended filing a bond pending advices from London. Meanwhile the vessel has not cleared. It is reported that an appeal has been made to the British government to take up the matter at Washington.

An earlier dispatch from Manila said that the Chinese Prince expected to clear on Saturday for Vladivostok after being held in the Philippine port since July 11, when she was seized upon the discovery that packages consigned to the Bank of the Philippines on order together with other packages addressed to dealers in Manila were missing.

These packages had been confiscated by the British authorities at Penang, because it was reported some of the consignees had been blacklisted by the British. The collector of customs at Manila imposed a fine of 1,000,000 pesos on the ship and this was later reduced to 50,000 pesos.

COMPLETELY CRUSH TURKS AT MECCA.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 15.—The revolt against Turkish rule in Arabia is making progress, having resulted in the complete wiping out of all traces of Turkish resistance at Mecca, according to a Reuter dispatch from Cairo today.

After the fall of Mecca on June 13, says the dispatch, certain elements of the garrison continued their resistance in forts near the city. In order to avoid bloodshed, the grand sherif, in command of the Arabian forces, suspended attacks. The forts have now surrendered, according to today's advices, the captures of the Arabians including twenty-eight officers, 950 unwounded men, 150 wounded, four guns and large quantities of material and munitions.

Since the proclamation of Arabian independence the total captures from the Turks include ten field guns, ten mountain guns, fifteen machine guns, 100 officers, 2500 soldiers and 150 civil functionaries.

LAURENCE GINNELL HELD IN LONDON.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 15.—Laurence Ginnell, Irish member of Parliament, who addressed many questions in the House of Commons to ministers during the Irish rebellion and invariably alleged that his countrymen who had been arrested were mistreated, was himself arrested this morning. Mr. Ginnell was arraigned in the Bow-street Police Court and Prosecutor Bodkin, in outlining the case against him, said he had been found at the detention camp at Knutsford asking permission under the name of McFingle to see Irish prisoners.

Mr. Ginnell protested that the name McFingle was Irish for Ginnell. He was released under bond.

Loading of the Submarine Merchantman Temporarily Suspended at Baltimore to Repack the Shipment of Rubber—Capt. Koenig Presented with a Loving Cup for Himself and Crew.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BALTIMORE, July 15.—The loading of the cargo for the return trip of the German submarine merchantman Deutschland was suspended late this afternoon and although a permit was obtained for work tomorrow, it was undecided tonight whether it would be taken advantage of.

A second gang of stevedores was put to work today, loading the rubber that is to be carried to Germany. It originally was intended to ship this commodity in the bags in which it had been packed, but it was found this would take up too much space. The removal of the rubber from the bags consequently will cause an unexpected lengthening of the time for loading and it is considered improbable that the Deutschland could get away with a full cargo before Monday night. No nickel so far has been loaded on submarine, while apparently less than fifty tons of rubber have been placed in the hold.

Capt. Paul Koenig, master of the Deutschland, was this afternoon presented with a handsome silver loving cup for himself and crew by Madame Christine Langenhan, a former grand opera singer, who is the wife of Hugo Boucok of New York.

A. Schumacher and Company aganets of the North German Lloyd Company, announced today that positively no mail would be sent on the Deutschland. The statement was necessitated, it was said, because of the fact that the firm is being deluged with letters from all over the United States, with requests that they be forwarded to Germany on the submarine.

DEPARTMENT RULING.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The State Department formally ruled today that the German submarine Deutschland is a merchant vessel and entitled to treatment as suc

In announcing the ruling, Acting Secretary Polk said it was not to be taken as a precedent and that any similar cases arising in the future would be dealt with on their merits.

"In view of the facts in this particular case," said Mr. Polk, "there is no reason why the Deutschland should be considered a war vessel."

The department's action was based upon reports of navy and customs officers who examined the submarine at Baltimore and found that she was unarmed and incapable of being converted for warlike purposes without extensive structural change. An advisory report from the neutrality board to which the case was referred informally by Mr. Polk, held that the vessel should be accorded all the privileges of a peaceful commerce carrier.

Now that the status of the vessel has been fixed so far as the American government is concerned, every possible effort will be made to prevent news of her movements in territorial waters of the United States reaching the allied warships which may be waiting off the Virginia coast.

NAVAL COLLIER'S CREW LANDED AT CHARLESTON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHARLESTON (S. C.) July 15.—All of the 142 men who were on board the big naval collier Hector, wrecked last night on the South Carolina coast, were brought to Charleston today by rescuing vessels. Many of them had minor bruises and four, including the chief engineer of the ship, were taken to a hospital seriously injured.

The real story of the wreck of the Hector has not yet been old. Her skipper, Capt. Joseph Newell, and his officers decline to talk before they make their report to the Navy Department and all of the men who have been seen are reticent.

The collier, a vessel of 11,200 tons, was bound from Charleston for Guantanamo, with a cargo of coal and supplies and had in addition to her crew sixty marine recruits for the naval expeditions in Haiti and Santo Domingo. She was battered by the hurricane off the coast until her reckoning was lost and when she finally went upon the beach fires were raging on board.

Heroic work by the tug Wellington and the lighthouse tender Cypress resulted in the rescue of all of the ship's company. The Cypress took off the last twenty-one men early today just before the collier broke in two and began to go to pieces.

Capt. Byran reported to the Navy Department tonight that all of the crew and marines rescued from the Hector were well and in good health except four, who were in a local hospital suffering with serious injuries.

He reported the injured as follows:

C. E. Mercer, chief engineer; serious head injuries, multiple minor burns.

Chestine, ship carpenter; fractured leg; gangrene; very serious.

McDermott, coal passer; head injuries and multiple minor burns.

C. R. Singleton, oiler; fractured leg.

CASTRO IS AGAIN DENIED ADMISSION.

BARRED AT NEW YORK DOCKS BY WASHINGTON ORDER.

Former President of Venezuela and Notorious Trouble-maker Told He is not Wanted When He Arrives on a Steamer from Port of Spain.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 15.—Gen. Cipriano Castro, former president of Venezuela, who was admitted to the United States in 1913 after being detained by the immigration authorities for six weeks on Ellis Island, again was denied admission to this country today when he arrived on the steamship Vauban from Port of Spain, Trinidad.

His detention was upon orders received from Washington, it was learned tonight. Gen. Castro was permitted to remain aboard the Vauban to await the outcome of a hearing before a special board of inquiry tomorrow.

Assistant Commissioner of Immigration Byron H. Uhl asserted that the charges against Gen. Castro were the same as three years ago, involving moral turpitude. Mr. Uhl explained that a special board of inquiry in 1913 had ordered Gen. Castro excluded from the country and that the then Secretary of Commerce and Labor had approved this action. Gen. Castro, however, sued out a writ of habeas corpus in a Federal court and was permitted to land. The government appealed and, Mr. Uhl said, Gen. Castro, who had been required to furnish a bond, voluntarily left the country before the appeal was heard by the higher court.

Gen. Castro appeared greatly perturbed when informed by the immigration authorities upon his arrival here that he would not be permitted to come ashore.

"Reports that I have come to New York for political reasons or for conferences with Latin American leaders," said Gen. Castro, "are absolutely unfounded. I have no political interests whatsoever and am here because I could not go direct from Trinidad to Porto Rico where my family now is. I intend to take the first available boat."

Gen. Castro said that a revolution in Venezuela at this time could not succeed for many reasons, despite the fact that the condition of the country was bad, both politically and financially. He deprecated the policy of war between Venezuela and Colombia over the boundary dispute, owing to the fact that the differences were "perfectly negotiable."

AUSTRIANS SINK ITALIAN DESTROYER.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, July 15 (via Sayville.)—The sinking of an Italian destroyer by an Austro-Hungarian submarine was announced in an official statement received today from Vienna.

The announcement follows:

"An Austro-Hungarian submarine on the afternoon of July 10 sank an Italian destroyer of the Indominito type.

"One of our aero squadrons bombed effectively, military establishments and railroad stations at Paua. The aeroplanes returned unharmed."

The Indominito, laid down in 1912, was 239 feet long, displaced 680 tons and was armed with one 4.7-inch gun, four 12-pounders and two torpedo tubes.

After the Breach Made in the Second German Line the English and Indian Horsemen are Given a Chance [illegible] Against the Teutons—Machine Guns are Captured [illegible] the Point of the Lance.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BRITISH FRONT IN FRANCE, July 15 (via London.)—After the breach was made in the second German line yesterday, cavalry detachments, English and Indian, for the first time had the reward of their year's wait since trench warfare began. They went straight in the face of the Germans, who were forming a new defense line between the strong points of High Wood and Delville Wood which the British infantry was attacking.

It was 7:30 o'clock in the evening when they rode forth from the cover where they were waiting orders to cross the fields, after their patrols had felt the way, with clear going ahead, and behind them the demolished trenches of the first and second lines and an area of shell holes, which made difficult their progress to their rendezvous. Infantrymen who witnessed the sight could hardly believe their eyes.

LIEUTENANT OF VILLA IS KILLED IN BATT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHIHUAHUA CITY (Mex.) July 15.—J. Beltran, one of Villa's chief lieutenants and a participant in the massacre of eighteen Americans in Santa Ysabel, Chihuahua, last January, was killed in the engagement at Cerro Blanco July 12, reports to Gen. Jacinto Trevino today indicated. These reports were supported by stories told upon their arrival here by Villista prisoners, who said that when the bandits reformed at Sombreretillo, Beltran was missing.

The prisoners said that Villa himself was not present at Cerro Blanco, the outlaw forces there being directed by Calexito Contreras. The bandit chieftain, they said being discappointed upon the evacuation of Jiminez at his failure to to capture arms and ammunition, left the command, going to Hacienda Salaises, about fifty mile[illegible] west. BEEF INCREASE NOW PREDICTED

Decline in the Production Thing of the Past.

Report Shows Conditions in the Western States.

Greater Economy in Forage Rule of the Range.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON (D. C.) July 15.—That hereafter there should be a new increase in the output of beef and mutton in the range States of the West, but that this increase is likely to be accompanied by an increase in the cost of production, are the chief conclusions of a report on "Live Stock Production in the Eleven Far Western Range States," which the Department of Agriculture has published. The report discusses the reasons for the long decline in meat production in the West and explains why there is reason to believe this is now a thing of the past. Between 1910 and 1914, the years in which the investigations on which the report is based were made, the number of live stock in the eleven States of Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming, declined about 13 per cent. For this reason the report holds the settlement of public lands and the consequent reduction of range primarily responsible.

OTHER CAUSES.

Other causes have contributed to the downward movement, but it is pointed out these have been more than offset by high prices and therefore more profitable range animals, and the general agricultural development which have favored production by leading to more widespread adoption of the practice of winter feeding and winter pasturing on alfalfa and cultivated crops.

The prediction that this decrease will give way to an increase is based on the belief that the amount of stock on farms and homesteads will be greater in the future, that the stock ranges in the national forests will continue to improve, that the carrying capacity of the stock ranges on the public domain may be increased by legal regulation, and finally that high prices of range animals and better methods will result in more efficient utilization of the available forage, or, in other words, greater production per unit of forage.

Other factors, though less important, that should tend to increase the future production of live stock are greater economy in the use of forage both on the range and on the farm, the use of more high-grade sires and better management of the breeding animals through the year. These last two, it is said, offer the possibility of increasing the calf crop [illegible] per cent. and the average weight of two-year-old steers [illegible] pounds.

WINTER FEEDING.

Where winter feeding is practiced it is estimated that a yearling steer costs approximately $30 and a two-year-old $45. In the range sections of the Southwest, on the other hand, the costs may be estimated at from $15 to $19 for a yearling and $20 to $25 for a two-year-old. With sheep there is a similar variation. In California the cost of producing a lamb is placed at [illegible] in the Southwest at $1.71, and in the Northwest at $1.82. In considering these figures it must be remembered that they all may be materially altered by increasing or decreasing the percentages of births in the herds and flocks. Better methods, it is pointed out, will almost certainly increase the calf and lamb crop and in this way reduce the cost of production per head.

In estimating these costs the interest charged against the stock is market value, in the vicinity, of the feed consumed.

JAMES HAY NAMED FOR CLAIMS COURT.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 15.—President Wilson today nominated Representative James Hay of Madison, Va., chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, for judge of the United States Court of Claims, to succeed Judge George W. Atkinson, who retired for age.

Mr. Hay has represented the Seventh Virginia District in Congress for twenty years and since his youth has been a power in the Virginia Democratic political organization.

Since the preparedness campaign began two years ago he has been the foremost champion of the National Guard as the nation's main reliance for defense and to him more than any other one man in Congress was due the defeat of former Secretary Garrison's plan for organizing a Federal Continental Volunteer Army as a reserve behind the regulars.

The court of claims judgeship is a life office with a salary of $6000 a year and after ten years service the holder may retire on full pay. Mr. Hay is now about 65 years old.

WIND AND RAINSTORM PLAY HAVOC IN NEW ORLEANS.

Daughters of Planter Killed by Stroke of Lightning—Orphan in St. Joseph's Hospital Dying as Result of Fractured Skull and Other Bruises.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW ORLEANS, July 15.—New Orleans and the Gulf Coast experienced some funny weather again today. A rain and windstorm struck the city about 2 o'clock, and at 3 o'clock this afternoon it was so dark that electric lights had to be burned in all the street cars and stores, where, as in homes, gas lamps and oil burners had to be used. A heavy black cloud seemed to envelop the whole city until it was as dark as night. At Bay St. Louis it rained for three hours and then hailed for half an hour. All along the coast heavy rains fell this afternoon.

Two deaths were caused by the wind and rain. At Columbus, Miss., Ella and Mary Newell, daughters of J. N. Newell, a planter, were struck by lightning and instantly killed. They died with each other's arms clasped around their necks.

Joseph Freedman, an orphan in St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum, is dying tonight from a fractured skull and other bruises. The lad was sent to close a window shutter while the rain and wind was at its height. The heavy shutter jerked him out of the window, and before he could be saved he plunged twenty feet to a paved courtyard below.

There was no overflow in the city, except for a short while in the outskirts.

Labor.

GRAFTERS' FATE AIDS BUILDING.

With Agitators Behind Bars Big Boom is Expected.

Millions of Dollars are Now Awaiting Investment.

Chicago Contractors Look for a Wave of Prosperity.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 15.—Several factors of recent development have increased building in Chicago until the city can now be said to have a genuine boom. Not the least of these influences, in the opinion of those in the industry, was the decision in Judge Scanlan's court in the labor cases, which sentenced six men grafters to prison and fined eight others.

The direct effect of this is reported to be an expansion of building loans by bankers. Architects have been instructed to release plans that were held up as far back as the last big building strike. New plans for extensive improvements have sprung into existence.

The general inclination to avoid building investment, according to officers of leading organizations, has been displaced by an active movement for the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

CONTRACTORS ARE FREE.

"We can now hire union or non-union labor as we please without the fear of being blown up," said James J. Brady, a mason contractor.

"Labor terrorism paralyzed building in Chicago for more than a year. Thanks to the brave jury on the North Side, we may now go about business of making industrial buildings and homes for the people."

Members of the Builders' Exchange, Architects' Association, carpenter contractors, mason contractors and other associations in the building industry today warmly praised the finding as the greatest single factor that has happened in years for stimulating building in Chicago. E. M. Craig, secretary of the Contractors and Builders and W. S. Johnson, president of the Mason Contractors, observed a healthy stimulus in the issuance of building permits, but refused, as a matter of policy, to discuss the decision.

"For some reason building has taken on a stimulus," said Mr. Johnson. "Within the last two days inquiries looking toward the construction of buildings long planned, but deferred, have been made among our members. There is every prospect of greater activity in building lines from now till the winter season begins."

FORESEES A BOOM.

James Fryer, secretary of the Builders' Exchange, foresaw increased building in the immediate future. Materials will move freely and there will be no obstruction to a general building boom, according to the members of his asociation.

"The decision has had an apparent effect in manufacturing circles already," said H. H. Harrison, local representative of the national organization of manufacturers of building materials.

"The impression prevailed outside Chicago that it was worse than useless to ship anything into the town when the unions and employing heads in the illegal combine made it impossible for contractors to use them. A number of outside manufacturers that gave Chicago a wire berth have written to inquire about the market, indicating their intention to re-enter it. This ought to cheapen materials and make building easier."

TRACK WOMAN AND CHILD.

Fear That Mother Wandering in the Woods May be Dead.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

YREKA (Cal.) July 15.—A woman with her infant, born in a lonely cabin on Dutch Creek, was being tracked today through the wild, rough, heavy-timbered country between Dutch Creek and Beaver Creek in the hope of finding her before she and her child are dead from exhaustion or starvation. Foot tracks leading from the lonely cabin were found by woodsmen Wednesday night and reported to the Sheriff.

Three men, schooled in the lore of the woods, were immediately set upon the woman's trail and, provisioned with food, told to follow it until she and her new-born child were found. It was reported that the woman made her way from Oregon to the little cabin where her child was born.

IN AN AGREEMENT ON POSTAL MEASURE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Details of the agreement on the disputed points between House and Senate in the postal bill which became available today, show that the pneumatic tube contracts in large cities which the Postoffice Department wished to discontinue are to be extended to March 4, 1917, pending negotiation. The long-standing controversy over payments to railroads for carrying mails and the manner of payment will be referred to the Interstate Commerce Commission to determine whether the roads shall be paid on a space or weight basis and at what rate.

Publishers will have the right of appeal to Federal courts from orders sending publications by freight but the orders will remain in effect in the meantime.

More than a million dollars disputed back pay will go to rural carriers.

CONGRESSMEN FOR QUICK ADJOURNMENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Adjournment of Congress not later than August 20 was tentatively agreed upon by the Senate Democrats in caucus tonight to revise their legislative programme with a view to bringing the session to an early close.

SUMARIO ESPANOL SOBRE LA SITUACION FRONTERIZA

[Telegramas para "The Times" condensados y traducidos.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Julio 15. — Un fuerte destacamento de Guardia Nacional de la que se encuentra estacionada en esta poblacion, ha sido enviado violentamente a Big Bend, con el objeto de evitar cualquiera incursion que estuviese proyectando hacer una partida de mexicanos que se rumora que se estan reuniendo en Boquilla, poblacion mexicana situada en frente de la referida Big Bend. Desde hace algun tiempo, el embajador de Mexico en Washington, participo al gobierno americano, que se tenian sospechas de que los bandidos intentaban hacer nuevas incursiones dentro de este pais, con el objeto de traer nuevas complicaciones entre ambos gobierno; y es probablemente debido a este aviso a lo que se debe que se haya reforzado la guarnicion de ese lugar.

Han llegado ultimamente noticias de que el bandido Villa se encuentra, en un punto llamado Mesilla, al frente de una numerosa gavilla, y que el general Trevino ha enviado seis mil hombres de sus mejores tropas para atacarlo.

Han vuelto a circular nuevamente insistentes rumores de que el general Trevino y el general Murgia se han aliado con el objeto de derrocar al gobierno de Carranza. Se recordara que hace muy poco tiempo circularon tambien insistentes rumores de que el mismo general Trevino se habia aliado con Villa con igual objeto y que el general Obregon, teniendo sospechas de dicha alianza, le habia quitado el mando del cuerpo de ejercito del norte, dandole en cambio un puesto de menor importancia en Monterrey. El hecho es, que Trevino sigue al frente del citado ejercito del norte, el cual es considerado actualmente como el mas numeroso e importante del vecino pais, y ha publicado varios manifiestos declarando su lealtad al gobierno del general Carranza.

WASHINGTON, Julio 15. — El Presidente Wilson se ha quitado de encima un enemigo acerrimo del aumento del ejercito y la marina, nombrando al Senador Hay, Juez Asociado de la Corte de Reclamaciones.

Las negociaciones entre el embajador mexicano Arredondo y el Secretario de Estado interino Polk, estan progresando satisfactoriamente. Se guarda profundo sigilo acerca de lo que se ha tratado en las conferencias que han tenido ambos diplomaticos, y solo por rumores, se sabe que el proposito principal de ellas, es el de llegar a un acuerdo respecto de algunos cambios en el proyecto sugerido por el Presidente, referente a la formacion de una comision mixta de las dos naciones. Uno de los ex-Presidentes de las naciones latino americanas, el general Castro, exdictador de Venezuela, llego a Nueva York procedente de Barbados siendo detenido inmediatamente a su llegada y conducido a la isla Ellis, de donde se cree que sera deportado por las autoridades de inmigracion, como inmigrante pernicioso.

FOR REGULATION OF CHILD TRAVEL.

FEDERAL OFFICIALS TAKE STEPS AGAINST PARALYSIS.

Senior Surgeon of United States Service Declares Those Leaving New York will be Examined and Certificates of Health will be Issued.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 15.—Federal health officials today began regulating interstate travel of children out of New York in an effort to allay alarm occasioned in other States by the epidemic of infantile paralysis in this city.

Dr. Charles E. Banks, senior surgeon of the United States Public Health Service, announced that children leaving New York would be examined and certificates of travel would be issued to safeguard other States from danger of the epidemic.

Dr. Banks said he and his assistants would gather all available information concerning the epidemic and health officers in other States would be supplied with exact facts from day to day.

"We are simply looking after the interstate phase of the epidemic and are not to have charge or to have any say locally," Dr. Banks declared. "Our work will be purely interstate and not intrastate; that is, we will not have anything to do with the travel of persons from one point to another inside of this State, but only when they leave New York to go to another State."

City health officials welcomed the Federal surgeons in the hope that by providing neighboring States with reliable data, the quarantine established against New York will be lifted. Local officials said today precautions against the spread of the disease to other States have been so thorough that danger has passed.

Dr. Banks and his aides conferred with Health Commissioner Emerson for an hour. The Federal men were given all information in possession of the city health authorities.

FOR ACTION ON COAST.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND, July 15.—Health officers of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and British Columbia met here today to formulate a general plan of action to prevent the importation of infantile paralysis to the Pacific slope. Dr. W. E. Morse, president of the Oregon State Board of Health, presided and at the morning session appointed a committee to draft a set of quarantine restrictions to be considered by the conference later in the day.

SENTENCED FOR SHOOTING.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

Skeletons Rattling.

married Admiral Ludlow she was Mrs. Bugher, and her son is Frederick Bugher, formerly deputy Police Commissioner of New York. Mr. McLean's wife was the daughter of Gen. Edward Fitzgerald Beale. Her sister is Mme. George Bakhmeteff, the wife of the Russian Ambassador to the United States. A brother-in-law of the late Mr. McLean is Truxton Beale, formerly Minister to Persia and Greece. Edward Beale McLean, who entered the suit today, married Miss Evelyn Walsh, daughter of the late Thomas W. Walsh, the Colorado mine owner.

It is set forth in the application for an injunction that the American Security and Trust Company, as executor, has demanded that Mr. Homer deliver the letters to the company and that Mr. Homer will comply with the demand unless the court restrains him. The complaint asserts that the letters do not pertain to any property rights conveyed to the trust company, but "relate purely and only to the private life and personal conduct of the said John R. McLean."

PRIVATE LETTERS.

Young McLean claims that, as the only son and heir, the letters, because of their private character, belong to him and, in addition, are his through his father's specific bequest to him of his personal belongings.

The application asserts that John R. McLean possibly requested his son and Mr. Homer to destroy the letters immediately upon his death and it was never his will or intention that they should go to the American Security and Trust Company, thus exposing to shame and humiliation persons who have no connection with or interest in the controversy between this plaintiff and the American Security and Trust Company.

Young McLean asks that Mr. Homer be summoned to appear to answer the bill of complaint, but not under oath. Justice Ashley M. Gould, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, issued a temporary injunction restraining Mr. Homer from delivering the letters to the American Security and Trust Company and set July 21 as the day for the hearing.

Edward B. McLean declined to go into detail concerning his action.

M'LEAN'S STATEMENT.

All that he had to say was embraced in the following statement:

"The correspondence referred to should not, in my opinion, be brought into any legal action, nor will it be if there is any way by which I can prevent it. This part of my father's correspondence is altogether of a personal nature. My attorneys have advised me, however, that such of these letters as have a bearing on the legal point in controversy are of far greater value to my side of the case than they could possibly be to that of the trust company. Under no circumstances, however, would I consent to using them to aid my case, and I shall not permit them to be introduced into evidence on the other side if I can prevent it by any legal process. I am absolutely determined that these letters shall not be exhibited to the public, even to win my lawsuit."

PAIR OF SHARKS ARE CAUGHT ALIVE.

MANY SCHOOLS REPORTED IN LONG ISLAND SOUND.

Huge Fish Said to Have been Seen up the Hudson River as Far as Ossining—Funerals of Victims are Held at Matawan, N. J. Man-eaters in Virginia Waters.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 15.—Reports of sharks killed, captured and seen, came from many points today. Two of the man-eating species were caught alive, one being hooked in Princess Bay, Staten Island, and the other taken in a net at Atlantic Highlands, N. J.

Schools of sharks were reported in Long Island Sound. Near Stepping Stone lighthouse one was netted which measured seven and one-half feet long.

Capt. Hill of the steamship Finland, arriving from Liverpool today, said he sighted two enormous sharks off Fire Island.

Up the Hudson River as far as Ossining, N. Y., fishermen reported they had seen the huge fish, and three men fishing off the Larchmont breakwater in the Sound, made for shore when they saw what appeared to be sharks.

Residents of Matawan, N. J., continued their hunt for the sharks that killed Lester Stilwell, a small boy, and Stanley Fisher, a man. The funerals of the two victims were held this afternoon.

AT NEWPORT NEWS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEWPORT NEWS (Va.) July 15.—The presence of sharks in Virginia waters was reported here today by two steamer captains. Capt. A. M. Strong of the steamer Californian, reported today that he sighted a shark about six or seven feet long in Chesapeake Bay, off Ocean View last evening. Capt. Jensen of the Norwegian steamer Mayella saw two of the monsters yesterday evening east of the Cape Henry lightship.

HERE'S A GOOD IDEA.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 15.—A resolution to prohibit ocean freighters from throwing overboard near the American coast carcasses of dead livestock while en route to the European war markets as one means of meeting the shark problem, was introduced today by Representative Tague of Massachusetts, and referred to the Merchant Marine Committee.

Secretary McAdoo today arranged a conference for early next week between the coast guard, life savers along the New Jersey coast and officials and citizens of coast resorts in which sharks have recently appeared.

CALIFORNIA BAND DRAWS BIG CROWD.

NOGALES ENJOYS CONCERT BY SEVENTH MUSICIANS.

Col. Schreiber Appears After Being Confined Several Days with Fever in the Field Hospital. Many Members of the Regiment are Disqualified.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NOGALES, July 15.—One of the largest crowds in the downtown section last night since the arrival of the troops at the Plaza and Main street heard the crack Seventh California Infantry Band concert. This is the first time the band has played publicly here and from the rousing cheers and enthusiastic welcome they received it is probable that they will play more in the future. When "I Love You, California" was played the men of the three California regiments cheered as one man and made Chief Musician Murred play three encores before they quieted down.

That Col. Schreiber has a cast iron constitution was demonstrated this morning when he turned out for reveille. He has been confined in Field Hospital No. 1 for the last four days with an attack of fever, which he says comes on him every year. During his illness Lieut.-Col. L. M. Saltmarsh has been in command of the regiment. It was unofficially stated by one major that the first of the week would find the men all out taking long hikes to toughen them up for emergency. This means that the men who have not been in the habit of doing much walking will get plenty of practice in the future.

The Seventh Regiment lost 110 men after the disqualifying examinations were held. The men have been christened the disability squad by other members of their companies. The men disqualified in the different companies are as follows: Machine gun company, 3; Co. B, 5; Co. C, 13; Co. D, 8; Co. E, 17; Co. F, 14; Co. G, 7; Co. H, 6; Co. I, 15; Co. K, 15, and Co. L, 7. That this will make a large hole in the different companies is certain and those of the men who have some slight defect that can easily be cured will, from reports, be sent to the casualty camp at San Antonio, Tex., for the period of five weeks and then put through the examination again.

TO SHAKE OFF UNION FETTERS

Open-shop Sentiment Gains in San Francisco.

Chamber's Campaign Takes on Much Broader Phase.

Business Men Determined to End All Lawlessness.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 15.—With the appointment of a third legal adviser in Attorney William H. Metson and the employing of George W. Wittman, former Chief of Police, to direct the work of such guards as might be necessary to preserve law and order on the waterfront, the Chamber of Commerce and allied interests yesterday advanced the campaign to free San Francisco from the dictation of organized labor.

The compaign of the chamber has been broadened and the committee is not confining its efforts to the waterfront situation alone. Sub-committees are collecting data on all threatened and pending labor troubles in the city.

The Chamber of Commerce stands committed:

(1.) To establish "open-shop" conditions.

(2.) To secure observance of contractual relations between employers and employees.

(3.) To preserve law and order and to eradicate interference by union men with the commerce of the port.

INDORSED BY BUSINESS.

Two thousand of the leading business men of the city, members of the organization and representing the "pay roll" of the city, unanimously indorsed this policy, and pledged themselves to finance and answer any call made upon them to secure its inauguration in the city, even to the extent of shouldering a rifle to protect commerce.

The keynote of the campaign, which had its beginning after thirty-three acts of lawlessness had occurred on the waterfront in which merchants and non-union men were beaten by the striking longshoremen and shipping paralyzed, was struck by Chairman Frederick J. Koster of the Law and Order Committee when he said: "It is time that San Francisco became free from its reputation of being a class-ried city at home and abroad, and anything within it that depends upon lawlessness for its success must be stamped out. Ten years ago earthquake and fire destroyed the city. Many of you were at your wits ends to rehabilitate your business. Then came the great exposition. Hard work brought it to a successful fruition, but kept all occupied to such an extent that this industrial and political disease made great inroads upon our community, and now, with the same determination, that disease from the baleful influence of which no one of you is immune will be stamped out."

"The directors of the Chamber of Commerce to a man are determined upon this and they are prepared to go as far as may be necessary.

"You need have no fear on that score. I am not going to ask, but I am going to demand of every one of you here your full support of time and money."

ATTORNEYS AT WORK.

The committe now has at work three attorneys, including the appointment of Atty. Metson. Atty. R. Porter Ashe is representing the Law and Order Committee in the police courts, where he is demanding that the union men arrested for rioting and assault be punished severely. His efforts in this connection are being backed up by a committee of 150 business men—men at the helm of industrial San Francisco are attending the proceedings to evidence the vital interest. The business community of the city is taking in the action of its police judges. In explaining the presence of the committee in court, Chairman Koster of the Law and Order Committee today stated: "We don't want any grandstand plays by the police judges, and the committee is in court to evidence their interest in the proceedings. We want these cases of lawlessness judged on their merits, and it is the committee's object to educate the public so that the police and the judges of our police courts will be brought to do their duty without fear of influences."

STRIKING EXAMPLE.

Bert Schesinger is representing the committee in all Federal court matters. The first striking example that the campaign of the Chamber of Commerce is having telling effect with the attempt of agitators to stampede the United Railroads platform men to leave their posts during the rush hours was shown Friday evening. Just one United Railroad man struck and the attempt of the agitators ended in a rough farce.

There were but few delays in traffic and the agitators were quickly placed under arrest. Hundreds of pedestrians along Market street who witnessed the efforts of the agitators to call the men from their posts hooted the agitators and urged the men to stay by their jobs. Traffic was not disturbed more than a half hour. Labor union leaders after details of the farce were in print came forth with denials that the strike movement had their authorization. They admitted, however, that the question of giving authority for the movement was under consideration.

There have been almost fifty instances of rioting and assault since the calling of the longshoremen's strike in San Francisco June 1, and the Chamber of Commerce and allied interests are determined that lawlessness shall end "even if the business men themselves are called upon to shoulder guns," according to the announcement of the committee.

SECRET STRIKE BALLOT.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—Negotiations between employers and strikers in the longshoremen's strike were halted today pending the outcome of a secret ballot by the members of the riggers and stevedores to decide whether they will accept the offer made yesterday by the employers' union to return to work Monday under open shop conditions and the ante-strike wage scale and negotiate a permanent compromise later. An unofficial canvass of the voting strikers taken late today indicated that the proposition would be accepted.

Although the compromise proposition being voted on was submitted to the local union longshoremen officials, the employers refusing to deal with the Pacific Coast district officers who called the strike June 1, district officers advised the men to accept, Gordon Kelly, vice-president of the International Longshoremen's Association and members of the Pacific Coast district executive board, especially urging faorable action. The district officers previously turned down a much more favorable offer of compromise earlier in the strike before the Chamber of Commerce here opened its million-dollar open shop fight which brought about pressure from local labor leaders to end the longshoremen's strike.

THE STREET CAR MEN.

All eligible municipal service candidates for platform jobs on the municipal street cars were notified today to stand ready in case of a threatened strike of the municipal platform men over the suspension of ten of their number accused of aiding in an attempted strike of United Railroads employees last evening.

Timothy Reardon, president of the Board of Public Works, who issued the notification orders, stated that he had been reliably informed a strike is being agitated among the union street car men operating the municipal cars. He ordered Thomas A. Cashin, superintendent of the municipal lines, to discharge any man who refused to take his car out or left it.

The ten union employees of the municipal line were suspended today because it was charged they used their cars to block the progress of United Railroad cars last evening, while strike promoters tried to induce the non-union United Railroads platform men to leave their cars. It happened at the busiest corner in San Francisco during a rush hour. The police responded to a riot call and arrested nine persons, among them Mrs. Rena Mooney, wife of Thomas Mooney, a strike agitator.

SEATTLE INJUNCTION.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SEATTLE, July 15.—United States District Judge Deterer today continued in force until July 27 the temporary order enjoining the officers and members of the Longshoremen's Association of Puget Sound from interfering with the employees and property of the Alaska Steamship Company.

Mayor Gill today said he would appoint no more special policemen on account of the water front strike. The situation was being well handled, he said. He said he had no sympathy with armed special policemen who permitted themselves to be beaten by strikers.

Two men were shot and seriously wounded and a third, a negro longshoreman, was stabbed and severely beaten during a riot which started early tonight at First avenue and Union street, near the heart of the uptown retail district.

GRANTED ANNULMENT OF HER MARRIAGE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—Margaret Abercrombie, sister-in-law of Baron George Wilhelm von Brincken, a German army lieutenant, attached to the German consulate-general's office here, was granted an annulment of her marriage today to "Dr." Sherman O. Crawford on the grounds that Crawford had a wife living when he married again June 8. Crawford, who, it is said, reported himself as a naval officer to the Abercrombie girl, was arrested about two weeks ago on a charge of bigamy.

WILL INVESTIGATE STRIKER'S DEATH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TACOMA (Wash.) July 15.—Prosecutor Fred S. Remann today instructed Dr. J. F. Stewart, Coroner, to proceed with an inquest into the facts surrounding the fatal shooting last night of Alexander Laidlaw, striking longshoreman, by J. F. Dowling, a special deputy sheriff employed as a guard at the Milwaukee Railroad's docks.

The four Superior Court judges will confer on the question of calling a special grand jury to investigate this special case and other matters growing out of the strike.

AWARD CONTRACT FOR BULKHEAD.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, July 15.—After three years of discussion of the proposed bulkhead for the south beach section of the city, the Board of Trustees today awarded the contract for the structure to Braun, Bryant and Austin. The contract price is $125,000, which is a little over $300 less than the next lowest bidder. Other bidders were Henry W. Schlueter, at $31 a front foot, and J. D. Kneen Contracting Company of Santa Monica, at a total of $126,000.

Immediately following the awarding of the contract the contractors announced that work on the bulkhead will begin within the next thirty days. In voting for the contract, Trustee Smart asserted that the building of the bulkhead would result in increasing valuations for the beach property affected and be the means of extending protection to the entire frontage.

ANOTHER ACCIDENT ON ANAHEIM ROAD.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SEAL BEACH, July 15.—Anaheim road, back of Seal Beach, was the scene of another accident when an automobile owned and driven by James L. Henry of Huntington Beach and occupied by John F. Jenkins and Mrs. Nellie Myers, turned turtle into a ditch.

Jenkins suffered a broken leg and body bruises and Mrs. Myers sustained a wrenched back and dislocated knee cap. The owner and driver escaped with minor scratches. Both the injured were removed to a hospital near Santa Ana by a passing auto.

The accident is said to have been caused when an approaching machine shot around a long curve at high speed and forced Henry's car off the boulevard and into the ditch. Almost the identical spot has been the scene of three serious accidents within a short time.

MAY PICK TAFT AS A MEDIATOR.

Former President Mentioned as Commission's Head.

Well Qualified to Deal with the Mexican Problem.

Informal Negotiations Halted at the Capital.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 15. — According to prominent administration officials President Wilson expects to ask former President Taft to serve as chairman of the American commission which will be appointed to cooperate with a Mexican commission in the settlement of the President's dispute with Gen. Carranza.

Before leaving Washington, according to these officials, the President also determined to ask Judge Victor J. Dowling of New York to serve on the commission with Mr. Taft. He expected to make up his mind, while on his week-end cruise with Mrs. Wilson aboard the Mayflower, as to the third member. The formal announcement concerning the selections is expected to be made shortly after the President's return to Washington the first of the week.

There is much speculation among Republicans here as to Mr. Taft's possible acceptance of the President's offer. A majority of the Republicans think the President had decided to offer the place to Taft solely for political reasons. They realize the tender will place Taft in a difficult position and will eliminate him, to a large extent, from the campaign this year if he accepts it. As the chairman of the American commission Taft would have to cooperate with the President all through the negotiations. Irrespective of the outcome, he would be bound not to discuss the Mexican situation or the President's Mexican policy in the campaign, if there should be a settlement in time to permit him to enter into the campaign.

There were no developments in the Mexican situation at either the State or War Departments today. The informal negotiations which have been progressing between acting Secretary of State Polk and Eliseo Arredondo, the Mexican Ambassador designate, were halted pending the President's return to Washington.

Resumption.

AMERICANS AGAIN CROSS THE MEXICAN BORDER.

Change of Attitude is Shown on the Frontier and Relations may Again Become Friendly—Ammunition Said to be Going to the Villista Bandits Once More from the United States.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL PASO, July 15.—The hospitable latchstring into Mexico was officially poked out this afternoon. Until today, every time one passed the international line one of the American customs officers stopped you at the border and the following dialogue took place:

"Are you an American?"

"Yes."

"I advise you not to go into Mexico. If you go I warn you that you go at your own risk."

Asked for details the customs officer stated that he was ordered to warn all Americans not to cross the line.

This afternoon, for the first time, the customs officer at the international bridge omitted this warning. Instead he practically invited Americans into Mexico.

"Would you like to go into Mexico?" he asked. "It is perfectly safe for you to do so if you wish."

NO EXPLANATIONS.

No explanations were given for the change in attitude.

There was nothing to be seen in Juarez to make the invitation worth while. It is just a dirty little Mexican town with a very old cathedral. A few Mexicans were sitting around the plaza. A few had guns lying near and seemed to be members of the Home Guard.

The only Mexicans in Juarez who seemed to feel any hostility toward Americans were the sentries at the bridge.

When the automobiles from El Paso went whirling by, the Mexican bridge sentries glared but made no hostile gesture. They were a [illegible]. They had no uniforms, but carried rifles. The rifles looked like new ones and still had stickers pasted on the stocks, designating their [illegible].

AMMUNITION CROSSES.

To give some color to the report that ammunition is going across the border and into Mexico, it is reported that ammunition is going into Mexico to Villa [illegible].

There are no absolutely reliable reports from the south but there are many indications that Villa is fighting in Chihuahua, so he must be getting ammunition from somewhere.

The reports received by mining men today were that Villa was still camped on the Rio Florita. He seems to be sticking close to the railroad. They say he is looting plenty of food for his men and stock and has already built up his army to about [illegible] men.

The scouting parties sent out by the de facto government are said to be very wary and reluctant about meeting Pancho and to have found discretion the better part of valor. The belief is that Gen. Trevino is sending out two columns, one from [illegible] and one from Rosario, in an effort to corner Villa.

ANOTHER EXPEDITION?

Although Gen. Pershing is said to be on his way out of Mexico, the troops concentrated on the border are plainly being prepared for another expedition into Mexico. The belief among army men is that the agreement between this government and Carranza is only an interlude. If he doesn't succeed in overturning the de facto government, some other revolutionist will.

Carranza is universally conceded to be a man slipping very rapidly. It is clear that the army officers have another expedition in mind to correct the faults that developed in the Pershing expedition.

In a general broad way, the difficulty with the Pershing expedition was that the troops had too much cavalry for the supplies. Pershing was continually running away from his supplies. This is conceded to have made a wreck of his cavalry. For [illegible] years there has been a tendency in our army to cut down the cavalry in favor of the infantry. In a general sense, the army has been built upon the idea of using infantry for fighting and the cavalry only for patrols, scouting and occasional duties. The whole system is built on infantry as a base. Thrown suddenly into the field by the Columbus disaster, the army found itself in the midst of a cavalry campaign. Strictly speaking, it was not a campaign. The punitive expedition was an overgrown cavalry expedition.

The army had no equipment for rapid movement of troops. The wagons could not keep up with the cavalry, and the horses suffered terribly for want of feed and sometimes water. As a result of it, the Pershing horses are practically done for.

The result of the expedition has been to impress the army with the fact that the Mexican war will be largely a contest of mobility.

AUTOS DISPLACE MULES.

Arrangements are now being made to substitute automobile trucks for army mules wherever it is possible.

The whole army truck department is now being made over. Next Monday or Tuesday, Maj. Seigerfoss of the Seventh Infantry is to report to Gen. Bell for duty as motor truck officer. He will reorganize the whole transportation system. Maj. Seigerfoss is one of the most able officers in the army. Until this mobilization he was one of the faculty at the War College.

Under his direction the army ambulances will be made over from mule wagons into motor trucks. Company wagons will probably be replaced, especially in the cavalry and field artillery, by motor trucks. Whenever a mule can be replaced by a motor, this will be done.

The chief job of the new motor officer, however, will be to organize the present motor freight train, which is not attached to the mobile troops, but carries supplies from Columbus to the front. This truck train was organized on paper a year or so ago, but the plan of organization, when put to an actual test, has not been found to be a success.

Probably in order to give the truck chauffeurs sufficient pay, each driver was given the rank of sergeant. This has been found to be a mistake. Under the army regulations, a sergeant is not obliged to do duty around the kitchens or any of the necessary menial work about the camp. In a truck train of nothing but sergeants there is no one to do the work.

The present plan is to organize the trucks into companies of twenty-seven trucks with one supply wagon to carry fuel. Each truck train is supposed to be able to transport 80,000 pounds of freight. Each train will be in command of a commissioned officer who will have about the same general job as a conductor of a freight train on a railroad. He will have general charge of the movements of the train and the discipline of the men. The actual freight will be in command of a quartermaster-sergeant who will be in the charge of the bills of lading and will direct the distribution of the freight and will know when and where the stuff is to be taken off en route. There will be a first sergeant and enough non-commissioned officers to assist in the discipline and management of the train.

The present plan is to organize twelve companies of twenty-eight trucks each for the main train. This train will be directed from headquarters. The ambulance trucks, regimental or company wagons will be in command of the unit commander.

MAY ALSO DISPLACE HORSES.

Experiments have been made on the border looking to the substitution of motor trucks for horses in pulling field guns. So far the experiments have not been a success. There was a peculiar reason for failure. The guns were whirled along so rapidly that the axles became dry and the guns all pulled up with "hot wheels." If it is ever decided to pull field cannon by automobile a new type of a carriage axle will have to be devised.

This effort for increased mobility will not be confined to shooting out grub. Gen. Bell is working out a plan to transport infantrymen in trucks to and from the front. He has also notified the different infantry commanders that he expects the foot soldiers to be able to march thirty miles a day for three days in succession before taking the field.

This will involve a stiff course of route marching. At present the infantry troops are working only in the school of the company and school of the soldier. As soon as the men become accustomed to the climate here, hard practice marches will become the order of the day.

THINK IT DOUBTFUL THAT FORD WILL RUN.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CHICAGO, July 15.—A mail-straw vote of the delegates to the Prohibition National Convention which will be held in St. Paul, July 18 to 21, the tabulation of which was completed today at the offices of the National Committee here, indicates that there may be no choice on the first ballot. Party leaders believe it doubtful if Henry Ford would consent to make the race if nominated.

The straw vote is said to be divided between six candidates, with three former Governors in the lead. They are J. Frank Hanly of Indiana, Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts and William Sulzer of New York.

THINK CARRANZA WON IN DIPLOMATIC GAME.

Mexicans of Business Prominence Declare First Chief was Ready to Abdicate His Job if War had Broken Out with United States, Knowing that Vaunted Army Machine was a Mere Shell.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONTEREY (Mex.) July 10.—Mexicans of business prominence who have arrived here from the City of Mexico during the last few days are unanimous in agreeing that the de facto government "put one over" on the United States in the diplomatic avoidance of the recently-threatened crisis. Luis Cabrera, who is said to be "First Chief" Carranza's chief political adviser, is given the credit for giving the de facto government at least a temporary lease of life by his shrewd diplomatic treatment of the acute situation with the authorities at Washington.

It is now an open secret that Carranza believed at one time, immediately following the order for the massing of the National Guard of the different States upon the Rio Grande border, that war was inevitable. He had little confidence in the assurance of Cabrera that the threatened break between the two countries might possibly be avoided by diplomatic note writing, of which he was already a proved adept. Carranza well knew that the much vaunted opposition to the prospective American military invasion had no real existence; he knew that his own army was a mere shell; he knew that the whole fragment of his so-called government would fly to pieces the moment the American troops crossed the border in any force.

LIVED IN A SLEEPER.

Here is the proof of the way Carranza felt about it. When news of the big troop movement toward Mexico came to him he deserted the Presidential palace and took up his abode in a Pullman sleeping-car in the railroad yards. To this car was attached a locomotive with steam up and ready to move out at a moment's warning. Carranza was still living in this sleeper at the time the recent arrivals here left the City of Mexico. His move could have been actuated by only one cause, and that was the fear that the United States government might rush troops into the country and into the capital and capture him. He wanted to be on the safe side and for this reason he was prepared to get to Vera Cruz or Coatzacoalcos in the quickest possible time and there take refuge upon some friendly ship and sail for a foreign land.

TROOPS DESERTING.

Wholesale desertions of Carranza troops in Northern and Central Mexico have taken place since the reappearance of Francisco Villa upon the field of action. Villa's raid upon Columbus, N. M., has made him the popular hero of the masses of Mexicans all over the country. The Carranza soldiers hold him almost in reverence. They are flocking to his standard by the hundreds. In addition to the menace that the augmenting of the Villa forces has created for the de facto government it is stated in reliable and direct advices from the City of Mexico that a large force of Zapatistas are marching northward through the State of Jalisco, evidently with the intention of forming a connection with a column of Villa's army that is said to be in the State of Durango, to the south of Torreon. The recent public claim on the part of the Carranza publicity bureau in Mexico that the Zapatistas had been driven out of the State of Morelos is wholly without foundation, according to the statements of exiled plantation owners of that State, several of whom are making their home here pending a settlement of the Zapata revolution. Instead of being driven from Morelos, Zapata has extended his operations during the last two weeks to the State of Mexico and even into the confines of the Federal district in which the City of Mexico is situated.

THE DIAZ REVOLT.

The revolt which Felix Diaz is promoting is beginning to show signs of new life in the State of Oaxaca. Immediately following the patching up of the trouble between Carranza and the authorities at Washington, Diaz sent an armed force of more than 1000 men into Mitla, the famous city of prehistoric ruins, and at last accounts his armed forces were in possession of several important towns of that State.

Brigandage is becoming more and more rampant in almost every part of the country. Scores of roving bands of outlaws are preying upon the defenseless and suffering people in nearly every State. Many men of the lower and middle classes who were formerly of unblemished respectability now find themselves facing the alternative of either turning robber or starving to death. They are forced to steal for the sake of their families as well as for themselves. There is not a ranch or farm in the State of San Luis Potosi that has not been raided and looted by these roving freebooters. In the rich Huasteca Valley the sugar cane plantations, many of which are owned by Americans and other foreign investors, have been robbed of everything that can be eaten or sold. It is not unusual for unprotected towns of 5000 to 25,000 people to be raided and sacked by brigand bands. In the country districts many farm laborers have deserted their peaceful avocations and gone into that of banditry.

AUTHORITY IS NIL.

The authority of the de facto government is absolutely nil, with the exception of in the City of Mexico and a very few of the other large cities. As a matter of fact, there is little semblance of government anywhere in Mexico. Nearly all sources of public revenue are now closed. The collections at the different customs ports are so small as to be of little moment. Most people have quit paying taxes of any kind, for the very good and simple reason that they have no money to pay with. In a great many instances foreign-owned mines and other properties have been confiscated because of delinquency in tax payments. The recovery of these holdings by the owners will involve expensive litigation when the present troubles of the country are settled.

It is the general opinion in financial circles here that the borrowing in the United States or elsewhere of $100,000,000 or any other sum by the de facto government would prove but of small temporary benefit to that tottering element of the nation's political disturbers. This amount of new and real money in the country would only serve to intensify the activity of the other revolutionary factions it is claimed.

WOULD FIRE CARRANZA.

The unpopularity of Carranza was augmented several hundred per cent. when he tided over the threatened crisis with the United States government. On the other hand, there is a very large and powerful element of Mexican citizenship that has been against Carranza all along and will never be satisfied until his rule, however limited it may be, is overturned.

No thinking men in Mexico believes that American intervention has been prevented by the recent turn of events. The crisis has simply been deferred and the job, which is inevitable, probably made all the harder when the time arrives for performing it.

FOUR MEXICANS TO HANG IN TEXAS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

LAREDO (Tex.) July 15.—Jose Antonio Arre, Jesus Maria Cerda and Paulino Sanchez, and Vincente Lira, the four alleged bandits, but self-styled members of the Mexican Constitutionalist army, charged with murder in connection with the killing of Corporal William Oberlies of M troop, Fourteenth United States Cavalry, today were found guilty by a jury, and sentenced to death.

The four Mexicans were captured in an engagement with American troops and armed civilians during the attack of the band on San Ygnacio, Tex., June 15. Oberlies was killed during the attack.

Sanchez, who was seriously injured during the engagement, occupied a cot in front of the jury during the trial.

faces of both the United States and Mexico and to enable both countries to climb back onto dry land with whatever good grace they can accomplish.

EFFECT ON THE ARMY.

Whatever effect these extraordinary political gymnastics may have had on the country at large, the weakness of the Wilson administration has had a terrible effect upon the army.

The army is shamed. The spirit of the soldiers wa never before at so low an ebb, I have never heard either an officer or enlisted man mention Mexico without cursing the President. They feel he has forced them to eat dirt.

The army is frankly and avowedly waiting for March 5. They feel that President Wilson will endure any kind of insult and stomach any humiliation in order to avoid fighting. The return of the dead from Carrizal, unavenged, sent home by the Mexicans with open contempt, like so much carrion, was the last straw for the army.

The army officers feel that their pride has been spat upon and their honor covered with filth and they are waiting with sullen fury for a new President to come to the White House.

With that hope, they are preparing the troops now mobilized on the border for an invasion of Mexico next year.

Meanwhile the mobilization of the National Guardsmen on the border will have been a disastrous thing for Mr. Wilson politically. Before the militia came here, the Eastern States knew very little about Mexico and cared less. The weakness of our course on the Mexican border did not impress anybody east of the Mississippi River. Thirty or forty thousand militia representing every walk of life and from every section of this country have now had a personal introduction to the real inwardness of the Mexican situation and they are writing home about it. They have not only seen how the land lies but they have absorbed something of the mental attitude of the regulars, to whom they naturally look up. And there is nothing in the attitude of the regulars that will help Mr. Wilson to another term in the White House.

The attitude of Mr. Wilson is one of watchful waiting, the attitude of the army and of the border people is also one of watchful waiting. He is waiting for heaven knows what. They are waiting for a President with guts.

"Came to Palo Verde Valley with $400 two years ago- gross crop yield last season $6000"

J W Thomas
An Inland Empire in California

Granite intake on the Colorado River-Palo Verde Valley Water System

Gentlemen:

Four hundred dollars was all I had when I landed in Palo Verde Valley two years ago. My gross crop yield for last year was $6000. In two summers I put $10,000 into land here. I have 120 acres and I wouldn't take $250 per acre for my land today. I am planting 100 acres to cotton this year. I have raised cotton in the South, and I want to say that I believe this is the best cotton-raising section in the United States. Cotton can be raised at less expense and with more success here than in any other place I know of. Every condition favors the cotton grower here. It would be extremely difficult to persuade me to leave this promising valley. Great results have been accomplished thus far even with the disadvantage of no railroad transportation. Now that the railroad is almost here, the great future of this valley is assured. J. W. THOMAS.

$100 an acre for "double-crop land" and perpetual gravity water right.
Terms—¼ cash, balance 1, 2 and 3 years.
Special terms to actual settlers.

"America's richest undeveloped empire"—that's what the editor of a great agricultural magazine called the Palo Verde Valley after a week's personal investigation. The California Southern Railroad (almost completed) unlocks this little empire to the ranchers of the West who demand the EXCEPTIONAL from every farming and profit-making standpoint.

A part of the valley is already well-developed. Wonderful achievements have been made. A great gravity water system has been established—a perpetual right goes with every acre—and the cost of maintenance for the past six years has not exceeded $2.00 per acre per annum. Settlers have become wealthy here despite the lack of a railroad. What other section of the State can show a better record?

The valley has deep, rich soil of ever-increasing fertility, prior rights to the Colorado River, a "double-crop climate," a 12 months growing season, continuous production of green feed at lower cost than in any other section of the State, ideal stock raising conditions, and everything that the dairy farmer, cotton grower, orchardist and truck gardener could desire. Write or call for illustrated booklet and magazine that will open your eyes—the story of Palo Verde Valley by the ranchers themselves.

WAR A BOON TO FEMINISM.

Suffragists Well Satisfied at the Turn of Events.

Fierce Labor Competition may be the Result.

Emancipation of Woman is Predicted by Leader.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, June 30. — "Feminism is making great strides during the war," says Eugene Brieux, a member of the French Academy, discussing the future of the women of France. He predicts "a violent phase in the war of sexes" when the soldiers come home and has thereby provoked a lively discussion of these questions:

Will woman suffrage be advanced by the war?

Will women now replacing men in all sorts of occupations hold their places and come into competition with the discharged soldiers?

Will they complicate the labor problem by accepting the wage scale for men's work?

Will their extended participation in industrial life separate them more from men?

"The competition between male and female labor will be fierce," according to M. Brieux, and he declares that "women will abandon the career of housewife, while young girls, having learned how to provide for themselves, will no longer look to man as a prospective protector."

PREVOST'S BELIEF.

Marcel Prevost, another Academician, also sees coming "a great falling off in sentiment, due to the penury of men," and he expects the women who have learned to use the lathe making projectiles will turn out parts of automobiles and all kinds of machinery after the war. He is less pessimistic than M. Brieux as to the intensity of their competition with man.

Maurice Donnay agrees with his two confrerees of the academy that women will do more manual labor in factories and take a more active part in men's occupations generally, but he thinks there will be so much to do that a proper division of labor will prevent harmful conflict.

Dr. Madeleine Pelletier, one of the leading French suffragettes, who says she "despaired of feminism before the war," now thinks that "the necessities of life are going to impose what years of propaganda failed to effect—the emancipation of women."

"The war," she says, "will put France, as well as the other belligerents, face to face with a crushing financial problem and the state will be unable to support the millions of mothers, widows and orphans deprived of their natural protectors. Instead of a meager pension," she anticipates, "the country will provide for them by giving them occupations in which they will earn their own comfortable living."

DOMESTIC LIFE.

As to domestic life, Mme. Pelletier looks for a complete transformation of the household to put it in accord with new conditions.

"Dirty dishes will be laid out on the doormat to be taken away by specialists who will deposit them properly cleaned in the same place," she thinks. "Stockings will be darned by other specialists, leaving the women of the family to earn the price of two pairs in the time they would take to stop up the holes of one.

"Cooking, as well as dishwashing and darning," she adds, "will be done by specialists while the lady of the house concentrates her attention upon the shop or the factory."

Madame Pelletier, as well as the Academicians, neglect the question as to what will become of the children. "It will be quite necessary for France to think of the children, though," writes a woman temporarily working at the lathe. "Future generations," she points out, "must make up the wastage of war in human life and nothing could be more inopportune now than encouragement of the separation of women from the home and the smothering of family sentiment."

Hundreds of women contributing to the discussion agree with the sentiment of the woman of the lathe. In reply to it M. Brieux reminds them that every married man who falls on the battlefield leaves a widow; that every young man killed leaves a widow by anticipation—a widow without weeds; that all these added to the widows, orphans and mothers that had lost their protectors before the war make up a formidable army of women for whom husbands cannot be readily found and who must be permitted to make a living.

"We allowed ourselves to be surprised by war," says M. Brieux, "let us not be surprised by peace; let us think right now of what shall be the fate of these victims."

"Women will work in France after the war as they always have done," answers one correspondent, "but they will put no obstacle in the way of men. If employers are tempted by the prospect of getting cheap labor they will be met by this general doctrine, 'equal pay for equal work;' the woman that runs a lathe after the war will get man's pay for her labor."

"The best way of caring for the interests of women after the war is to look out first for the men," is the opinion of another female munitions worker. "When the victorious soldiers come home he will find in woman a companion and a collaborator instead of a competitor. The only thing to do now is to reassure those who are fighting for us so that they may come back to their firesides without anguish."

"The long separation will reveal in a new light the joys of hearth and home," says another. "Even those who never appreciated it will realize the meaning of the family and would it be at that delightful moment that the woman would fly from the house to the workshop by choice?"

The majority of opinions of women thus far gathered seems to be against Madame Pelletier and the Academicians so far as concerns a possible conflict between men and women, while admitting that the latter, must, forcibly during the reconstruction period, take on a considerable part of man's work.

OFFICIAL NEWS OF THE BATTLES

Germans Recapture Parts of Positions in the East.

Berlin Admits Loss of Ground to the British.

Determined Battle to Force the Russians Back.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, July 15 (via London, 5 p.m.)—Parts of positions in the Skrobowa region, north of the Volhynian sector, which were taken from the Germans by the Russians on July 8, have been recaptured by German troops under Prince Leopold, the War Office announced today. More than 1500 prisoners were taken.

The army headquarters statement on operations along the eastern front says:

"Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg: Russian detachments, which attempted to cross the Dvina, near Lennewaden, northwest of Friedrichstadt, were repulsed.

"Numerous bombs were dropped on railway stations on the Smorgon-Molodechno line.

"Army group of Prince Leopold: In the region of Skrobowa, parts of positions on the first line of defense, which had been held by the enemy since his first attack on the morning of July 8, were recaptured as the result of our attacks. Eleven officers and more than 1500 men were taken prisoner.

"Army group of Gen. Von Linsingen: The situation is unchanged. Our aero squadrons achieved success in their attack on the troop transport traffic station at Kiversey, northeast of Lutsk.

"Balkan front: An enemy detachment, which attacked a Bulgarian advance post southwest of Gievgeli, was repulsed. By the shelling of Gulemenli, northeast of Lake Doiran, seven Greek civilians, among whom were four children, were killed."

BRITISH PIERCE GERMAN LINES

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, July 15 (via London, 2:58 p.m.)—The continuation of the British attack on the Germans' lines between Pozieres and Longueval resulted in the penetrating of the German lines and effecting a gain of territory, the War Office announced today. The British also have occupied Trones wood. The fighting is continuing.

Fighting is continuing although the attack has been stemmed, adds the statement, which says:

"British attacks which followed the first sanguinary repulse suffered by them north of the Somme led to heavy fighting. By his forces massed between Pozieres and Longueval the enemy, in spite of the most severe losses, succeeded in penetrating our lines and gaining some ground. He also occupied Trones wood.

"The attack has been stemmed, but the fighting is being continued.

"South of the Somme there was no infantry activity.

"Aside from futile actions undertaken by small British detachments east of Armentieres in the region of Angres, in the Neuville sector and northeast of Argas, nothing of importance occurred on the rest of the front."

THE RUSSIAN REPORT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, July 15 (via London, 6:50 p.m.)—The Germans made a determined effort yesterday to force back the Russians in the region of Baranovichi, where heavy fighting has been in progress for some time. Three times the Germans launched attacks in massed formation. The War Office announced today that these attacks had been broken down and that the Russians, initiating a counter-attack, made further progress.

The announcement says:

"On Thursday evening the Germans, under cover of a violent fire, approached our barbed wire entanglements in the region of the village of Lioubanichi. They were repulsed by our artillery fire.

"Yesterday the Germans opened a violent artillery fire against our lines eastward of Gorodichtche (Baranovichi sector,) after which they assumed the offensive in the region of Skrobowa, but were repulsed with heavy losses. A little later, after a continuation of the bombardment, the enemy took the offensive in massed formation a little further north of Skrobowa, but were again repulsed by our fire. After having taken breath the Germans made a fresh attack in the region of the same village, but our troops repulsed the enemy with machine gun and rifle fire. We then made a counter-attack, which resulted in the capture of more ground, which we are now consolidating.

"Repeated enemy attempts to advance toward the sector southward of Skrobowa were also repulsed by our fire.

"Southeast of Riga the Germans took the offensive against our sectors near Frantz, northwest of Pulkarn, but were repulsed by our artillery and infantry fire and by hand grenade fighting.

"Caucasus front: The offensive of our troops west of the Meridian of Erzerum is continuing with success. We have captured a fresh series of Turkish positions. Our forces are about ten miles from Baiburt.

"Southwestward of Mush fighting is developing in our favor despite the desperate resistance of the Turks."

AS ROME VIEWS IT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ROME, July 15 (via London, 7:15 p.m.)—Against strong Austrian resistance the Italians have carried strong positions at the head of the Posina Valley, according to the official statement given out today. Italian successes in the Tofana region continue. The statement says:

"In the region of the Adige Valley there have been intense artillery exchanges and infantry skirmishes. At the head of the Posina Valley on the night of the 13th, we carried strong enemy positions south of Corno del Cosmon and east of Borcola pass. During the night the enemy launched several violent, but unsuccessful counter-attacks, in which they lost heavily.

"In the Tofana region our success continued to be very marked. Yesterday our Alpine detachments surprised and drove the enemy from his trenches near Castelletto and at the entrance of the Travennazes Valley. We took prisoners including two officers, as well as two guns, two machine guns, one trench mortar and a large quantity of arms and ammunition.

"Enemy artillery shelled Costina d'Ampezza. Our heavy batteries replied by bombarding the railway station at Toblach, which was wrecked and set on fire."

ITALIANS REPULSED.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN (via Sayville) July 15.—The repulse of heavy attacks by Italians on the Austrian front in the Trentino between the Brenta and the Adige, is announced in the Vienna headquarters report of July 14. The statement says:

"Intense activity continues between the Brenta and the Adige. The enemy ten times attacked northeast of Monte Rasta, being in each case repulsed by our troops, who maintained all their positions."

THE VIENNA REPORT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

VIENNA, July 15 (via Amsterdam and London, 7:07 p.m.)—There has been increased battle activity near Delatyn in Galicia, says the Austrian official statement issued today. BRITISH HALT GERMANS; TAKE BELVILLE WOOD.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 16.—The official statement by the British War Office tonight is as follows:

"Heavy fighting continued all day in the Pozieres-Guillemont sector of the German second line, as a result of which further important successes have been gained by our troops.

"East of Longueval, despite the enemy's desperate resistance, we captured the whole of Belville wood and repulsed a strong counter-attack with severe losses to the enemy.

"North of Bazentin-le-Grand our troops penetrated the German third line at the Bois de Faureaux, in which we obtained lodgment. In this neighborhood a detachment of the enemy was successfully accounted for by a squadron of dragoon guards—the first opportunity for mounted action afforded the cavalry since 1914.

"West of Bazentin-le-Grand we captured the whole wood of that name and repulsed two counter-attacks. Here, among other prisoners, we captured the commander of a Bavarian regiment with his whole staff.

"East of Ovillers a further advance has been made and our troops have fought their way to the outskirts of Pozieres.

"During the last forty-eight hours our aeroplanes have been much hampered by unfavorable weather. Throughout the whole of the 14th, the clouds were seldom at a higher altitude than 500 feet. Despite this drawback much valuable work was done.

"In one of our bombing raids an enemy train was derailed and a coach overturned, while in the aerial combats in the last twenty-four hours we destroyed three Fokkers, three biplanes and a double-engine aeroplane and forced another Fokker to land in a damaged condition. All of our machines returned safely to our lines."

UNION MASHER FELLED FOR INSULTING A GIRL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 15. — Assistant State's Attorney Michael F. Sullivan demonstrated his physical prowess today when, with a punch to the jaw, he knocked out a labor-union masher. The masher gave his name as C. J. Milligan, president of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local No. 381.

The Assistant State's Attorney was on his way to the criminal court building when Miss Gertrude Graney of Austin, a stenographer employed in the State's Attorney's office, complained that a man was following her and that the same man had followed her on numerous occasions before and spoken in insulting terms.

"This man has accosted me repeatedly," Miss Graney said, on the verge of tears.

"Point him out to me," said the prosecutor. "Where is he?"

Miss Graney indicated a saloon. Mr. Sullivan went in the place and a moment later he emerged holding a man by the collar.

"Is this the man?" Mr. Sullivan demanded.

Miss Graney nodded her head.

Mr. Sullivan ordered the man to apologize, but instead he began a tirade of abuse and made a swing at the lawyer's jaw, but missed. Mr. Sullivan struck him squarely in the face and he fell. When he recovered he was taken to the State's Attorney's office.

Miss Graney said she did not care to prosecute him, and after he had been detained for some time and apologized to the stenographer he was allowed to go.

Decision.

TO EXEMPT EVERY HOME FROM DEBT ATTACHMENT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTLAND (Or.) July 15.—Every man is entitled to a home free from attachment for debt of any kind, according to an important ruling made by Circuit Judge Morrow. The decision is vital in every State of the Union and may prove the forerunner of others.

Judge Morrow said that, while the statutes relating to exemptions and homesteads are somewhat confused, he would hold that the head of a family is entitled absolutely to one city lot regardless of its value, if he makes it his home, and that such a lot cannot be sold under attachment to satisfy a debt.

This means, the court stated, that a man's home, to the extent of a lot in the city or ten acres in the country, cannot be taken away from him by creditors through any process of law, not referring, of course, to foreclosure of mortgages. Judge Morrow's decision was rendered in connection with the action brought to restrain the Sheriff from selling a house under execution of attachment and judgment.

HOW SERBIAN ARMY REACHED SALONIKA.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, June 25.—The Reuter correspondent at Saloniki writes of the successful transportation of the Serbian army from Corfu to Saloniki:

"The allies have another wonderful feat to their credit. Over a hundred thousand men have been brought through seas infested with submarines with never a single mishap or the loss of one man. It is an astounding performance, especially if we take into consideration the means the enemy undoubtedly possessed of knowing all about every departure and the zeal with which the Austrian U-boats particularly must have sought the prize of a transport. But in spite of their vigilance and their daring and their ruthlessness, they have not been able to interfere with the steady flow of troops which has poured into Saloniki regularly, methodically and unceasingly for the past four weeks.

"The vessels have been entirely French transports, and great praise is due to skippers and crews for the manner in which they have accomplished their duties, but both French and Serbians gladly and gratefully recognize that their achievement would not have been possible without the British navy; that only the constant vigil and unceasing patrolling of our warships has made these Mediterranean seaways clear and safe.

"Over a hundred thousand Serbians are now encamped on the plains and in the valleys somewhere near Saloniki. A fine lot of men they are. Perhaps it has been a case of the survival of the fittest, but these tall, thick-set fellows show no traces of the hardships and sufferings of the retreat and exposure in Albania. Four months' recuperation in Corfu has sloughed away all marks of sickness, toil and privation. These Serbian soldiers look fit to go anywhere and do anything. And the men are as eager as they are fit. It is a newborn army, and, entirely re-equipped with new French and British uniforms, the men look exceedingly smart and soldier-like. Very proud are they of their new clothes, especially of the general service buttons on the British uniforms. It speaks well for the moral stamina of a people that they can come through such trials without losing courage or becoming embittered. These soldiers are as cheerful and confident as though the tragic past were not, or had never been. Artless, good-natured and genuine, their faith in their great allies is implicit. They are sad when they think of their homes in Serbia and of the women and children they have left behind. Few have heard anything from their families for over six months. But there is a grim determination about them and an enthusiasm at the thought of an advance on their enemies.

"Visitors are made very welcome at a Serbian camp. The whole talent of the regiment is mobilized in order to entertain the guests. The Serbians are a musical people and some of the soldier choruses were very stirring, even though the martial words were not understood. At one camp, where I messed the other day, several of the men had really first-class voices, and one soldier who accompanies himself on the violin had a tender voice that would secure him an engagement on any stage. What everybody most enjoys, however, is the dance, the famous hora of the Balkans. It is very simple as far as steps go, but it is good to see the good-fellowship between officers and men as they join hands in the huge semicircle which slowly to rhythm and measure revolves on the green. Then there were recitations and instrumental solos; we heard the gaika, a national instrument very like the Scottish pipes, but cruder and without the drone of the pibroch. It was difficult seeing these men in holiday mood to realize that each and every one of them had been more than once wounded and that the commanding officer had actually been wounded nine times; that they had been fighting almost continuously for four years; that they had been through scenes and experiences that might excusably have shattered the nerves and broken the bodies of the strongest. Yet here they were enjoying themselves as simply and whole-heartedly as children."

YOUTH DROWNS IN A RESERVOIR.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HYNES, July 15.—George Amos Kirkpatrick, 17 years old, was drowned in an irrigation reservoir on the Hayden ranch today and his body was found late this afternoon by the ranchman, who saw his clothes piled up on the bank where he had gone in swimming.

Hayden called Deputy Sheriff A. Hunt who recovered the body and notified the Coroner. Hunt says the body indicated that the youth had taken cramps as it is believed he entered the water shortly following the noon meal after he had become heated by pedalling his bicycle to the spot.

Young Kirkpatrick could not swim, and at places the water was eight feet deep. Hayden had warned the boys away from the place but they were in the habit of sneaking up for a dip when they thought the coast was clear.

The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kirkpatrick and leaves several brothers and sisters.

FINANCE PLANS CAUSE DISPUTE.

Paris Chamber of Deputies Disagrees with Ribot.

People are Warned Against Too Much Extravagance.

Optimism Crowds Pessimism Among the French.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, June 15.—The Budget Committee of the Chamber of Deputies disagrees with some of the plans of M. Ribot, the Minister of Finance, for meeting the war obligations of the country, but agrees with him that strict economy, public and private, is the need of the hour and that, having taken the woolen sack and drawn out of it sums in gold now going on toward a billion, public sentiment can be made to overcome private habits that cost more than they should in war time.

"It is impossible," says the committee report, "in view of the prolongation of the war, for the people to live as in time of peace."

"The abundance of ready money, due to the vast expenditures of the government, incites to lavish living," the report adds, "and the people should take warning that every extravagance in imported articles decreases so much the country's reserves that should be jealously saved to replace depleted live stock and raw materials, reconstruct industries and furnish the working capital that will be required as soon as hostilities are ended."

FROM THE REPORT.

The report proposes the institution of a rigorous supervision of expenditures—those of the people as well as those of the government—but neglects to give it tangible form. A dictator such as was appointed in Germany would be contrary to French democracy. The more natural procedure in view of the precedents would be supervision by a parliamentary commission.

Preaching economy to a people who have the habit of saving so solidly welded into their system of living as the French, appears at first as a surprising superfluity. Everything in a Frenchman's life is regulated with a view to having something left out of each month's pay or income for a rainy day—be it only a few francs.

He is a good liver, however, and he has acquired habits that, at times, require the outlay of goodly sums; those are the habits the Budget Committee proposes to overcome.

On the specific measures by which M. Ribot proposes to raise the needed additional revenue, the committee is opposed to him. It rejects the doubling of all direct taxes and accepts only the increase in the tax on alcohol.

Being composed in a large majority of radicals and Socialists, the committee naturally goes back to the old radical-Socialist programme of the radical income tax introduced by Joseph Caillaux and pending in the Senate for several years.

M. Ribot has pointed out that judging from the results of the present income tax—an attenuated form of the bill in the Senate—that system is less equitable than it appears, since, in a population of 40,000,000, 40,000 persons pay 85 per cent. of the tax.

OPTIMISM IN PARIS.

Optimism is now crowding pessimism into the last ditch in the French psychology of the war.

"It will all be over sooner than you think," say the new prophets replacing those that have been driven out of business by time, ridicule and the course of events.

A few go so far as to say: "The boys will all be home before snow flies," but that is taking only local chances, since snow rarely flies over the bulk of French territory. The most audacious take their courage in both hands and declare "every man will be out of the trenches by Christmas."

RUSH TO GIVE UP JOBS IN MANILA.

AMERICANS READY TO RETIRE FROM INSULAR SERVICE.

New Law Passed in the Philippines Gives Men Two-thirds Pay After They Have been Employed by the Government Six Years or More.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

MANILA, June 12. — The past month has seen a rush of applications from American employees for retirement from the insular government service. The retirement law, passed at the last session of the insular Legislature, provides that employees who have served the insular government for six years or more may retire and receive in three equal annual installments at least two-thirds of the annual salary they enjoyed at the time of their retirement. The amount of this retirement fund increases with the length of service to the full amount of a year's salary for those who have served the government ten years or more.

All employees entitled to the benefit of this law who desire to take advantage of it must have their applications in the hands of the Governor-General by the end of the month. This has brought about the recent flood of applications. It seems safe to say that by the end of the month every American entitled to benefit by the retirement law will have filed an application.

But this does not mean that the government is to lose all its oldest employees. The retirement application must be passed upon by both the applicant's immediate chief and the Governor-General. Where a man can be spared or where he can show good reasons why his application should be accepted, it is probable that favorable action will be taken. But the man who has no good reason for retiring or the man whose services are so valuable that the government would be crippled by his withdrawal, cannot retire. The filing of his application will entitle him to the benefits of the act when the government decides it can spare him and he expresses a desire to leave—but until that time he must remain in the government service. And no man can file an application in the expectation that in two or five years, as the case may be, the request will be granted. The date of retirement depends upon the employee's chief and the Governor-General.

SATO DELIGHTED TO RETURN HERE.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

TOKIO, June 15.—Aimaro Sato, who has been appointed Japanese Ambassador at Washington in succession to Viscount Sutemi Chinda, expects to leave for the United States in September. To the correspondent of the Associated Press, Mr. Sato said he was delighted to go to Washington not alone because of the importance of the diplomatic post but also because it will give him an opportunity to renew relations, with a large number of old American friends. This will be the Ambassador's fifth trip to the United States.

He received his university education in America, served as secretary to the then Japanese legation at Washington more than twenty-five years ago, visited the United States in the suite of Prince Fushimi and was chief secretary of the Japanese delegation to the peace conference at Portsmouth, N. H., which brought to an end the war between Japan and Russia.

HIS COLLEGE DAYS.

Mr. Sato has pleasant memories of his college career at De Pauw University in Indiana. Viscount Chinda was one of his classmates. Another coincidence is that the two Japanese students were born in the same province of Aomori in Northern Japan, and they passed their boyhood there together. Their families had been friends for generations and one of the fruits of this friendship was that Mr. Sato's sister became Viscountess Chinda, who has been so popular in Washington social circles.

Both boys were of Samurai blood and both rose to prominence on their own merits from modest beginnings in the diplomatic service.

Mr. Sato's first ministerial post was at Mexico from 1900 to 1902 and there he saw a great deal of Porfirio Diaz. Two years later he made an extensive tour of the United States with Prince Fushimi, who attended the Louisana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, and was received by President Roosevelt at Washington. In 1905 with the rank of Minister he accompanied Marquis Komura and Baron Takahira to the Portsmouth conference, was present at all the sessions of the conference and because of the his fine knowledge of English was selected to make such communications to American journalists as the Japanese delegates deemed necessary.

AT PEACE CONFERENCE.

It was while he was Minister to Holland that Mr. Sato attended the second international peace conference and the international opium conference and it was shortly before the outbreak of the present European war that he was appointed Ambassador to the court of Austria. His Ambasadorship was brief and dramatic. "It lasted just nineteen days," explained Mr. Sato. "I left Paris on the last train which ever reached Vienna. On August 8, 1914, I was received by Emperor Francis Joseph. On August 25 I was requested to leave Austria. Two days before, Japan had declared war on Germany. On my own responsibility I asked the American Ambassador, Mr. Penfield, to look after Japanese interests. He most kindly consented."

Mr. Sato left Vienna August 27, in what came to be known as the "Ambassadorial train." On the outskirts of the city the cars were stoned. About twenty windowpanes were demolished, but no one was hurt.

Mr. Sato's long residence in the United States and his knowledge of American conditions together with his long experience in diplomacy in many countries are believed to well qualify him for the post at Washington, though regret is expressed at the departure of Viscount Chinda, whose handling of the immigration question met with noticeable commendation. In this connection, it is noted that the attitude of the Congress in meeting Japan's wishes on the Burnett bill has caused a favorable impression.

Mr. Sato, who is of medium height, is alert and active in manner and gives an impression of directness and businesslike capacity. He speaks in English with extreme facility. Like all Japanese he is a hard worker. When he can find a spare moment in his diplomatic duties, he quickly finds a rod and seeks repose fishing.

Being in indifferent health, Mrs. Sato will not accompany her husband to Washington.

UNIONITES SUSPECTED

Scuttling of Boats Laid to Doors of Outlaw Fishermen Who Are Known to Have Boasted Of "Putting Away" Non-union Ships.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, July 15.—Another low act of the outlaw union fishermen of San Pedro, who are charged with the malicious and spiteful destruction of more than one fishing-smack because its owner would not kow-tow to the orders of the organized trouble-makers, has been laid at the door of the same aggregation of rowdies.

Upon investigation of the sinking of the California it was discovered that she was deliberately scuttled and left to sink, after she had been stolen from the Fellows' boat yard the night of the dastardly act.

It was found that clean-cut holes had been bored in the bottom of the boat, which was sighted by a Long Beach man before it had entirely disappeared from sight, and saved. The holes are now being plugged up and the California will again be in service in a short time.

The police are investigating a reliable tip that three members of the fishermen's union, who were heard to have boasted of the sinking of non-union ships here, were implicated in the sinking of the boat.

TROPICO, July 15. — Twenty-five of Tropico's young business men have responded to the call for volunteers which, added to the names of forty men from Glendale, gives a roster of sixty-five in this vicinity. The volunteers were called together in the Council chamber at the City Hall and speeches aroused much enthusiasm by Capt. Edward Johnson, W. J. Hibbert and Joseph V. Griffin, district commander of Sons of Veterans, on the defenseless state of our country and the need for preparedness; John A. St. Clair and R. M. McGee. The Tropico volunteers include Arthur J. McAdams, William Dixon, Robert Danner, Roland Dimmick, William H. Moore, G. Will Gould, E. M. Polley, L. E. Davis, William M. Crawford, W. J. Hibbert, Edwin C. Fairchild, Frank E. Budway, Edward R. Best, Howard H. Bradley, George J. Truaxe, Maj. J. Weller, Walter T. Johnson, S. A. Haviland, W. R. Blair, C. L. Edwards, William W. Dutton, Charles M. Allen, Roland Walters and Dave C. Lovell. With Capt. Johnson as drill master these volunteers are trained in military tactics several times each week.

FLOOD WATERS UNDER CONTROL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OCEANSIDE, July 14.—In an interesting race with the receding flood waters of the San Luis Rey River, the engineers in the employ of the South Coast Land Company have won in the installation of an electrically-operated pumping-plant to take the place of the steam plant wrecked in the January flood. It is used for pumping water into the reservoirs of the company on the south bank of the river for distribution to the lands of the company at South Oceanside and Carlsbad, a large acreage of the holdings being planted to citrus orchard.

The difficulty has been to sink new wells father away from the channel of the river and install the necessary machinery of the plant before the failure of the flood waters of the river, which has been the source of supply since the flood. From the two wells sunk, each to a depth of 200 feet, at least 100 inches of water is expected, which is much more than is needed for present irriation of the lands. Other wells will be sunk as the demand increases.

The "lift" from the river bottom to the impounding reservoirs is over 200 feet. Electric power for the pumping is supplied by the Oceanside Electric and Gas plant, recently absorbed by the San Diego Consolidated Gas and Electric Company.

A POCKET POWER PLANT.

A Kansas Cityan Believes He Has Solved Electrical Problem.

[Literary Digest:] Possibly this story belongs in the department of "science and invention." Possibly it belongs in the fairy-tale book. If the latter, it is worthy to rank with the tale of the famous Keely motor. If the former, then the invention that Harry Perrigo is working on in Kansas City may bring such industrial and social changes in this and every other country such as no one century has ever seen. To explain this, it is only necessary to state that Mr. Perrigo's invention is a machine about the size of an ordinary typewriter which, acting as an accumulator, will draw electric power out of the air and supply us with heat, light and power—for nothing. That is what the electric dynamo does now, but it requires a pretty husky steam-or-water-power plant to drive it. The inventor explains his marvel, says the Kansas City Star, in stating that "by twisting coils in a certain way and connecting them, the high-frequency current is taken from the air, after which it is reduced down and then 'stept down.'" After that, we are told, it can be put to work as easily and diligently as any common current tapped from the light companies' wires. To the perfection of this instrument Perrigo has devoted his life, and in the course of his labors he has more than once come within an ace of losing it.

The device that is to do the work will be about a foot in each of its dimensions. It is planned to retail it at a small cost. Once installed, Mr. Perrigo says, there will be no further expense. There will be nothing to wear out. Power for lighting, heating, cooking, and for all household work will flow constantly—and cost nothing.

The same plan could be used to supply power for all industries. The farmer could employ it to drive his farm machinery. It would drive battleships. The manufacturing business would be revolutionized. The cost of production would drop. Comfort would come to cheerless homes. Every branch of living expense would feel the kindly touch.

Most of the experiments have been carried on in a shop in the back yard of Mr. Perrigo's home. There he has his coils, his lights, and all the numerous little mystic contrivances that he needs to carry on his work. Copper wires are strung from hoops crosswise of the room. Two mechanics are employed constantly at work under his direction. Since last July he has devoted his entire time to the work. Previous to that he was employed in the electrical department of the Ford Motor Car Company, and before that he worked in many places as an electrical engineer. Fortunately he has funds sufficient to allow him to continue his work without annoyance.

The severe shocks he receives come when he is testing the power. But he takes no unnecessary chances. Every time he makes a test his physician, Dr. I. E. Taylor, is with him to give immediate treatment in case anything goes wrong. The inventor stands on a marble slab covvered with warm paper. His feet are incased in rubber shoes and he wears rubber gloves. Yet, despite all the insulation, the volts get to him. From somewhere he has drawn enough electricity to make him unconscious.

The testing phase of the work, apparently, is nearly over. One more test or so and it will be through. As he says:

"The only things left are just the minor details. The invention is a success. I have perfected my improvements. I could knock off work today and the invention would be ready to put into use. But I am just finishing up the loose ends."

Field Marshal von Buelow, who commanded the Second and Third German armies during the Marne advance has been placed on the retired list. He has been inactive for more than a year, owing to ill health, and is now approaching his seventy-first birthday.

UGH! CALOMEL IS HORRIBLE! IT SHOCKS YOUR LIVER, IF BILIOUS

Calomel sickens! Don't lose a day's work! Clean your Liver and Bowels with "Dodson's Liver Tone."

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless, doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

The Wheat Yield Tells the Story of Western Canada's Rapid Progress

The heavy crops in Western Canada have caused new records to be made in the handling of grains by railroads. For while the movement of these heavy shipments has been wonderfully rapid, the resources of the different roads, despite enlarged equipments and increased facilities, have been strained as never before, and previous records have thus been broken in all directions. The largest Canadian wheat shipments through New York ever known are reported for the period up to October 15th, upwards of four and a quarter million bushels being exported in less than six weeks, and this was but the overflow of shipments to Montreal, through which point shipments were much larger than to New York.

Yields as high as 60 bushels of wheat per acre are reported from all parts of the country; while yields of 45 bushels per acre are common.

Thousands of American farmers have taken part in this wonderful production. Land prices are still low and free homestead lands are easily secured in good localities, convenient to churches, schools, markets, railways, etc.

There is no war tax on land and no conscription.

BACKACHE CAUSED BY TIRED MUSCLES

How to Correct It

Of all the muscles of the body those of the back are the only one that never get any rest or relaxation except when we lie down.

The small of the back is the location of the powerful muscles corresponding to the tenderloin in beef and that is why a pain in these often over-worked muscles makes us place our hands on the small of the back.

Like all of the other muscles of the body these back muscles are nourished by the blood. When the blood becomes thin and carries insufficient nourishment these over-worked muscles are the first to feel the effect. Backache is therefore the first warning that the blood is getting thin and impoverished.

A distinguished medical authority, writing for a popular magazine, said that backache is simply plain muscle fatigue made acute by poisoned blood, and has most mercifully nothing whatever to do, ninety-nine times out of a hundred, with either the kidneys, the pelvic organs or the spinal cord. The best and only permanent cure for backache is to clean the blood of the poisons that are causing it, and to give yourself an immediate rest, or wholesome and relaxing change of occupation.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood and sufferers from backache would do well to try this treatment before giving way to worry over a fancied organic disease. Rest and the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will correct most forms of backache.

For people who work too hard or dance too much and sleep too little, better habits and a course of treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are all that are needed to drive away the pains and aches that are warnings of a coming breakdown. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic for the blood. They give strength and vigor, drive away that constant tired feeling and put new life into fagged muscles. Read what they have done for others.

Dull, Heavy Backache

"I had a dull, heavy, backache which caused me a great deal of suffering," says Mrs. W. H.

Williams, of Blanchard, Me. "My heart palpitated and I would often feel faint at my stomach. In going up stairs I would have to rest because of shortness of breath. I was very nervous and could not sleep well. I was hysterical and would cry over the least little thing. I became greatly run down, was pale and had no ambition.

"I was treated by several doctors but without relief. Altogether I must have been under doctors' treatment for ten years. Finally I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills upon the advice of a friend. I had not taken them long before I felt that I was being helped. They cured me completely and made me feel like a different woman."

Pain in the Back

Mr. C. E. Legg, of Tipton, W. Va., is another who has used Dr. Williams's Pink Pills for Pale People successfully in the treatment of backache caused by thin blood.

"My trouble was anemia, as the doctor called it," said Mr. Legg. "There was a good deal of pain in my back. The thin blood affected me in other ways too. I was annoyed by sour risings from my stomach. For months I was under the care of a physician but his medicine did me no good. Meanwhile I learned of cases like mine that had been helped by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I owe my recovery to these pills and I also know that they have helped others to whom I have recommended them. One lady reports that they have done more to relieve her insomnia and nervousness than any medicine she has ever taken. Another friend says they have cured her indigestion and made her sallow complexion a clear one. They have real merit and I know of nothing that would take their place."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills suit most people's needs because they are non-alcoholic and they really build up the blood and strengthen the nerves. Try them whenever your blood is thin. Two books, "Building Up the Blood" and "What to Eat and How to Eat" will be sent free, if you are interested, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at the nearest drug store or by mail at 50 cents per box; six boxes, $2.50.

LITTLE GIRL PROVES LONG BEACH BURGLAR.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, July 15.—One of the strangest cases in the police annals of this city was recorded today with the arrest of the person who confessed to be the pass-key burglar who has been giving the entire detective corps of this city all sorts of worry in the past two weeks.

Following up a clew dropped by Mrs. H. L. Pilsbury, wife of the city tax and license collector, of No. 73 Cedar avenue, whose ice box was robbed last night, the police took into custody a 7-year-old girl, a student in the third grade of the Pine-avenue grammar school, but whose name they refuse to divulge.

The tot readily confessed to the thefts, according to the police, who believe she is a kleptomaniac. At least a half-dozen apartment-house burglaries of the last two weeks were cleared as the result of the confession of the little girl, who said she spent the money she stole from the lodgers for ice cream and candy.

One of the acts of the youthful thief, according to the police, was the robbery of the Allen family in the Riviera Hotel Tuesday, where several dollars in small change was secured. The girl purposely refrained from taking a $5 and $10 goldpiece, she is said to have told the police, because she was afraid they would be more easily missed.

At the Central apartments, Third street and Pine avenue, she said she took down the keys from the rack unnoticed and entered four apartments without detection.

She said it was easy for her to work, declaring that she just walked into an apartment-house and when no one was looking would take out the keys from the various mail boxes, where they are kept, and proceed to loot the rooms. The police have turned over the juvenile robber to her mother, who resides within a block of the police station.

Her last job, the robbing of the larder and ice box of the Pilsbury home, is what got her into trouble. She had the boldness to visit the family, but a few minutes before they left the house to go to a show, and then returned and feasted on the contents of the refrigerator, which contained many toothsome and appetizing dishes for a young girl of 7 years.

In reporting the robbery to the police, a description of the apparently innocent visitor was given the detectives, which resulted shortly in her arrest.

Crash.

TWO SERIOUSLY HURT.

One Man Receives Probably Fatal Injuries and the Other Badly Bruised and Battered when Motorcycle and Automobile Collide.

One man probably will die and a second received serious injuries when a motorcycle and automobile collided late yesterday afternoon at Mission road and Eastlake avenue.

Isaelo Sartini, owner and driver of the motorcycle, received a compound fracture of the skull and internal injuries. His companion, Selda Gascini, riding the tandem of the motorcycle, was so bruised and battered he was unable to give a coherent account of either the accident or of himself. Their identity was established from cards anl letters found in their pockets.

The driver of the automobile, O. C. Huggins of No. 545 Towne avenue, recently given a license as a jitney driver, explained the men on the motorcyle had driven into him. If Sartini dies, an investigation will probably be held. Witnesses declare both machines were traveling at a good rate of speed.

PROSECUTOR'S WIFE ASSASSIN VICTIM.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

ST. JOSEPH (Mo.) July 15.—Mrs. Oscar McDaniel, wife of the prosecuting attorney of Buchanan county, whose skull was crushed by assassins at her home about midnight last night, died at Ensworth this morning without having regained consciousness.

The entire police and Sheriff's forces are engaged with bloodhounds in the search for the murderer or murderers.

An assassin fired five shots at her husband, who engaged in a pistol duel with the man. Neither was hit and the man escaped. The attack was evidently carefully planned, and it is believed the assassin intended to kill both the prosecutor and his wife. The police connect the tragedy with an anonymous threatening letter received by McDaniel about a week ago.

The police have taken into custody five men who are held pending investigation of the murder.

Friends of the prosecuting attorney believe the crime the result of his activity in prosecuting burglars and highwaymen. He is just completing his first term in office and several times had been warned anonymously not to be a candidate again.

MOTOR STOLEN TWICE IN A DAY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, July 15.—Stolen twice in ten hours and still missing is the record made by a local motorcycle. It belongs to Al Blatz, a newspaper carrier boy who resides on East Holt street. At 4 o'clock this morning when he went out to get his Harley-Davidson motorcycle, it was missing from the woodshed. The police scoured the countryside, but failed to find it.

At 9 o'clock in the forenoon a Mexican boy who knows Blatz quite well came in on his machine and said he saw the missing motorcycle under a tree at the side of the boulevard near Walnut, and that the front wheel was missing. Blatz jumped on a bicycle and went to the place, but failed to find the remnants. The police figure that the thief punctured the front tire, took the front wheel out, went into a neighboring grove and repaired it, and then put it back in the frame and continued his journey.

Officer Pleasant, who made a careful survey of the Blatz premises, says the machine was stolen by a Whittier reform school boy if indications count for anything. He says the thief left tracks of shoes with a V in the heel and five hobnails to the left side of the heel, which is the shoe mark of the reformatory boys. The motorcycle was led around many blocks before it was ridden away.

FOREST FUNDS FAIL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, July 15.—As another indication of Democratic inefficiency word comes from the Sequoia National Forest headquarters that no funds were appropriated this year for maintenance of the forests and as a result men employed in trail building and repair, construction of telephone lines and other work necessary to fit the reserve for the tourist public, have been laid off. There are no funds for repairs about the tourist reserves in the forest and to prevent the necessity for closing these tracts this year, W. P. Bartlett, a mining man and orange grower of this city, has paid out of his own pocket the bills for repair of fences and other work necessary for the present season.

TULARE COUNTY GOES REPUBLICAN.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, July 16.—Material increases in registration in Tulare county contain comfort for the Republicans, and for the first time in the history of this section there is a majority for the G.O.P. Of the 15,108 names which had been placed on the great register to July 10 the Republicans had 5424, with the Democrats more than 1000 behind, their total being 4348. The Progressives, the leading party four years ago, now have a lonesome 711, four less than the Socialists, who total 715.

S. O. Walker, the chairman of the Republican County Central Committee, has conferred this week with committeemen from all parts of the county and has announced that ample funds will be raised for making a whirlwind campaign.

Outside the work for the Presidential nominee, an especial effort is to be made to turn out a large vote for W. W. FINDS FAMILY THROUGH "TIMES."

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, July 15.—A story published in The Times has been the means of bringing to Mrs. M. A. Tunstall of No. 921 Indiana avenue, knowledge of the whereabouts of four brothers, a sister and a father from whom she has been separated for twenty-two years.

Three weeks ago the tale was told of Henry Russell of Rochester, N. Y., who deserted his six children following the death of their mother rather than accept the responsibility of their care. The children became separated following their entrance into different orphan asylums.

Mrs. Daisy Hickok of No. 303 Euclid avenue, read the story. She remembered having a chum in Rochester named Mary Russell, whom she had heard tell a story similar to that told by Mrs. Tunstall, whose maiden name was Gladys Russell.

A communication sent to this Mary Russell brought the information that all four brothers and the sister are living near each other in Rochester and that the father, Henry Russell, a broken-down old man, has returned to Rochester suffering with serious heart trouble.

SUBURBAN CITIES DEMAND ELEVATED.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, July 14.—To discuss traffic problems which have arisen in connection with the Pacific Electric Railway lines in this vicinity, the members of the Boards of Trustees, City Commissioners and officers of the Chambers of Commerce of Boards of Trade of Pasadena, South Pasadena, Alhambra, Lamanda Park, San Marino, San Gabriel and Ramona Acres will hold a joint conference Tuesday evening in the local City Hall.

The specific object of the meeting will be to formulate a petition to the State Railroad Commission asking that body to eliminate all the grade crossings on Aliso street. Such an elimination would mean that the Pacific Electric would be compelled to construct an elevated road from the rear of the Sixth street depot to a point east of the Salt Lake tracks on he east side of the Los Angeles River.

The building of such an elevated would, it is estimated, cut down the running time from Pasadena to Los Angeles from thirty-nine minutes to about twenty-seven minutes. South Pasadena would have a running time of about twenty minutes. Besides this saving the elimination of the with such a fatal accident as that which occurred about eight months ago when a steam train smashed into a South Pasadena car near the river, killing several and injuring a score.

The city of Pasadena has already filed an individual complaint and to back up her stand the support of the other communities is being sought.

SUGAR COMPANY ARRANGES BONUS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CHINO, July 14.—The American Beet Sugar Company has decided to anticipate the price of sugar during tht coming year and will pay a bonus of 50 cents per ton to growers for beets as delivery is made at the factories, instead of distributing the bonus money next July, as is stipulated in the contracts.

The basis of settlement in the contracts between the association and the growers was that $4.50 should be paid a ton for beets of 15 per cent. sugar content, and 30 cents for each per cent. over. An additional 50 cents a ton was agreed upon should sugar sell at a certain price throughout the year. The bonus was to have been paid after this year's crop is sold.

The American Beet Sugar Company issued the statement that $5 per ton would be paid, instead of the former $4.50. The same clause relating to the 30 cents for each additional per cent. of sugar remains the same. Beets going 20 per cent. sugar will bring upon delivery $6.50 a ton.

The beet crop in this vicinity is large, and the clause will be of great value to the growers. The factory will begin operation in the early part of August and will continue night and day for a period of approximately 110 to 120 days.

Last year the company paid the same bonus, making settlement two months before the agreed time. The amount distributed in this section was about $20,000, and this year the amount will be even greater.

He has been successful in his private business affairs and is looked upon by many as the logical candidate to represent the Seventy-fifth in Sacramento. His nominating petition will be filed early this week.

Edwin F. Hahn of Pasadena, who has been attorney for the Anti-Saloon League of Southern California for five years and is an active church worker and loyal Republican, announced yesterday his nominating petitions are ready to be filed. Mr. Hahn seeks the Republican nomination for Congress in the Ninth District. Mr. Hahn was president of the Pasadena Republican Club in the Fredericks campaign. He is a young man of recognized ability and much political strength. L. L. Lostutter of Pomona is his formidable opponent. Mr. Lostutter's petition was filed early last week and he is making a most active campaign. He is said to be one of the best vote-getters in the county and his friends say has the edge on the Congress situation.

Some of the new candidates for the Assembly are Daniel Mulherron of Wilmington, T. L. Ambrose of Boyle Heights, A. Burlingame Johnson of Pasadena, and P. S. McNutt, who resides in the Sixty-first District. With the exception of Ambrose, who is stamped with Johnsonism, these candidates have no little Republican following.

Announcement that Jesse Shaffer will be a candidate for the Senate in the Thirty-seventh District was gratifying to his friends. Charles A. Kleinman started in the race a few weeks ago, but is not waging an active campaign. Many believe Mr. Shaffer can win.

How active the fair sex will be in future campaigns may be judged by the constant rumors of the candidacies of many of them for various offices. Among those mentioned is Mrs. R. W. Richardson, president of the Women's Republican League, who will probably be a candidate for the City Council. Many of her friends have made the proposition and she said yesterday she is giving the matter serious consideration.

Giving new life to the wet and dry campaign, the California Prosperity League announced yesterday that a woman's auxiliary is now working for members and it expects to secure the signatures of 10,000 leading ladies within two weeks. The men's organization has upwards of 100,000 members. New organizations are being effected in Pasadena, Long Beach and the San Fernando Valley. All of the members of these various organizations pledge themselves to work against the two Prohibition amendments to be voted upon next fall.

ARE WE SOON TO BECOME A RACE OF BALD-HEADED MEN?

PROF. JOHN H. AUSTIN

Bacteriologist, Hair and Scalp Specialist of Chicago, Who is Now at Hamburger's, Talks Most Interestingly About the Hair.

He says baldness is increasing rapidly among men and points out some of the reasons. Prof. Austin is probably right in saying that about one man in every hundred ever thinks about his hair at all, except to comb it two or three times a day. If it falls out, he looks anxiously at the falling hair, and then promptly forgets it until the next time he uses a comb.

A man will give the utmost attention to his teeth, because he knows that when trouble arises he will have more trouble and probably lose his teeth if he doesn't go to a dentist promptly. But his hair doesn't ache, it just gradually dies, and when it is nearly gone, and the roots are dead, he anxiously tries a dozen different remedies at once and then resigns himself to baldness.

According to Prof. Austin, there are something like 60 different conditions of the scalp and hair. Some are contagious. Others develop from neglect. Practically all of them are curable in the early stages.

Prof. Austin says the use of dandruff cures, mange cures and hair tonics is like taking medicines without knowing what you are trying to cure. The particular trouble with which your scalp is afflicted must be known before it can be intelligently treated.

Prof. Austin examines the roots of your hair with a powerful microscope. He finds out just what is the trouble with YOUR HAIR, and then he tells you what to do for the trouble.

It doesn't cost a penny for the examination, and it puts you under no obligation to follow his advice if you don't want to do so.

Prof. Austin has devoted thirty-seven years to studying the hair and scalp. Surely it will be worth the few minutes it takes to let him turn the microscope on your hair.

Hamburger's Says—

—Prof. John H. Austin, the eminent bacteriologist, hair and scalp specialist of Chicago, has been giving his expert service, advice and experience to Hamburger patrons for the last 18 months, and with a most phenomenal record of achievement. During that time he has examined the hair and scalp of thousands of men, women and children, numbering among his clients the foremost professional men and women of Los Angeles—and customers have come to him from every section of the great Southwest.

—The many letters of commendation and appreciation we've received from our patrons prompt us to take this opportunity of recomending him most highly to everyone who wishes to take advantage of his services—free of all obligation.

He will make FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATIONS of the hair and scalp all this week in his private office on the second floor, Hamburger's. Hours 10 to 12 a. m. and 2 to 4 p. m.

TO SAVE NOBLE HISTORIC PILE.

Mission Benefit Celebration Plans are Maturing.

"Candle Day" to Draw Throng to San Fernando.

Unrepaired, Church Would go to Ruin Next Winter.

August 6 thousands of loyal Californians from all sections of the Southland will journey to the Mission San Fernando Rey de Espana. They will go in memory of a band of intrepid discoverers who entered the beautiful valley 147 years ago, and to participate in an anniversary celebration as a result of which the fine old mission church, one of the noblest monuments of early California, is to be saved from ruin in next winter's rains.

Plans for the celebration, to be known as "Candle Day," are maturing rapidly under the direction of Miss Lucretia Del Valle, executive chairman, John S. McGroarty, vice-chairman of the Arrangements Committee, and Charles F. Lummis, president of the Landmarks Club of California.

THE DISCOVERERS.

August 6, 1769, Gov. Portola and Father Crespi, with an expedition of Spaniards, camped at San Fernando—the first white men who ever saw that enchanted valley. This was two days after they had come on the site of what is now the heart of Los Angeles. In no small sense their achievement is to be relived by those who will go by automobile, and by electric and steam railway excursion trains, to participate in the "Candle Day" ceremonies.

San Fernando will furnish a barbecue and a conspicuous part of the exercises will be the conducting of services by men and women of all creeds. But most important, perhaps, and romantic and suitable to the spirit of the day, will be the candles, that will burn while the services are in progress. Each will represent a donation of $1 or more toward the good work of saving the mission church from ruin, and on each will be stamped the name of the donor, who will be given a receipt—a memento of his part done in a worthy cause.

NEED IS URGENT.

Experts co-operating with the Landmarks Club have declared the church, which is falling into decay and is partly unroofed, so that unprotected adobe walls are exposed to the rains, cannot last through another winter unless extensive repairs are made. The funds accruing from the celebration will go for this work and for other reconstruction needed on the buildings of what was once the largest and most important of all the missions.

A touch of true romance is involved in the active part taken by Miss Del Valle in arranging for "Candle Day." Not only is she the leading lady of the "Mission Play," that has done much to revive interest in the romance of early Californian life, but her great-grandfather, a century ago, was the last administrator of San Fernando, and her labors have thus a personal interest that is unique.

It is expected, however, that every true Californian will join her and her coworkers in making the celebration a true and conspicuous success.

REDUCE GAS RATE.

Southern Counties Company Favors Industrial Enterprises with Quantity Rates—Harbor Business Profits by Reduction.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, July 15.—The Southern Counties Gas Company will announce a reduction in gas rates next week, according to Charles H. Dickey, district agent, when a deep cut will be made in quantity rates for business houses and industrial enterprises.

"When the State Railroad Commission fixes a minimum rate," said Mr. Dickey, "the rate for small consumers will be still further reduced. This is the only city in Southern California that does not have a minimum rate. The commission permitted us to reduce the rates without a hearing, but would not permit a minimum rate without a hearing. As soon as the hearing in Los Angeles is held it is probable that a minimum rate will also be fixed for San Pedro. This will permit a still further reduction in rates here.

"For the present our rate for the first 3000 feet will be $1.10 per thousand, this being a reduction of 15 cents over the present rate. For the next 7000 feet the rate will be 80 cents per thousand and from 10,000 to 50,000 feet the rate will range from 60 to 35 cents per thousand feet.

"This is a very low rate considering there is no minimum charge, and will bring the rate down to less than a dollar for all consumers who use 4000 feet or over."

Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association Advises Shipping Heads Now Negotiating with Strikers that Move to Foster Unionism Here Would be Fought—The Strike Believed Broken in the South.

SHIPPING leaders of Seattle and San Francisco yesterday were advised of sentiment in Los Angeles relative to negotiations for the ending of the longshoremen's strike, in the following telegram from the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association:

"Press reports this morning indicate you and other steamship lines running to Los Angeles Harbor are now negotiating with the union leaders at San Francisco, to re-employ union stevedores. Los Angeles Harbor, through the action of this union, has been tied up for six weeks and the merchants, manufacturers and business men of this city are now determined to prevent a recurrence of such a calamity. To this end they propose the harbor at Los Angeles shall henceforth be run on the open-shop plan. They will resent in no uncertain way the action of any steamship company that endeavors to foster or build up unionism at Los Angeles Harbor. Therefore we expect that if you are to return to union stevedores, you will confine your negotiations to San Francisco and not include Los Angeles Harbor in your arrangement.

"Merchants and Manufacturers' Association.
[Signed] "E. J. JUDAH, "President."

COMMUNITY MATTER.

"Los Angeles as a community," said Mr. Judah in commenting on the message, "is aroused to the fact that once and for all time we are through with dictation. If they conclude their negotiations at San Francisco by adopting the open-shop principle, it will be all right here and there will be no difficulty, but if they adopt the other course, the matter will be far from settled. If it comes to a show-down merchants and other business men of this city will do their shipping by rail."

The telegram was sent to J. C. Ford, Seattle, president of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company; Bennett and Godall, San Francisco, owners of the Pacific Navigation Company; Charles P. Doe, San Francisco, president and general manager of the North Pacific Steamship Company, and G. M. Blair, San Francisco, general manager of the San Francisco and Portland Steamship Company.

STRIKE SEEMS BROKEN.

With more than 600 men handling lumber unloaded from half a dozen vessels at the six lumber plants and two shipping wharves, employers at Los Angeles Harbor yesterday declared the strike of the longshoremen and lumber handlers broken in the South. When the Outer Harbor Dock and Wharf Company begins operations tomorrow with a large force, every company concerned in the strike will be employing large forces of independent workmen. A victory for the open shop was heralded from every busy plant.

Yesterday the union men balloted on the question of returning to work tomorrow under the old conditions of the open shop and at the same wages. Employers, however, had little interest in the vote, as the places of a large number of the strikers are already taken, and over 100 more men have been hired to go to work tomorrow. Walking delegates and other union heads are working feverishly to keep the union men from going to work.

WHAT PLANTS ARE DOING.

The conditions at the several plants yesterday were as follows:

Hammond Lumber Company: One hundred and seventy-five men were at work, practically a full crew. Many of the union men who foolishly left good jobs have petitioned to be taken back and some have been given their old places. The big steamship Edgar H. Vance, which brought over 2,000,000 feet of lumber to the wharf, was unloaded last night and started north again. The unloading was done in normal time. The steamer Davenport docked, and her cargo of almost 1,000,000 feet of lumber will be unloaded tomorrow. The steam schooner A. N. Simpson will arrive tomorrow with a cargo of lumber. There were no disturbances.

Consolidated Lumber Company—Work of moving the lumber about the yards and loading it on to cars progressed in normal fashion. About 160 men were working, all the company could keep busy yesterday. A few more men will be put on tomorrow. This yard has been working men continuously since the strike. There were no pickets outside the plant and no disturbances.

E. K. Wood Lumber Company—Fifty-five men are unloading the schooner Shasta, which brought 850,000 feet of lumber. More men were hired yesterday morning, and about a score more free workmen will be given places tomorrow. The schooner Tamalpais, owned by the company, will bring 650,000 feet of lumber today, and two more schooners of other lines will dock with lumber early in the week.

PICKETS VANISH.

Kerckhoff-Cuzner Lumber Company—Force of sixty-five men was moving lumber and preparing for the coming of the schooner Caroline with a large cargo tomorrow. More men have been hired for that day. An increase in the working force over that of Friday was noticed. Union pickets disappeared shortly after opening time and were not seen the remainder of the day.

San Pedro Lumber Company—The same force of about fifty men who started work Thursday were working about the yards. More men will be added tomorrow. The work was not disturbed in any way and quiet reigned.

Blinn Lumber Company—Forty men were busy filling rail orders. Operations will be begun on a wider scale tomorrow, when a lumber vessel is expected. No disorder.

Banning and Pacific wharves—Independent longshoremen and lumber handlers, about fifty of them, were busy unloading freight.

Manager A. T. Show of the Consolidated Lumber Company declared the strike did not exist, as far as his yard was concerned, and he believed the strike is broken here.

"If the other compa their yards open as solidated, conditions been even better than We have a full complem because we kept the ing and encouraged men work," he said.

"At one time we had pickets outside our yard persisted and now there bother our men. Had I advice of the police, I have opened the plant of the strike. We have and operating every strike."

The police do not ites were concerned in by incendiaries late two old rooming-houses Manuel Forria, a Portu longshoreman seen in the houses just before discovered, was arrest released early this

RETURNING REFUGEES TELL DIFFERENT STO

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, July 15.—Fifty-five more refugees, including many employees of the Southern Pacific Railroad of Mexico, arrived here today on the naval collier Nanshan from Guaymas and La Paz. With those who arrived yesterday on the steamer Centralia, a total of eighty have reached this port from Mexican points in two days.

A number of mining men and merchants were in the party. Mrs. Frank W. Moore, wife of the British Vice-Consul at La Paz, her four children and governess were passengers on the Nanshan and left this morning for Los Angeles.

With regard to treatment by Mexicans, Max Marks, a mining man and hotel proprietor at Hermosillo, declared that every consideration was shown to Americans in that district by Mexican officials. He said a majority of the refugees had left Mexico at the urgent request of American representatives following the recent acute situation between the two republics.

J. B. Finley, assistant general superintendent of the Mexican division of the Southern Pacific, one of the arrivals, said he and most of his remaining employees at Empalme, near Guaymas, had been off shore since June 19, having gone aboard the cruiser Cleveland at Guaymas.

"The railway was still being operated, mostly by the military authorities, who employed Mexicans for the purpose," said Finley. "We still have men there who keep a check on the that a claim can later the Mexican governm

SPEEDING PREACHER.

Pastor Arrested at Pomona, but He Convinces Judge of Innocence and Escapes Fine—Fine Angeleno Home Goes to Monrovian.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, July 15.—A Riverside pastor, Rev. J. J. Cox, appeared before Judge Burr's "speed court" this morning, charged with violating the civic traffic ordinance, but the judge decided Rev. Mr. Cox had not broken the local laws, and so suspended the $5 fine that is assessed all who drive motor cars at more than thirty miles an hour through the city streets.

Others, however, were not so lucky. N. McArthur of Santa Monica was fined $5 for speeding, as was E. R. Just, of Los Angeles, and S. A. Sargent of Monrovia. A. E. Tomlinson of Ocean Park and J. R. Ford of Los Angeles evidently thought it too far to come for a small fine, and failed to appear. They will be urged to attend. J. W. Caldon of San Francisco motored through Monrovia and a faulty muffler cost him $3.

H. Owesmey, another Angeleno bent upon fast driving, was fined $10. but proved to the justice that his speedometer was wrong and the judge suspended sentence.

BUYS LOS ANGELES HOME.

Mrs. J. J. Walsh, owner of Longford House, one of the finest estates in Monrovia, has just purchased the big A. Eckstrom residence in the Wilshire district. The house has twenty rooms and is finished in imported woods and silk tapestries. Mrs. Walsh will continue, for the present at least, to make her home in this city.

WOULD TRAIN FOR WAR.

Under the direction of Mrs. Dollie Best and Mrs. Joseph Pottenger, a training school for nurses will be started here Monday, with Miss Lida Anderson, a Red Cross nurse, fresh from a year and a half at Vienna, as instructor. Elementary hygiene, home care of the sick and first aid to the injured will be taught in the course, which is calculated to be of special value to the home, but which will also fit young women for further Red Cross training in war service. The course is directed from Washington, and is under governmental supervision. About twenty-five are expected to take up the work here.

ACCUSED OF KIDNAPING.

Motion-Picture Man Denied Wife's Right to Children.

Charged with kidnaping his two children from his wife's home in New York City over eight months ago, Henry B. Bredeson, connected with the Mutual Motion Picture Company, was arrested at his home, No. 1476 Sunset boulevard, late last night by Detectives Winn and McNamara.

Bredeson, who will be returned to New York City some time next week, declared last night that he did not kidnap the children, as his wife, from whom he was separated, had not been given the custody of the children by any court.

Riverside Chamber Gives Big Picnic to Thousand.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, July 15.—After two days of digging in a clay dump in search of $1400 in currency which it is alleged C. A. Wheeler, a Santa Fe freight conductor, hid in a car of clay consigned from Alberhill to Corona, Sheriff Wilson returned with Wheeler from Corona this evening without securing any trace of the missing money.

The railroad man was arrested a week ago on suspicion following the disappearance of $1400 from the Wells-Fargo office at Murietta, where it was placed on the counter preparatory to being forwarded to a Los Angeles bank.

When the agent's daughter, after turning her back for a moment, returned to pack up the coin, it had disappeared. The freight train had pulled out by this time, and before Wheeler reached San Bernardino he was placed under arrest.

It is understood the conductor confessed to the theft to his attorney, for Wheeler accompanied the Sheriff to Corona to aid in the search. It is thought probable that Mexican laborers who unloaded the clay may have come across the money.

Wheeler's arrest is understood to have foiled his plan to finish his run to San Bernardino and take an automobile from that point to Corona, where he could await the arrival of the car and secure the cash.

INDIAN INSTITUTE.

Lecturers prominent in State and Federal institutions will address the institute for instructors in the Indian service, which will open at Sherman Institute on Monday. Superintendent F. M. Conser expects a greater number of superintendents than were present here two years ago, although the total enrollment, 204, may not be reached this year.

A feature of the institute will be the presence of Hon. Cato Sells, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, who is scheduled for an address and who will be the guest of honor at a Chamber of Commerce banquet during the week.

The lecturers include Edward Hyatt, State Superintendent of Public Instruction; E. P. Clarke, president of the State Board of Education; Hon. Levi Chubbuck, United States Department of Agriculture; I. B. McBeth, United States Department of Agriculture; Joseph H. Daniels, librarian Riverside public library; A. N. BIG BOOSTER PICNIC.

Nearly one thousand persons gathered in Fairmount Park last evening on the occasion of the picnic arranged by the Chamber of Commerce, and fully 600 grouped themselves about the tables reserved for the chamber's guests to hear the address of Dr. H. J. Webber, dean of the State Citrus Experiment Station.

Dr. Webber took for his theme the purposes and plans of the "Members' Council," a feature of the newly-organized Chamber of Commerce, and referred to the efficiency of the present organization, as reflected in the successful efforts to land three State conventions for this city, gatherings which will leave not less than $50,000 in the hands of the merchants and hotel and lodging-house proprietors.

FRANCIS ON EDUCATION.

The evils of politically-run schools, was the keynote of an address delivered by John A. Francis, former superintendent of the Los Angeles city schools, at the summer library school here last evening. He declared that too much system is ruinous to schools, and that a forward-looking attitude on the subject of education will not only pay financially, but give the child an opportunity to work out his own salvation, thus raising the national standards morally and spiritually as well.

BULL UNINFORMED.

Safety-swords to be Used but Only One Side of Combatants Is Let in on the Secret—Fiesta at Venice is Today's Big Feature.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, July 15.—A bull-fight which will be conducted according to Spanish traditions with the exception that it will be bloodless will be the principal feature of a fiesta to be held Sunday afternoon in the Race Thru the Clouds, inclosure. The toreadors will go into the ring with the tips of their swords sheathed and the contest will be decided on points.

The horns of the bulls, however, will not be padded and thus the animals have the advantage over the men in that there is no guarantee that the human antagonists will not be injured.

Antonio Rizos Moreno, a matador who has been through hundreds of encounters in the wire inclosure, will lead the toreadors to battle. Four frisky bulls have been provided for the occasion and an exciting entertainment is expected.

Twelve Spanish young women will open the fiesta with dances, songs and ballads of old Spain. A Spanish band will provide the music. A street parade will precede the fiesta.

A fireworks display was held this evening and others have been arranged for each succeeding Saturday evening through the summer season. The display will be given at 8:30 p.m., following the band concert, at the end of the Windward-avenue pier.

ASK BORDWELL TO WITHDRAW.

Orange County Republicans Indorse Booth.

Send Resolutions to Judge Urging Retirement.

Name New Central Chairman to Fill Vacancy.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, July 15.—Members of the Republican County Central Committee of Orange County this afternoon, as friends of Judge Walter Bordwell, adopted a resolution urging him to withdraw from the race for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. In a separate resolution the Central Committee gave its indorsement to the candidacy of Willis H. Booth for the nomination.

The resolution, as presented by Attorney R. Y. Williams and as adopted by the unanimous vote of the meeting, follows:

"Be it resolved, by the Republican County Central Committee of the county of Orange, State of California, that, in view of the importance to the Republican party of this State and nation that California be represented in the United States Senate by a sterling Republican, and, notwithstanding we have the very highest regard for Judge Walter Bordwell, both as a man and as a sterling Republican, we do believe that at this time no good purpose can be served, either to Judge Bordwell or to the Republican party, by his continued candidacy for nomination by the Republican party for the office of United States Senator. We do believe, however, that in case he shall remain in the fight for that nomination it will tend only to defeat the wishes of a great majority of the judge's very best friends in the State, and will not accomplish the purpose which the judge seeks by said candidacy, viz.: his own nomination.

"We, therefore, with the very kindest feelings toward Judge Bordwell and with our assurance that we are his true friends, respectfully ask him to not permit his name to be used as a candidate for said office in the ensuing primary election."

GOOD SHOWING.

"Mr. Booth has been in the race for several months," said Attorney Williams in introducing the resolution, "and he has developed great strength. As a citrus fruit-growing county we are deeply interested in the election of a Republican to the United States Senate. I cannot help feeling that it would be a mistake to weaken in any way the splendid campaign that Mr. Booth has gotten under way. We are all of us very friendly to Judge Bordwell. We admire him and under different circumstances he would certainly have our support."

At the meeting of the Central Committee today the resignation of J. W. Duckworth as chairman of the Central Committee was received and regretfully accepted. Mr. Duckworth's health is such that he had to give up the position. The vacancy in the chairmanship was filled by the selection of Walter Eden of Santa Ana, deputy District Attorney J. S. Howard of Anaheim was elected as central committeeman in Mr. Duckworth's place.

WATTS PLANNING IMPROVEMENTS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WATTS, July 15.—The improvement of Main street, the principal business street of this city, is to be considered at the next meeting of the Board of Trustees on Tuesday evening. Paving, curbing, and lighting will be discussed and the present condition of the road shown, with the evident need for improvement.

Further resolutions were passed at the last meeting to insure the improvement of Fifth boulevard from the south line of Shorb avenue to the north line of Sunland avenue and the construction of sidewalks upon this street.

CAR BARNS.

The car barns of the Pacific Electric for the southern division are to be situated at Watts and application has been made to the oBard of Trustees for the vacation of a portion of the land lying along Morton avenue for that purpose. Some years ago it was hoped that the barns would be placed here but the action was not taken at that time by the Pacific Electric Company.

SCHOOL TROUBLE.

Discussion is much in evidence in this city over the shortening of the Watts school term on account of the shortage of school funds. A political campaign for the members of the school board seems to bear upon the matter.

OHIOANS FROLIC AT EXPOSITION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, July 15.—Thousands of former Ohioans from all parts of Southern California visited the exposition today on Ohio day. A picnic dinner in the pepper grove, a reception in the woman's headquarters and a programme of music and speeches at the organ was the order today. Judge William A. Spill was the speaker. The Ohio people will celebrate throughout the coming week.

Tonight 1000 employees of Los Angeles stores danced on the Plaza de Panama at a moonlight ball. The clerks left Los Angeles this afternoon when the stores closed and arrived this evening in time for the dance. These two events and the close of the commercial car contest at the exposition this noon when twenty trucks arrived from Los Angeles, made the day one of the largest at the fair for months.

Corona.

CORONA DISPLEASED BY HIGHWAY EXPENDITURES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CORONA, July 15.—The Corona Chamber of Commerce heard a report of the committee appointed to investigate the expenditure of the $1,125,000 bond issue by the Riverside County Highway Commission on roads in this county.

John W. Craig, chairman of the committee, has been spending several months going over the books of the commission and attempted to discover why it has been found necessary to vote $250,000 more bonds before a little strip of road between Corona and Elsinore can be constructed, when allowance has already been made for this work.

W. C. McCully, representing the Flagler interests here, stated that from the investigations that had been made he favored an injunction against further road work in Riverside county, stating that this step would result in getting an accounting which could be relied upon as being accurate.

F. H. Ott felt that $77,000 had either been appropriated or misappropriated and he was of the opinion that an effort should be made to get it. The books of the commission show that there is but $5659.54 left for the building of the Corona-Elsinore road, but it has been found, said Ott, that there is now available $77,169 with which to build this road.

Corona believes it has been made the "goat" in this road-building proposition and a mass meeting has been called for next Thursday evening, when the taxpayers will have an opportunity to express themselves, and steps will be taken to raise money with which to fight the commission.

The committee says:

"We are abundantly convinced that there are proper and available funds at present in the treasury of the county which are available for the construction of the Corona-Elsinore road.

"We would advise the employment of an expert accountant to examine further into many matters otherwise not easily accessible to this committee."

The outcome of the $1,125,000 bond issue has been thoroughly discussed and the Corona-Elsinore people believe it is time they were taking a hand in the expenditures of the money and demand recognition in the matter of having their road built.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS FEARED BY TROOPERS.

SAN BERNARDINO, July 15.—Stricken with what is suspected by local physicians to be a case of adult infantile paralysis, Leonard Peterson, age 22, of Mount Pleasant, Utah, a private in the First Cavalry, Utah National Guards, was taken from a troop train here today and isolated at the County Hospital while Dr. Thomas McHugh investigated the case.

Meanwhile Surgeon Johnson of the troop train has taken every means to prevent the spread of the disease among other troopers. Surgeon Johnson stated tonight before the departure of the train for Arizona that if the disease proved to be infantile paralysis the army may be confronted with a serious problem, although he believes it unlikely that other troopers are infected.

According to the physicians, the percentage of cases of this disease among adults is but one-half of one per cent.

The troop train left Utah Thursday morning. Friday morning Peterson was stricken and both legs were paralyzed. Surgeon Johnson immediately isolated the case in the baggage car and telegraphed to this city for an ambulance to meet the train.

Less than hour elapsed between the time Peterson was stricken and his removal to the baggage car. Clothing and bedding and the baggage car were disinfected here.

SKULL FRACTURED.

Struck by a street car near Twenty-sixth street and Grand avenue late last night, a man believed by the police to be F. A. Robinson or George Stoffel, was rushed to the Receiving Hospital and treated for a fracture of the skull. The injured man, according to the police who investigated the accident, walked in front of the car and, according to them, may have been attempting to end his life. Letters were found in his clothing addressed to George Stoffel and also to F. A. Robinson.

POMONA INCREASE IN POPULATION.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, July 15.—Although the population of this city has increased steadily since the last census, the kindergarten school enrollment has dwindled from 162 to 148 since 1914. That year it was 162, in 1915 it was 166, and this year it was 148. At the same time the district has cut down the cost of instruction so that it now costs only $31.72 a year to teach a kindergarten pupil, while it cost $61.52 per pupil for instruction in 1914. It is refreshing to find that although the average daily attendance in the kindergarten had decreased, the cost of conducting the kindergarten has been nearly cut in twain.

While the grade school attendance jumped from 1655 to 1805 from 1914 to 1916 the cost per head for instruction dwindled from $48.26 to $35.90, and while the High School attendance jumped from 478 to 539, the cost of instruction was reduced from $110.10 to $81.07 between 1914 and 1916.

This city educated 3000 pupils per year for an outlay of $1000 each of the 162 days in the school year. The value of property owned by the school district is half a million dollars.

THE MARCH OF EVENTS.

XXXVth YEAR. SUNDAY MORNING, JULY 16, 1916. POPULATION By the Federal Census [illegible] By the City Directory [illegible]

Preparing.

INTENSE PRACTICALITY MARKS WORK AT THE MONTEREY CAMP.

Under a Surface Stratum of Humor Men of Steady Purpose Attack Bulky Array of Martial Lore—Spirit and Quality of Civilian Soldiers Inspiring.

HERE are some of the practical things civilians are doing at the military training camp at Monterey:

Road building is studied in the field.

Pontoon bridge construction is to be taught by the actual felling, dressing and assembling of the timber utilized.

Use of field maps is demonstrated in practice.

Measurement by pacing off distances up to a mile and rudimentary map-making must be mastered.

Infantry trench work is being learned by actually "digging in."

Real temporary barriers are erected to baffle theoretical cavalry charges.

Care of the rifle is taught and target practice demonstrates its use.

Physical drill, marching, tent pitching, the making and breaking of camp and the loading and unloading of wagons are taught by actual practice.

Camp sanitation, first aid to the injured, personal hygiene and care of troops in the field are included in the instruction.

A specialized corps is being thoroughly grounded in military aviation work.

Signaling must be mastered.

Theoretical instruction deals with the tactical organization of the United States military force, food supply, the psychology of war and the military history of the country.

Tooting a fish-horn with merry [illegible], a Greek vendor of garden [illegible] passed along a roadway at Monterey yesterday. The lilt of the [illegible] play was infectiously spirited. There was even something martial about it.

Across a fence lay the tented streets of the civilians' military training camp, where Uncle Sam is drilling soldierly lore into the heads of 1200-odd business and professional men of California. The peddler paused to honk his little tune toward the camp, and so he saw a strange sight. The tent-city took on the activity of a disturbed ant-[illegible] men rushed about, carrying [illegible] and buckling on equipment, [illegible] scurried into hastily-formed [illegible]. The startled peddler jerked [illegible] horses' heads, prepared for [illegible]. Then a shout of laughter [illegible] the commotion; the peddler [illegible] on, and three whole companies of "rookies," who had mistaken the fish-horn for a bugle, man[illegible] their best to face the gale [illegible].

[illegible] lighter side of it—the [illegible] lies on the surface. Beneath is a seriousness of purpose, determination and pluck that [illegible] impressed army and [illegible] observers alike. The splendid [illegible] of those 1200 cadets pervades the camp like a living thing.

ON THEIR METTLE.

Regular army officers, instructors for the time, have voiced their astonishment at the quality and mettle of their pupils. They had apparently expected men of less than average physical condition, who would be restive under military restraint and unwilling to perform a soldier's manual labor about the camp. What they have found, however, is men who ask as a favor all the rigors of strict military discipline, who are of an unusually high average physically and who take a pride in serving and suffering the "hardening process" in silence.

Half the cadets are former college men and scores of them could cover their breasts with medals won on athletic fields.

These men have undertaken their work with singleness of mind. The blistering heat of the ankle-deep sand on the parade ground is a detail. So are sunburn and the fatigue of drill. Minds are engrossed instead with the opening vista of martial learning and the rivalries that sprang up almost overnight when mobilization at the camp began.

Then there is the lure held forth by Maj.-Gen. J. Franklin Bell, commanding the Western Department, U.S.A. He has said several thousand men from the training camps would receive commissions in case of actual war. That is a spur that makes many a "rookey" forget blistered toes.

The rivalries are also salutary. The cadets are grouped into companies according to ages, and the result has been watched with interest. The activity of the younger recruits counts, but the older have almost to a man seen some sort of previous military service, and a few hours after they got their hands on their Springfield rifles they were maneuvering like veterans.

Something like real action has already been experienced. The aviation corps has met the polo players of Del Monte and has vanquished them. The polo field is within the limits of the camp and yesterday was held by the flying contingent by right of conquest, after the pony-riders had given up competition with the swooping aeroplanes.

The cadets of the corps, most of whom come from Southern California, draw a lion's share of visitors' interest. The detachment receives its instruction from Lieut. H. LeR. Muller, U.S.A., and its enthusiasm from Cadets Earle Remington and C. F. O'Brien, both of this city and president and vice-president, respectively, of the Southern California Aeronautical Association. These gingery fliers and their satellites have discarded rifles and bayonets for monkey wrenches and screw drivers, and are assembling four aeroplanes on the grounds.

Early training has come out like the hives on the recruits. Eric Kobbe of Pasadena, whose father is a retired major-general of the regular army, has taken to camp life like a duck to water and seems to know most of the interesting things the ever-busy bugles are saying. Tom Donohue, who in civil life is an athlete of unusual parts, has demonstrated an ability to shuffle sand and juggle a rifle all day and still hold the edge on the arnica and talcum powder division at nightfall.

A prominent figure in the camp streets is the towering form of Everett R. Perry, the Los Angeles Public librarian, who is not above drinking out of hand from a faucet and is in line, as all are, for "kitchen police"—honorary duty as waiter or dishwasher. Then there is Dr. W. C. Klotz, ordinarily resident physician at the Barlow Sanatorium, but just at present a much-sought friend of the boys with blisters and sunburn. He has demonstrated he has the true soldier's knack of keeping well-groomed in the field, with a razor, cold water and a bit of cracked glass to combat persistent whiskers.

He is one of the very few pro-

HIGH PRIVATE IS KING IN MONTEREY SOCIETY.

MONTEREY is a paradise for the fifty noncommissioned officers of the regular army who are detailed as instructors at the civilians' military training camp. Concurrently, the bay-side city is the Armageddon of long-prized social traditions of army life.

Seldom if ever have so many "privates" been assembled with so much money in their clothes. The camp limits have been indulgently extended to embrace Hotel Del Monte, the city of Monterey and the famous seventeen-mile drive. And there are about fifty automobiles in camp, that are requistioned for moonlight rides when the day of drill and more drill is ended.

All this has brought about unusual conditions. Monterey society has discovered the high private in the rear rank may be, at home, a millionaire or a scientist or an artist. So smiles fall as freely on the enlisted men as on the officers. In fact, the seaside beauties are especially attentive to the man of the ranks for the chances he is a plutocrat or a celebrity far outstrip those in favor of the West Pointer.

And it is this condition that makes Monterey heaven for the regular noncommissioned officers. The civilian powers of discernment seldom separate them from the cadets of the camp, and the "noncoms" are getting a lion's share of attention—for one can never tell when she may be entertaining a capitalist in khaki. For once in their lives the sergeants and corporals socially outrank their superior officers.

The great attraction for the cadets is the ballroom and cafe of the Del Monte Hotel. Twelve hours each day the men live in the camp proper, eating army rations and drilling with a persistency that is never required in the regular service. Then come the moonlight on the bay and the music, and the refreshments and seductions of the hotel. No matter what the day's duties have been the mobilization at the Del Monte is on with a vim as soon as the sunset gun has sounded.

MORAL HYGIENE APOSTLE HERE.

Woman Wants Good Character Moulded in Schools.

Compulsory Instruction Laws Everywhere, Her Plan.

Declares Home is not Place to Get Best Results.

That children may be trained in right habits of thought and action and taught to determine for themselves questions of right and wrong, that they may become more God-fearing, law-abiding citizens, is the object of Mrs. Sara Walrath Lyons of New York City, who is touring the Pacific Coast in an effort to arouse the people of the West to the necessity of the inclusion of moral hygiene in the curricula of the public schools.

Mrs. Lyons is the author of the Jones-Simpson bill, now pending in the New York Senate, which provides "for instructing the pupils of the public schools in the subject of moral hygiene, the object of which shall be to develop character in the child of such standard as to insure good citizenship expressed in truth in speech, justice in action, regard and observance of law, polite and courteous manner, chastity of life and that heart culture necessary for the creation of high ideals."

Mrs. Lyons is also the founder of the National Child Conservation League, an organization that projests against a national school system which makes no provision for the study of moral hygiene.

FOR CONSTRUCTIVE WORK.

"The National Child Conservation League," said Mrs. Lyons yesterday, "sees the need of establishing a course of instruction in moral hygiene in the schools of this country, that this study should be considered of equal importance with other branches of study. We believe constructive work must be done in shaping the thoughts of the child that the right habits may be formed. We know that the study of this subject places within the hands of little children power, thorough understanding, and enables them to save themselves from error."

"The public," said Mrs. Lyons, "does not appreciate the fact that the national government last year spent $75,000,000 for educational purposes. It also forgets that many times this amount is spent each year for the upkeep of penal institutions and the building of new jails for persons who become criminal when they are children simply because they lack training in honesty.

"I shall make an effort," she continued, "to draft for every State in the Union a law similar to the one now pending in New York.

"Some people cry, 'The home is the place to train the child in right ways of life.' That is perfectly true when there are wise and good parents, and when the home is free from the contaminating influences of debased minds, but there are tenement homes where there are large families, and poor, probably uninstructed parents whose efforts at self-support entirely monopilze their time and minds, and the children have small chance of adequate moral training. If these tenement children have no moral training except what is occasionally and incidentally given by a teacher, it is time the matter should receive the attention of the State in ways positive and mandatory."

Mrs. Lyons is widely known as a specialist on foods, and was for several years a lecturer of the public lecture course of the Board of Education of New York City. She was in this course six consecutive seasons, and later became affiliated with the W.C.T.U., being the New York County Superintendent of that organization's department of health and heredity.

It was in this connection that she became interested in the welfare of children, and in the season of 1910 she visited more than sixty large cities in the interest of the children of the New York tenements. She addressed audiences from pulpits and stirred pastors to deliver sermons upon the betterment of children. After three years of careful study she drafted the Jones-Simpson bill, and it is now pending before the New York Senate Committee on Public Education.

The bill is in part as follows: "The subject of moral hygiene shall be taught in all schools under State control, or supported wholly or in part by public money of the State, with special reference to the symmetrical development of the mental, moral and physical being of the pupil, and instruction in moral hygiene shall also be given in all schools connected with reformatory institutions in co-ordination with the instruction in other branches of knowledge taught in each such school. This study shall not be construed by teachers or trustees of schools, or by boards of education, to mean a study in school incidental to some other established course of study, but shall be ranked of equal importance as such studies, in order that character development in the child may go hand in hand with book knowledge. Questions of right and wrong, those requiring correction by the teacher, which are of a nature to be discussed in class (and which come to the teacher's attention in connection with school duties,) may be discussed at length, in class, children giving their views of the subject under discussion, at the next lesson, in written form. Pupils must pass satisfactory tests and examinations in this subject, moral hygiene, as in other studies, before promotion to the succeeding year's work."

Mrs. Lyons hopes to secure the enactment of such a law in California before she leaves the State. She has been visiting in Los Angeles the past week and is now en route to San Francisco. Thence she will go to Sacramento and thence to the more important cities of Oregon and Washington.

BANKRUPTCY PETITIONS.

E. Clarke Comer, a real estate and insurance man of this city, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court yesterday. In his schedule he gives his liabilities as $38,688.91 and his assets as $4656.57, of which $4250 is the alleged value of his real estate. J. L. Starr, a farmer, scheduled debts amounting to $4220.85, in the bankruptcy court yesterday, giving his assets as $7985, of which $5525 is given as the value of his real estate holdings.

New York woman who has turned from a scientific study of dietetics to head a movement for compulsory instruction in moral hygiene in all schools throughout the United States. She plans to draft a law to that effect, for introduction before the California Legislature.

Cool Quartette.

TRAPPED, BURGLARS CUT HOLE IN ROOF; ESCAPE.

While doughty deputy sheriffs and constables battered and cut at the doors of the Fowler general store in Duarte early yesterday morning, nervy burglars cut a hole in the roof.

The last of a quartette of cool desperadoes was disappearing through the aperture when the first of the officers entered the store. Practically all of the officers, who had surrounded the place, massed to rush the store, from which several shots had been fired.

Consequently the burglars were able to dash over the roofs of two adjacent sheds, jump into a waiting automobile and get away toward Los Angeles before the officers fully recovered from the shock of the sudden disappearance heavenward.

The Fowler store was so brightly lighted shortly after 12 o'clock Friday night that a country lad returning home from his tryst with a country lass stopped to investigate. What he saw hurried him to his home, whence he telephoned Constable Quigley of Monrovia, saying four men were looting the store.

Hastily gathering several deputies and calling the Sheriff's office, the Constable started for the store. The officers arrived in time to find the burglars still at work. The intruders were not friendly, as evidenced by several shots at the officers. When reinforced by Deputy Sheriffs Sweesy, Cooper and Loving, the posse charged the door in time to see the escape.

A running fight ensued, the desperadoes using rifles and revolvers against shot guns and revolvers of the officers. They managed to cross the San Gabriel River wash in their car and elude pursuit. Cash and stamps from the broken cash register was all that they got away with.

COUSIN OF BETSY ROSS WEAVING SILKEN FLAG.

John W. Selsor, a veteran of the Civil War and third cousin to Betsy Ross, has felt impelled since the outbreak of the Mexican trouble, to weave a flag which shall closely resemble the one made by his famous kinswoman. This flag is to be exhibited in some public place in the city for the purpose of stirring up patriotism and then will be sent to the Betsy Ross Association of Philadelphia.

The flag is to be made entirely of silk, woven upon a background of canvas, and when finished will present a heavy and lustrous appearance on both sides. It is to have only thirteen stars. Mr. Selsor estimates that when finished, the flag will be four feet long and three wide and the cost of the thread alone will be $50. It will take the weaver a month to make the flag, counting a working day as eight hours.

Mr. Selsor uses an old-fashioned quilting frame for his loom and stands all day beside the canvas stretched upon it and weaves his designs. He does not use patterns for any of his work, but makes rugs and tapestries with the most accurate designs. He is 72 years of age and yet does not wear spectacles.

For the past seven years, Mr. Selsor has been an inmate of the National Soldiers' Home. He was a member of Co. C, Twentieth Pennsylvania Cavalry, and Co. A, One Hundred and Ninety-eighth Pennsyvania Volunteers. He comes of a family of soldiers who for five generations have been in America and have fought in the four great wars of the country. Betsy Ross was his grandmother's cousin and his great-grandfather was in Washington's army.

NEW INDUSTRY AT THIS PORT.

Steam Schooner Construction will Start Soon.

Largest Craft of Their Kind to be Laid Down.

Revival of Wooden Ship and Sail Days Forecast.

Dawning of a new era at Los Angeles Harbor is forecast, to begin tomorrow, when a vessel from San Francisco will deliver here heavy timbers destined to become backbone and ribs of one of two big steam schooners, that will be the first ever constructed at this port. This new Southern California industry is expected to be but a part of a great revival of construction of large wooden vessels, with perhaps a return to sail-power for ocean freighters under certain conditions.

The contracts to build the two largest steam schooners ever laid down on the Pacific Coast were recently let to Charles E. Fulton, descendant of the builder of the first steamboat and himself a well-known constructor, with headquarters at the harbor. One of these boats is to be owned and operated by Sudden and Christenson, the other by J. R. Hanify & Co., both Washington lumber firms. Heretofore all large vessels for the lumber trade on this Coast have been built at San Francisco or at some Washington or Oregon port. Men in the business declare the importance of the innovation at this harbor can hardly be overestimated.

Though Hanify & Co. has already started a steam schooner south with timbers for the construction work, the laying of the keels will not be undertaken for two weeks. The whole job, it is expected, will be completed in eight months. The boats will be used in the coast lumber trade. Each will have a carrying capacity of 1,500,000 feet.

The vessels were designed by D. W. and R. Z. Dickie of San Francisco. Each is to cost $112,000 and to be 235 feet long and forty-four feet wide, with a hold depth of seventeen feet. An unusual feature will be the placing of engines on the upper decks. Oregon pine will be the chief building material used.

At present all work at the Fulton plant is concentrated on preparing accommodations required for wooden vessels of such unusual size. One third of the shop, called the "lean-to," has been torn off and the offices and stockrooms removed from the first floor to an addition upstairs. The dock will be seventy-two feet wide and 180 long. It will be permanent.

The lumber steamers will be able to land in the 40-foot water at the end of the dock without any trouble. The lumber will be run directly into the shop, where it will be resawed on the immense bandsaw now being set up. From the band-saw the timber will be picked up by two huge derricks and swung onto the construction work, which will save much cost in labor.

The boats will be built with their sterns together, extending from one edge of Mr. Fulton's property to the lagoon. From 100 to 125 men will be employed in constructing the two ships.

"There is a tendency to go back to large wooden vessels," said Claud C. Smith, secretary to Mr. Fulton, yesterday. "Not only the increased price on steel, due to the call for such material by governments for building submarines and other war craft, is responsible for this. It was estimated that steel boats would stand up 100 years. As a matter of fact they corrode and do not always outlast the fifty-year limit set for a wooden boat. We will go back even one step farther, according to one shipbuilder, who believes sails will again replace steam power."

In the State of Washington when he was a boy of 23 Mr. Fulton built for Sudden and Christenson the "Cecelia Sudden," a four-mast schooner, famous for her speed and carrying capacity. Because of the reputation thus established Mr. Fulton, during a trip to San Francisco for securing another contract, met one of the firm of Sudden and Christenson and was given the contract for the two schooners.

FIRE DEPARTMENT'S BUDGET TO BE CUT.

FINANCE COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN MAKES COMMENT.

Says Mayor Sebastian "Blows Hot and Cold" on Question of Cutting Down Expenses and Trimming Tax Rate and Refers to Recent Economy Message.

Referring to the Mayor's message to the Council a few days ago urging strictest economy in all departments, Chairman Wheeler of the Budget Committee discussed the refusal of the Fire Commission to trim its budget $40,000 as requested by the Council.

"Mayor Sebastian first blows hot and then blows cold on the subject of keeping down expenses," said Chairman Wheeler. "The attitude of the Fire Commission in this matter is astonishing, to say the least. Even before the ink is dry on his signature to a message calling for economy, we receive another letter over his signature in which there is a refusal to reduce the expenses of the fire department."

The paragraph referred to by Mr. Wheeler in the Mayor's message, said:

"I have no patience with any public official who attempts to argue against economy and a lowering of taxes on the ground that such a measure will diminish the efficiency of his department."

The question of reducing the number of fire companies to provide the $40,000 called for to cover salary increases made mandatody by the two-platoon ordinance, was referred back to the Budget Committee.

The Fire Commission's letter to the Council, after mentioning the Council Budget Committee's request that the commission designate which fire stations shall be closed to make the further cut of $40,000 in the budget, says:

"In this connection we, as a committee of the whole, desire earnestly and vigorously to protest against further impairment of the efficiency of the fire department for the reasons set forth in protest of the Chief hereto attached, and also the further fact that the saving effected by the elimination of fire stations is false economy, due to the fact that insurance rates are based in proportion to the fire hazard incurred, and the payment of additional insurance premium will affect home owners as readily and directly as the payment of taxes.

"We feel that the responsibility for not being able to afford fire protection should rest with your honorable body rather than with this board, as the curtailment of funds means less men, less fire stations and less efficiency.

"The preservation of life and property, also the inducement of industries to lie within our city, should be given greater consideration than the reduction of the tax rate by some portion of a mill. While we anticipate your desire to economize, and fully indorse the movement for as low a rate as possible for the taxpayers, yet means other than the curtailment of public safety measures must be open, and we therefore urge that the reduction stated be restored and that the present service be not further impaired."

The letter is signed by Mayor Sebastian and Commissioners Yates and Frankenstein.

FIRST DEPUTY CHIEF.

A NEW TITLE FOR HOME.

Assistant Chief of Police George Home will be known officially as "First Deputy Chief of Police" as soon as the Council can enact an ordinance changing the title of the position.

This change will be made at the request of Assistant Chief Home so that the Civil Service Commission may be asked to exempt the position from civil service in accordance with the charter provision that the first and second deputies in an office may be exempted on vote of the commission and approved by a majority of the Council. It is understood that the Civil Service Commission discovered a few days ago that it "overlooked a bet" in permitting the appointment of Mr. Home to be made by the Mayor.

Survey is Promised.

Promising that whatever order the State Railroad Commision makes after hearing the appeals of Los Angeles for settlement of the grade crossing situation will be "thorough and effective," Secretary Charles R. Detrick of the commission informed the City Council that a survey will be undertaken at once. This survey will be made by the chief engineer of the commission and it will likely take several weeks or possibly, months.

BATTLE FOR STOCK OF TWO COMPANIES.

AND FOR DAMAGES FROM UATH MILLIONAIRE.

Alleged Unjust Partnership Tactics Give Rise to Suit Involving Los Angeles and Mormon State Corporations—Twin Receivership Application and Legal Kinks.

A suit involving the stock of the Los Angeles Mortgage Company and the Utah Lake, Land, Water and Power Company and the determination of certain legal questions was filed yesterday by G. M. Henderson, through Attorney Thomas Ball, against the two corporations and M. B. Whitney of Utah. It is alleged in the complaint that Mr. Whitney, said to be a Utah millionaire, owned all of the stock of the Utah Lake, Land, Water and Power Company last January, when he had an agreement with Mr. Henderson to reorganize the corporation.

Under this agreement, Mr. Henderson alleges, he was to have become sole owner of the company as soon as Mr. Whitney could withdraw $200,000 from it or when Mr. Henderson should have paid him $200,000. In the reorganization plan, Mr. Henderson alleges, he acquired 95 per cent. of the stock of the Los Angeles Mortgage Company. His plan was to use the assets of the Los Angeles company to liquidate the debts of the Utah corporation. Mr. Whitney, he says, took control of the company and spent only about $5000 for the benefit of the partnership, and retained the remainder.

Mr. Henderson asks that the stock of both corporations be turned over to him. He also asks that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the assets of the partnership and that a receiver be appointed for the mortgage company while it is in liquidation. Damages from Mr. Whitney are also demanded.

DEMURRER UPHELD.

IN MORTGAGE FIGHT.

Judge Taft yesterday sustained a demurrer to the complaint of Kathryn and Henry A. Colt against William Koeberle to cancel a note and a mortgage. The note and mortgage were obtained by the defendant, who is alleged to have called on Mrs. Colt during the absence of her husband. He was accompanied by a constable, and Mrs. Colt says she signed the note and mortgage because she was afraid her goods would be set out on the pavement and carted away.

Mr. Colt knew nothing about the occurrence, it is alleged, and did not sign the note and mortgage. Under the contention of Mrs. Colt the mortgage was void. The court was asked to restrain Mr. Koeberle from proceeding to foreclose on the mortgage until the suit had been heard.

Judge Taft denied the restraining order, holding that, if the pleadings are correct, there was no danger.

THAT NAVAD BILL.

The $500,000,000 three-year navy building bill is now before the Senate. If it is agreed to quickly, it will do more good than the dispatch of a half-dozen diplomatic notes.

HUSKS TO EAT.

Corn husks for food and flour sacks for raiment, with flour at $1 in gold per pound and no gold with which to purchase it—that is the result of the Villa-Carranza fight in some parts of Mexico. The academic, egotistical, watchful waiting, pusillanimous and piffling policy of President Wilson has helped to bring about these unfortunate conditions.

THE UNWELCOME ALIEN.

Russia is preparing to dispense with the ownership of land in European Russia by aliens, especially Germans, Austrians and Turks. Alien owners, even if naturalized as Russians, owning about 20,000,000 acres in a territory extending from Petrograd to the Baltic provinces, from Kiev, the Black Sea and the Caucasus to the Amoor provinces and eastern Siberia, are required by the Douma to sell their holdings to the government at prices to be fixed by the buyer. In future, foreigners can buy in towns only, and in parts of Russia other than the regions mentioned.

WASTED TIME.

The 1432 labor strikes and lockouts in the United States for the six months ending June 1, 1916, are estimated to have cost the strikers over five millions of dollars in money that they might have earned if they had not left their jobs. Labor is a perishable commodity. The products of labor may be stored in warehouses but the value of labor itself dies in the strangle-clutch of unemployment. Time stands by the dial of the universe and as the minutes are ticked off he gives them to those who grasp them; but left unclaimed they pass on unused and unfruitful into the gulf of the unreturning past.

THE DEADLY WATERMELON.

The Penal Code of California makes it a felony, punishable by incarceration in the penitentiary, for one to assault another "with a deadly weapon, instrument or other thing, with intent to inflict serious bodily harm." There have been various judicial decisions as to what is a deadly thing, but the consensus of opinion is that it is anything with which death might be inflicted. A faro box, a monkey wrench and a woman's hat pin have been held to be deadly. The jaw bone of a primeval ass excavated from the brea beds is claimed not to be deadly, because the bone will crumble if struck upon a bone head such as is perched upon the shoulders of a Progressive politician.

It is a question under advisement in a Los Angeles court as to whether a watermelon held in the uplifted grasp of an enraged wife, with which she proposed to bust the crust of an obnoxious husband, is a deadly weapon that justifies him in skidooing from her bed and board.

The husband appears to have been generous to the verge of extravagance. He lavished money upon the wife who, disregarding her marriage vow, upraised a deadly watermelon against him. A witness testifies that he threw upon the table at one time as much as $1.75, and on another occasion his beneficence almost reached the sum of $2.

Whether a watermelon is a deadly weapon or not depends upon the condition of the melon and the part of the human system to which it is applied. If taken into the stomach while green, it might be deadly.

A TAMMANY JOB.

A job for three deserving Democrats at $5000 per annum each, besides mileage, clerk hire and incidental expenses, is contemplated by a Tammany Congressman—Mr. Hurlbut—who has introduced a bill for the inspection of all food supplied for the military forces of the United States through a commission of three civilians to be appointed by the President.

The bill provides that the commission shall determine whether the quality of such foods conforms with the specifications of the purchase and whether they are wholesome, suitable and adequate. The commission would also have authority to make recommendations to the President for improvement in this regard.

The officers now charged with the duty which it is sought to give to three civilians are more competent for its performance than any three deserving Democrats to be found in the Tammany wigwam. There should certainly be a careful examination of food supplies for the army, and a repetition of the embalmed beef experiences of the Spanish War should be made impossible. But such inspection could not be thoroughly made by three men or ten times or fifty times that number, and it is a duty that should be performed by officers of the regular army or of the militia specially detailed for that purpose. Such officers need not be of the rank of brigadier-generals who receive $6000 per annum, or even of colonels who receive $4000. A lieutenant whose pay is $2000, or even a sergeant at $360 per annum, can examine and condemn soft pork and sour flour and salted or canned beef that is well stricken in years quite as well as a $5000 deserving Democrat from the gutters of New York politics.

SAN FRANCISCO'S AWAKENING.

The constructive, indomitable spirit of San Francisco, the spirit that reared the massive structure of a new city on the site of that stricken to ashes in 1906, the spirit that created the best of expositions the world has known in 1915, has organized the Committee of Law and Order to establish, insure and perpetuate industrial freedom.

For the last decade San Francisco has been in bondage. No city has been so long and so completely dominated by the lawless element of labor unions, and her distress has been continuous and acute. Strikes, riots, boycotts, picketing, bludgeoning unsuppressed by an intimidated police and ignored by timid officials, have written too often in blood the story of San Francisco's investment by lawless unionites, and the ruthless control and tyranny of men like McCarthy, Tveitmoe, Johannsen.

A series of strikes has recently intensified the bitter situation. The employers saw that they must fight without compromise or go out of business. They are the heirs of the vigilantes, men descended from pioneers who knew no fear; but so insidiously have the unions worked their way into even the nooks and crannies of employment, holding mercilessly to heel in a masterly though corrupt organization the members of every trade and guild, that the employers knew it was hopeless to fight individually for industrial independence.

But though they delayed and endured, they were not idle and one day, unexpectedly, 2000 employers suddenly disclosed the organization of the Committee of Law and Order. They, too, were organized. Some conception of their straits, of their knowledge of how long-drawn and grueling is the fight before them may be judged by the $1,000,000 fund readily subscribed to secure their industrial freedom.

The pitiful irony of it! The discreditable reflection upon the apathy and indifference of the citizens at large when the thousands of employers in a city so important as San Francisco must organize, actually endanger their lives, and contribute heavily, in many instances exhaustively, to a campaign to fight for that individual and industrial liberty guaranteed by the Constitution of their country!

San Francisco will win. Her people are fighting, not for themselves alone, not for mere profits, not—as the agitators with hysterical fury scream—to "dethrone labor," but they fight for the future, for liberty, the right to hire men who work and discharge those who malinger, the right to meet the employee face to face and not through the ubiquitous, bribe-seeking "business agent."

THE PUBLIC AND THE TRAINMEN.

The public is confronted with an economic crisis as the result of the demands of railway employees in engine, train and yard service for increased compensation under the guise of a request for an eight-hour basic work day.

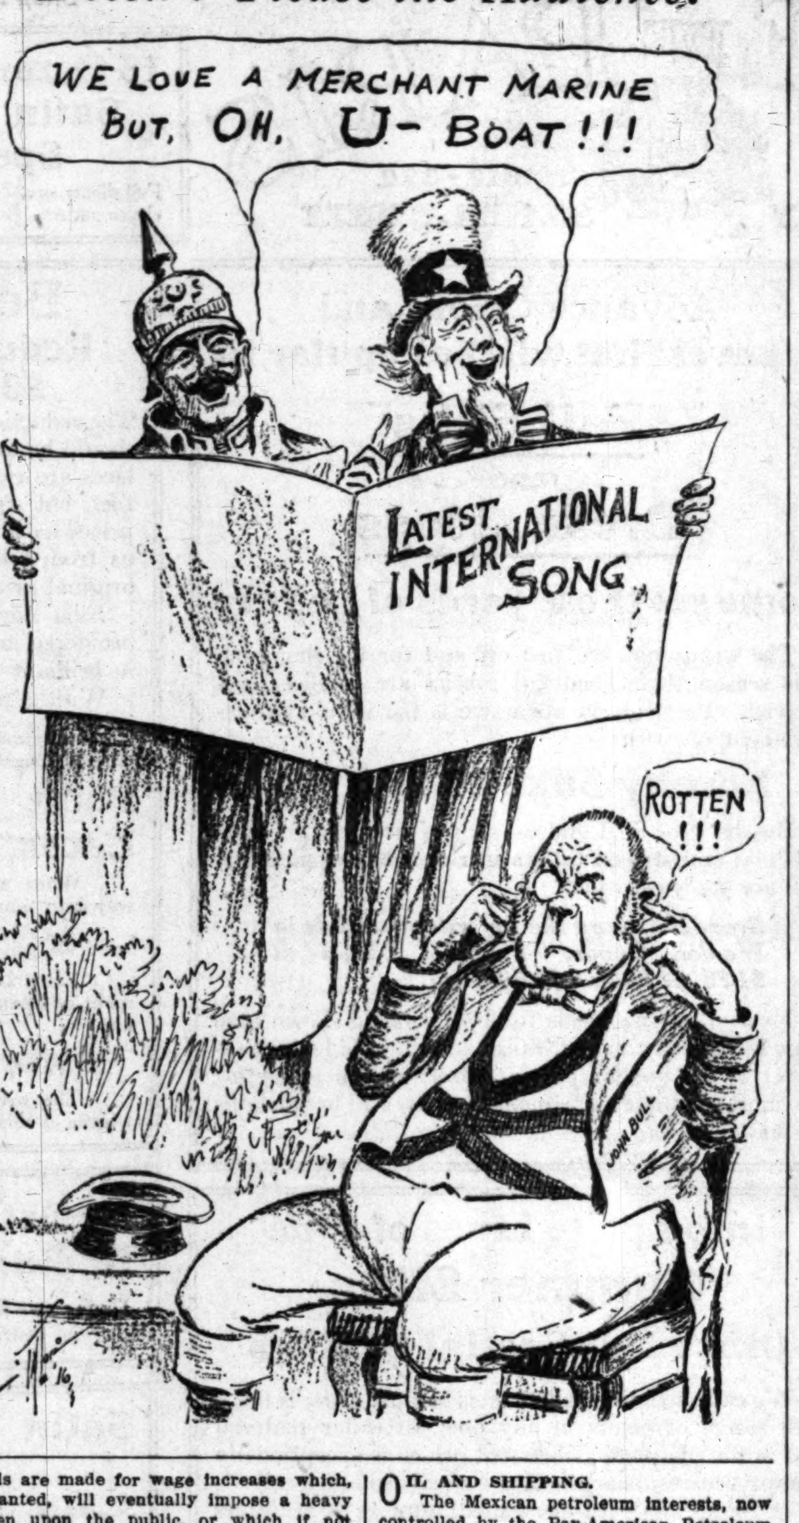
It is unnecessary now to discuss the merits of these demands, which were thoroughly threshed out by representatives of the four brotherhoods and the national conference committee of railways, held at New York June 1 to 15, inclusive. The 309,000 members of the organizations making the outcry constitute only 18 per cent. of the vast army of railway employees of the country, and they are already receiving 28.2 per cent. of the total wages paid to all railway employees—the highest paid labor, not only in the United States but in the world. The real demands of the organizations, properly construed, are for a reduction in the working hours of from twenty to thirty-three per cent., and an increase in the hourly rate of pay from 25 to 50 per cent., and an increase in the overtime pay of from 87½ per cent. to 125 per cent. It is estimated that to make the concessions it will cost the railways of the country $100,000,000 annually, which is equivalent to a 5 per cent. increase in freight rates, or an annual tax of $5 on every family in the United States.

It was pointed out by the railway managers at the New York conference that to comply with the demands would mean bankruptcy to the railroads, one-sixth of the mileage of which is already in the hands of receivers; but the managers offered to refer the question to either the Interstate Commerce Commission or to a board of arbitration sitting under the provisions of the Federal statute—preferably to the Interstate Commerce Commission, as that tribunal, by reason of its accumulated information bearing upon railroad conditions, and especially because of its control of the revenue of interstate carriers, is in a better position to consider and protect the rights and equities of all interests affected, and is possessed of authority to provide the additional revenues necessary to meet the added cost of operation in case the claims of the employees were found by the commission to be just and reasonable. IN APPARENT DEFIANCE OF THE PRINCIPLES OF ARBITRATION, AND IN APPARENT DISREGARD OF PUBLIC WELFARE, THE ORGANIZATIONS FLATLY REFUSED TO SUBMIT THE ISSUES TO ARBITRATION BY ANY TRIBUNAL, AND THEY ARE NOW ENGAGED IN TAKING A STRIKE VOTE, WHICH WILL DOUBTLESS AUTHORIZE THEIR LEADERS TO CALL A GENERAL STRIKE WHENEVER THEY DESIRE.

It is apparent that the commercial bodies and civic organizations throughout the country should call upon Congress to take such action as will compel arbitration. The railroads are public servants, and their uninterrupted operation has become an economic necessity. If railway officials should attempt to discontinue train service and deprive the people of necessary transportation facilities when rates are reduced, or when competent authority imposes additional regulations, or for any other cause, a storm of public indignation would envelop them; and in this respect the public will make no distinction between officials and employees, and if for any reason the employees should, by concerted action, attempt to tie up the railroads and thereby completely paralyze the transportation service of the country, public indignation will break upon them with equal severity.

The history of past labor controversies shows that the public favors the submission of differences between employer and employee to arbitration and because of the nature of the business affected it is the imperative duty of both sides to the pending controversy to submit their differences to some competent tribunal. The public is not concerned with ordinary controversies between railway officials and employees, but when, as in the pending controversy, demands are made for wage increases which, if granted, will eventually impose a heavy burden upon the public, or which if not granted may result in a serious interruption of the continued service which the public is entitled to enjoy, and which it has undertaken to regulate, then due regard to its own welfare renders essential the public command to avoid interruption of traffic and "play fair."

Doesn't Please the Audience.



WE LOVE A MERCHANT MARINE BUT, OH, U-BOAT!!!
LATEST INTERNATIONAL SONG
ROTTEN !!!

ABOLISH 'EM ALL.

If another wrestler dies in the ring wrestling must be abolished. So say the rampant reformers. Perhaps they are right.

Certainly if a man kills a wife, or a wife kills a husband, matrimony is obviously demoralizing and should be abolished.

Many people are yelling vociferously against coeducation because of the Orpet case. You will naturally understand that there could be no Orpet case without coeducation. Certainly Wedekind wrote the "Awakening of Spring," which deals with a similar matter, in Germany, where coeducation is unknown—but, anyway, let's abolish coeducation.

And railways certainly should be abolished. There has been more than one accident to prove how hazardous a thing railway traveling can be.

And there is plenty of evidence to prove that motherhood ought to be abolished. Any woman who loses a baby in infancy should be forbidden to risk another life.

An elderly gentleman dropped dead while playing golf a little while ago. Awful game, golf, dangerous and cruel. Must be abolished.

Another gentleman choked and died on a chicken bone recently—the dangers of chicken eating cannot be too strenuously brought before the public. Best way is to abolish chickens.

Gasoline certainly ought to be abolished; shocking menace to human life. Bah; many a man has died from overeating; let's abolish food!

GERMANY'S TERMS OF PEACE.

Whoever shall succeed and whoever shall fail in the European contest it is reasonably certain that no indemnity can be exacted by the conqueror from the conquered, for every one of the combatants is already in debt beyond its power to pay the principal of its obligations, and it will require very drastic taxation to enable any power to meet the interest, defray the cost of civil government and pay the expenses of even a reduced army and navy.

There being no question of indemnity to be discussed, the settlement will probably be determined by a readjustment of boundaries. If Germany wins, she will insist upon holding Belgium and a slice of France and having all her colonial possessions restored to her. Should the allies win, they will deny to Germany any extension of her western frontier or any restoration of her African colonies.

The agrarian element in the German Reichstag is growing in numbers. It favors a union of the three empires—Germany, Austria and Russia. Joined to these are the industrial lords of Germany, who hate England and fear English competition and are eager to join interests with Russia.

If the Deutschland shall elude the British cruisers and reach Bremen with her cargo of nickel and rubber, there will be a dozen or more freighters journeying across the Atlantic; England's control of the seas will be at an end and with it the possibilities of an early peace on German terms will be enhanced.

OIL AND SHIPPING.

The Mexican petroleum interests, now controlled by the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company, have investments in ocean shipping aggregating some $16,000,000, representing a total of twenty-eight ships, twenty-one of which are under construction, five on San Francisco Bay, three at Sunderland, England, and the others on the Atlantic Coast—Philadelphia, Wilmington, Camden, Newport News and other points. These ships constitute the largest building programme at the present time of any combination under one management in the oil trade, or even perhaps in any other line. The combined shipbuilding of all the companies that formerly made up the Standard Oil trust is bigger, but none of the individual companies can make a showing approaching that of the Pan-American.

Five years ago the interests now combined in the Pan-American company had no maritime investments whatever. Then the enormous production brought in by the Mexican Petroleum's big Casiano well completely swamped the limited home market of Mexico and it was essential that oversea trade be sought. Six vessels were built and put into the trade of the Atlantic Coast. Then came the big British deal resulting in the organization of the Pan-American company with $150,000,000 capitalization and the present great shipbuilding programme inaugurated.

With the outbreak of the war all the vessels then in service were transferred from the British to the American flag, and the new ones being built in the United States may be expected to fly the Stars and Stripes.

The Pan-American now owns all the shipping interest of the combine through the purchase of the entire capitalization of the Petroleum Transport Company, the subsidiary corporation that owns all the ships of the Mexican Petroleum interests. Of the oil properties in Mexico it only owns the control, there remaining a large minority interest in the Mexican Petroleum Company, Ltd. Of the oil properties of the combine in California and Texas the Pan-American owns all. In Texas it has some 30,000 acres at Markham and is drilling the first deep well in the district.

While there is an immense stockholding in the East and in Great Britain, the Pan-American company is a Los Angeles creation. The Mexican Petroleum Company, Ltd., a Delaware corporation, is the successor of the old Mexican Petroleum Company of California, founded by E. L. Doheny and the late C. A. Canfield, and practically all owned here. Of the $10,000,000 in preferred stock of the Pan-American recently sold to cover the purchase of Mexican Petroleum, Petroleum Transport and Buena Fe stock 90 per cent. was taken in Los Angeles.

The ships of the Pan-American now operate along the Atlantic Coast from Portland, Me., on the north to Rio de Janeiro on the south. With the completion of ships now under construction the trade will be extended to Europe and eventually around the world.

How valuable are oil-carrying ships at this time is shown by the fact that not long since the Pan-American was offered a price for two of the ships under construction that would have netted a profit of $1,000,000 on each, but declined the money, as the vessels and the deliveries of oil they will make were worth more money.

There is many a man who is distrusted on account of the friends he has sacrificed.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat:] Henry Ford has surpassed all the other manufacturers in fame, even those who make chewing gum and chocolate bon-bons.

The Pity of It.

[New York Sun:] Mayor Beall of Alton, Mo., has ordered the police to arrest all women who appear on the streets in silhouette gowns. His concern for the dress of his constituents is less interesting than the disclosure of a community in which the silhouette gown still survives in fashion.

Much Too True.

[Toronto Mail and Empire:] Although the aeroplane is an American invention, the United States army has not many more aeroplanes than the Mexican army has anti-aircraft guns.

The Mental Limit.

[Minneapolis Journal:] The basis of all pacifism is that there is no danger of war; therefore, why prepare for it? But it grows daily more difficult to concede the sanity of the man who insists that there is no danger of war.

Worth a Few Votes.

[Syracuse Post-Standard:] Mr. Wilson might pick up a few votes by promising, in the event of his reelection, to fire his whole Cabinet.

A Chance for Action.

[Philadelphia Public Ledger:] Why not imprison the American refugees who are streaming in from Mexico? They are guilty as charged by the Democratic leaders of putting the administration in a hole because it has been asked to protect them. Such treason to a party ought to be severely punished.

An Impressive Silence.

[Boston Transcript:] The Wilson administration is calling attention to everything it inherited from the Taft administration except that treasury surplus.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

CAMPAIGN TALK.

Of course it is a great temptation to talk of Wilson and of Hughes, and rant around, like all creation, o'er every bit of campaign nughes. I find myself at times a-standing, indulging in the talksmith's job and frothing at the mouth and handing forensic trimmings to the mob. But yesterday I stood and yammered in old Jim Bickle's blacksmith shop; this candidate and that I hammered until Jim's eyes began to pop. And well I knew, while I stood throwing assorted language through my face, I should be home and busy hoeing or fixing fences on the place. With righteous scorn the women viewed me when I returned to home and farm, and from the cottage door they shooed me and said I was a false alarm. My wife had pumped eight tubs of water to wash the duds and scrub the floors, and Ysobel, my flossy daughter, was sawing cordwood out of doors. Ten billion flies are needing swattin', ten billion microbes should be boiled; yet man, his duties all forgotten, o'er campaign foolishment is roiled.

WALT MASON.

CHIPS FROM OTHER BLOCKHEADS.

Maybelle: Suppose Bonaparte commanded the armies of France now—what would he do? Sapley: I have no ideah. In fact, I hawdly know what I would do myself.—[Judge.

"Well, I must be going, old man. I've an appointment to meet my wife." "She probably won't be there." "Oh, she will, just about. I'm two hours late."—[Boston Transcript.

"Pop!" "Yes, my son." "What is an end-seat hog the papers talk about?" "An end-seat hog, my son, is the fellow who gets the seat that you want yourself." — [Yonkers Statesman.

"My wife and I are thinking of chartering a yacht for the summer." "Won't that be pretty expensive?" "Not as long as we confine ourselves to thinking about it."—[Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Do you think a college education really pays?" "Sure it does. My son is earning $3 a day in a stone quarry, all because of the practice he got while in college at hammer-throwing."—[Judge.

Rastus (at the colored cabaret:) Mandy, am yoah programme full? Mandy: Lawdy, no, Mr. Applewhite; it takes mo' dan two sandwiches an' a cup ob tea foh dat.—[Birmingham Age-Herald.

Flatbush: Did you ever lose much time house-hunting? Bensonhurst: Oh, yes; we lived out West at one time, and we had a cyclone. I spent six days looking for my house.—[Yonkers Statesman.

"Father, what is meant by the artistic temperament? "The artistic temperament, my boy, is a sort of a reserve alibi which usually saves the artist from prosecution on a charge of disturbing the peace."—[Puck.

When President Wilson retires next March he ought to be able to get a job as the head of some correspondence school.

CHILE CON CARNAGE.

BEING THE PARTICULAR PEPPER IN SOME PERSONAL OPINIONS

Of Don yo de Chiltepin.

Ever think how and whereby it happens that not only our Toys but even our Fairy Stories are "made in Germany" or thereabout, and have to be translated for us? Why has no writer in English ever given the children of the world such treasure-books of Dreams as the Grimm Brothers or Hans Andersen? Why is our present output of "fairy stories" so colorless an imitation that only the folk-lorist can detect the drop of original Teuton ink in the Swash-tub of sell-quick "Juveniles"—and that no Juvenile over 2 years old can be fooled by the "stories" into a beneficent belief in Fairies?

The answer is easy. The Germanic peoples have Imagination, and the English-speaking peoples haven't much. Don't throw up Shakespeare and Milton at me—they had Fancy rather than Imagination. Shakespeare's most marvelous inventions were all notoriously borrowed as to the creative idea. It was his matchless Fancy that made these stolen thoughts immortal in the new dress he gave them. No English poet ever rivaled Dante in Imagination—nor no poet writing in English, except Edgar Allan Poe. Imagination is the Finding of New Worlds. Fancy is the Picturing of them in such wise that these Make-Believe countries are more real in our thought through all our later life than the streets we tread today. And Germany is the home of the Fairy Story—the mother of elves, pixies, goblins. Yea, verily, and of the best of all fairies, dear Santa Claus. The largest contribution of original English to the Joy of Infancy is "Mother Goose." And she is a good lady—though hardly to be classed with Romance. And far greater than she, but less notorious, Alice in Wonderland. How many children know the name of Lewis Carroll, her father?

It was the German Imagination, too, which knit a loose bunch of selfish little States (even more unrelated than our own States were before the Civil War) into a nation which today for compacted, focussed, almost unanimous national spirit, has never had a peer in history.

It is the German Imagination which makes it that for the Last Word in medicine, music, art or civic efficiency—you go to Germany for your post-graduate course.

It is the German Imagination that makes the public schools and the whole educational system of Germany the envy of all that know anything serious about education. Our own are child's play to them.

It is the German Imagination that foresaw a war to save the national life; and Got Ready—by self-denial and hard work and devotion, and has taught Mr. Mars that he never did know his own game; and has for two years battled practically the whole world, our munition-sellers included.

It is the German Imagination that invented the art that immortalizes all arts—Printing. Does Gutenberg sound like an English name? Why, it was a Dutchman—and a printer—who first gave the name "America" to this land we live in—and love it when there's nothing else for us to do.

What's the matter with our dyestuffs? Well, of course, the world depends on Ger—the world depends on Germany for the color of its stockings, eh? Even we, the self-confessed Smart People! Why? Well, we haven't the Imagination that leads a man to be Efficient all around—not the fevered and hateful "Efficiency" our money-makers preach, which means only sacrificing everything else to your Job; but a reasoned, disciplined, balanced.

People devoid of it themselves—the "Beasts of the Field of Thought"—have a childish fear that Imagination makes people "Crazy." And they are the sorriest people in the world; for every day their pet theory is knocked in the head—and if there were anything inside that head it would have been spilled and spattered long ago. But you can't blow brains out of a bonehead! These same folks lean helplessly every hour of every day on those Crazy Persons that had the Imagination to invent electric cars and lights, and steam cars and telephones, and postoffices, and printing, and gas ranges, and every other Invention, ancient or modern. Even Fiction and Poetry—not to mention newspapers (if I'm not falling into tautology.)

Eighty-five per cent. of them that can't imagine would perish miserably within a year if they were stripped tomorrow of everything they owe solely to the "Crazy."

Imaginers, why—where would they go to church? Do you imagine that Faith was invented by a Clod? Religion, like every other thing we use to live by—down to Business itself—came by the parenthood of men and women of Imagination. Was it a Dreamless dolt that invented the very corner-stone of Business—which is Credit?

And in all the story of Imagination, the latest chapter and biggest is just begun. We are used, now, to great inventions and achievements; but Paul Koenig capped our wildest dreams when he brought a merchant submarine 3800 miles safe to an American port. Up to date it is the world's record of heroism, plus efficiency.

Every generous heart thrills, no matter what its national prejudices, at this crowning achievement of a Man. And how we look at it is how we ourselves are.

Remember "Horatius?"

"Curse on him," cried false Sextus,
"Will not the villain drown?
But for this stay, ere close of day
We would have sacked the town."
"Heaven help him," cried Lars Porsena,
"And bring him safe to shore—
For such a gallant feat of arms
Was never seen before!"

STERN ACTION TO CURB CITY'S MOTOR MADNESS.

Number of Traffic Accidents to Persons on the Streets Steadily Rising—Police Officials Determine on More Jail Sentences, Stricter Interpretation of the Rules and More Stringent Regulations.

THE gauge of traffic disaster to persons on the city's streets is rising. Month after month, more and more are killed in such accidents, more are seriously injured, more bruised and battered. Monthly the Moloch of speed and recklessness grows greater; devours more of the little people of the streets.

Seventeen per cent. increase is the shocking record for the past three months over the preceding three months. When Traffic Lieut. Butler wrote the total yesterday, his hand shook with emotion. He thought it impossible. When Chief of Police Snively heard of it, there was a dazed and pained expression in his eyes. "After all we have done, and all we have warned, and all we have punished," he said.

And when the police judges heard of it, they sat back in judicial contemptation for a moment, then in all there was a tightening of the jaw muscles, a levelling of the eyes. "They have got to suffer harder before they learn," they said.

Chief Snively has determined to stop that terrible increase.

Lieut. Butler has determined to stop it.

The police judges have determined to stop it.

This is what is to be done:

More jail sentences on fast and reckless drivers will be imposed in the police courts.

Stricter interpretation of the traffic laws will be made by the speed patrolmen under the direction of Lieut. Butler.

More stringent traffic regulations will be advocated by Chief Snively.

While this increase has been in progress, five men have been peering from behind jail bars—five competent business men, wasting their time, and eating beans and soup and coarse meat, because they had been found unfit to steer an automobile. They had pleaded and wept and tried to buy their ways to freedom, and while they suffered in obscurity, the other motorists pressed a little harder on the foot throttle, swung around corners a little faster, bore down a little more defiantly on other motorists and upon pedestrians. Each was boosting, notch by notch, that fell record at the Receiving Hospital, the pitiful list of the dead who are the victims of speed and recklessness.

And as the total piles up, getting its footing on tombstones to climb higher and higher, the decision becomes firmer, that some arrangement must be made to cancel permits to drive automobiles. The police judges at present have informal authority to forbid any person driving an automobile for a given time, under penalty for violation of probation. But there is no way by which the licenses can be permanently or even temporarily revoked.

That is the great weapon the police are seeking. That is the weapon the police judges demand. And when the Legislature convenes in the next session, such is the law that will be written upon the statutes of the State, backed by Chief Snively, by Lieut. Butler and by the police judges.

In the past two weeks the speeders have had an orgy, the reckless drivers have had a debauch in risks. Every motorcycle officer has been ordered to the harbor to assist in quelling possible riots there. The streets and avenues have been abandoned to the dizzy speedometer. And the motorists have taken advantage of the release, like boisterous boys during a school recess.

Sunset boulevard, the path of folly for speeders where more have been caught than on any other roadway in the city, has never known such speed as during the past ten days. It was there the five men idling their penance in the City Jail were caught.

In June there were 331 persons injured, 10 of whom were killed, and 52 seriously hurt. In May, 326 were injured, 8 fatally and 45 seriously.

In March, 6 were killed, 35 seriously injured, 238 slightly hurt.

Every month the record is a little longer, fringed a little redder with the blood of the victims, made a little more shocking with its list of maimed and crippled.

Commenting on these motorists who are making the streets a growing menace to all, Police Judge Chesebro, who has sentenced many to jail, said: "They deserve little mercy and from now on we can show little morcy to their families. Always it is the family that suffers and I have considered that. But they must consider the red record and suffer as they may."

Presiding Justice White of the police courts said: "When they are in their cars these motorists consider no one yet they always beg for consideration. There seems to be an insanity of the steering wheel. The sanest, the wisest, seem to lose their sense of proportions. I wish to be humane, but with the terrible record of killed and injured before me I can be humane only by protecting the tens of thousands from the individuals. They shall pay for their folly in jail."

Police Judge Frederickson said: "A responsible man should be given a chance. If he abuses it he should suffer doubly. The records are becoming so complete now we can discriminate. These motorists are measuring their own sentences by their madness. It is imperative that heavier sentences be imposed."

Police Judge Richardson, himself an ardent motorist, said: "I have no sympathy for the guilty motorist. Because I feel so strongly I have sometimes weakened the penalty, that I might not be unfair. Motorists go mad, like members of a mob. And now that we know the abuse is growing, the time has come to stamp it out. Some may have to suffer more than they deserve, but they shall wear the yoke. That is life."

Causes and effects of traffic recklessness,

Which, according to figures made public yesterday by the police department, is exacting monthly a more terrible toll in human life.

MOVE TO PROTECT SEEKERS OF LAND.

COMPLAINTS AROUSE FEDERAL DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

Lawyers Declared to Have Fleeced Many Would-be Homesteaders by Charging Location Fees and Deceiving Clients as to Property Involved.

Complaints have been made to the United States District Attorney involving alleged false pretenses indulged in by certain attorneys in this city who make a specialty of dealing in government lands and charging $1 an acre for location services. Whether a prosecution will be commenced depends upon the investigation to be made immediately.

Abuses perpetrated upon innocent people by "location sharks" have for some years been the bane of the local Land Office, but so far alleged violators of the law have not been prosecuted. It is alleged that misleading advertisements have been printed that to the uninitiated would seem to indicate that the advertisers had some government position and were enabled thereby to give entrymen an inside view as to prime locations.

They charge $1 an acre for location fees, and in many instances show the unsophisticated a fine piece of land that they say is open to entry. The money for location is no sooner paid and an application made for the entry of the land than the victim finds either that the land is not open to entry or that somebody else has entered it long ago. In other instances the location, when the land is finally found, is in some inaccessible canyon or on the top of some mountain that could not be reached except by an aeroplane. They are told that the technical boundaries, about which they know nothing, cover some excellent land that is pointed out, and the illusion is not dispelled until they file on the land and discover what is covered by the description.

It is proposed to stop these raids if it is possible to do so, but in many instances the alleged raiders have fortified themselves with an agreement made only to circumvent the law as to fraud.

SEEKING MONEY FOR THE MAGONS.

PARADE INDORSEMENT OF ANARCHIST GOLDMAN.

"Defense League" Sends Out Circular Containing Statement of Notorious Emma and Tells "Reform" Editors that They, Too, Have "Directly Incited Violence."

The "Workers' International Defense League of Los Angeles" is trying to raise money to meet the expenses of appealing the cases of Enrique and Ricardo Flores Magon, recently convicted of publishing articles in Regeneracion calculated to incite riot and crime. The league declares its purpose of carrying the appeal through to the United States Supreme Court, if necessary.

The league, in a circular which it has been sending out to persons who are on its lists of "prospects" for donations, states that it has less than sixty days within which to raise the "considerable money" that will be required. The circular boosts the cause of the convicted Magons by quoting Eugene V. Debs, who speaks of the prosecution of these incitors of disturbance as "shameless, brutal and cowardly beyond expression, and should be resented and rebuked by the prompt espousal of their cause by the organized workers of the country."

As a special feature in its appeal, the circular quotes Emma Goldman, the notorious anarchist, in her commendation of the attorney for the Magons. It also gives the commendation of Alexander Berkman and Edgcumb Pinchon, authors of "The Mexican People; Their Struggle for Freedom," which book, it states, has just been suppressed by the government. Surely such an array of "patriots" ought to be appropriate backing for the Magon cause.

The circular states that all contributions should be sent to Katherine L. Schmidt. Miss Schmidt is a sister of M. A. Schmidt, now under life sentence for the murder of Charles A. Haggarty, one of the twenty victims killed when the original Times building was dynamited.

In a special appeal, attached to the circular, and which has evidently been sent to various "reform" newspapers, is a statement by Ed Gammons, general secretary of the league, which says:

"You are as vitally interested as any other organ of public opinion; in fact, I have read scores of editorials and news references in your columns directly inciting violence."

It appears to be a case of "birds of a feather flocking together."

HURRY INTO JAIL.

Youths Come from Imperial Valley in Motor Car, Boast They Made Record Run, Meet Officers, are Arrested as Auto Thieves.

The record run of Claude Sailing and Mike Kennedy from El Centro to Los Angeles in a new automobile was so noisily heralded along automobile row yesterday morning that they had been in the city only a few hours before being landed in the County Jail. According to their story, they left El Centro Friday night and got here in just a few minutes more than seven hours.

They went immediately to the automobile district and spread the glad tidings. While doing this they met Deputy Sheriffs Fox and Nolan. Their story was heard and the officers had no hesitation in arresting them as the fugitives who stole the car of one Arthur Blind.

Telegraphic instructions had been received here early in the morning to arrest and hold two men who rode off in the car of the El Centro man while he was in a store in the Imperial Valley town. The car in which the two youths so proudly traveled bore the identical numbers of the one stolen. An Imperial county deputy Sheriff will take the youths back tonight.

Both Miss Gleason and Miss Jones expect to develop their system even more. This will be done by opening sub-branches in sections where branches are already established, thus diminishing the distances the readers must travel to obtain volumes. In each locality conferences are held with school trustees and leading citizens before a selection of books for the branch is made.

GET MARRIED TWICE.

San Francisco Clubman and His Bay City Bride Discover Wedding Ceremony was Performed Day Ahead of Final Divorce.

The happy marriage last Monday of Willard A. McLeod, a San Francisco clubman, and Mrs. Mazie Meinhardt, who is prominent in society in the Bay City, was clouded for a time when it was discovered that the ceremony was illegal. The cloud was due to the fact that Mrs. McLeod's decree in divorce proceedings against Mr. Meinhardt was not entered until Tuesday, and the wedding was one day too soon.

Thus, the honeymoon was interrupted, but not for long. Stopping at the Alexandria was P. C. Loeffler of New York, a friend of Mr. McLeod. Mrs. Helen C. Galbreath, a mutual friend, was also taken into the conference, and the result was that the quartette appeared before Clerk Sparks yesterday and a new marriage license was issued to Mr. and Mrs. McLeod.

Justice Summerfield graciously gave the time to tie the knot a second time and now it is legal and binding, and a second honeymoon was begun.

Mr. McLeod in his college days was a fine pole vaulter. He is a member of the Irish-American Athletic Club. Mr. and Mrs. McLeod will remain at the Alexandria until the last of the month.

NOW'S TIME TO HUSTLE AND WIN TRIP TO CAMP.

THE TRIPS to The Times Camp on Catalina Island are being rapidly filled up. For this reason the camp manager desires that every boy send in his subscriptions as fast as he can, and make his reservation. Only a limited number of boys can be accommodated on each trip, so arrangements should be made as soon as possible.

Indoor baseball is outrunning every other sport at the camp this year. The Cline-Cline baseball trophy is being fought for by every team in the Times Camp League. A schedule has been arranged in order to give every boy a chance to play on the team that may win this handsome pennant. There are seven teams in the league, each tent of boys composing a team. The new arrivals keep the personnel of the teams constantly altering. As a result of this the teams change places rapidly; the leaders today may be at the bottom the next week. Every change day the best team among the old boys challenges the newcomers and the result is a game that would warm the heart of any baseball fan. The price of admission is one pair of good lungs.

Subscriptions are being turned in by new boys who have heard of the good times to be had at the camp from those who have been there this summer. Many of the boys who went over on the first and second trips are back again with more subscriptions, getting ready to go again. Every boy should get his share of the fun that is coming to every lad in Southern California. Six subscriptions entitle a boy to a four-day trip to the camp with all expenses paid from Los Angeles. The subscriptions have to be for only one month, and the more a boy gets the longer he can stay. Now is a good time to start, for it is never too late. Any questions will be gladly answered by the camp manager at The Times office, First street and Broadway.

CAMP - MEETING PLANS.

Nazarene Church will Hold Seventh Annual Gathering in Pasadena Park, Beginning Thursday and Continuing till End of the Month.

The seventh annual camp meeting of the Southern California district, Pentecostal Church of the Nazarene, will be held at University Park, Pasadena, beginning next Thursday and continuing till the end of the month.

University Park affords a fine site for camp meetings and has an abundance of shade and many conveniences. Water is piped to all parts of the grounds, the avenues are lighted by electricty and modern sanitation has been provided. A grocery store, book store, dining hall and cafeteria, telephones, etc., are on the grounds.

Campers are expected from many parts of Southern California. Arrangements for tents, etc., can be made through Arthur L. White, R.F.D. No. 1, Camp Meeting box, University Park, Cal.

Among the evangelists and special workers who will assist in these meetings will be Rev. Guy L. Wilson, son of the late Rev. W. C. Wilson, who was a general superintendent of the church; Dr. E. F. Walker, a general superintendent; Rev. James Elliott, pastor of the Nazarene Church at Olinda, and an enthusiastic song leader; Mrs. E. G. Eaton, who will have charge of the children's services; F. Stoy Spangler, and others prominent in the Nazarene work.

A new tent tabernacle with seating capacity for 2000 people has been secured, and a platform for a chorus of 150 singers is being erected. A special tent will be provided for the children's meetings. Lodging tents for men and for women will be maintained to accommodate those who wish to remain for only a limited time at the camp meeting.

REALTY MEN ARRAIGNED.

Three Accused of Fraudulent Dealings Fail to Give Bail.

The trio of real estate operators and builders charged with fraudulent operations, who were arrested Friday night, appeared yesterday morning before Justice Palmer for arraignment and their preliminary hearing was set for next Friday morning. The men, W. L. Meigs, a broker, and E. L. DuBose and J. E. Buckle, contractors and real estate dealers, refused to discuss their affairs. They asked that their bail be reduced. Justice Palmer made that of Meigs $3000 and that of the other two men $2500 each. In default of this, they returned to the County Jail. The charges against them were made by officers of the Sunset Park Land Company.

MASONS AT HARBOR LAY CORNER-STONE.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY HELD AT NEW TEMPLE.

High Officers of Order Conduct Service in Presence of Many Visitors and Citizens—Grand Lodge Session Follows Parade. Guests Visit Point Fermin.

Visiting Masons arrived at the harbor early yesterday morning, to attend the exercises incident to the laying of the corner-stone for the new Masonic temple during the afternoon. Mony spent o portion of the day viewing the large development work in progress here.

Forming in line at the Mason's present lodge quarters in the Auditorium building, the grand lodge officers and more than 200 members of the order marched to the scene of the exercise, at Sixth and Palos Verdes streets. The parade was headed by Golden West Commandery band, Knights Templar escorts from Golden Gate Commandery and Long Beach Commandery. Following were the grand lodge officers, offices of San Pede Lodge No. 332, Masons and members of the Eastern Star.

Upon arrival at the temple site Acting Grand Master Right Worshipful William Rhodes Hervey was introduced by Harry G. Weaver, Master of the local lodge, and was in charge of the ceremonies.

Spreading cement with a silver trowel upon which was engraved the name of the Grand Master, date, place and occasion, the corner-stone was laid by the grand lodge, and in the casket deposited in the cavity of the corner-stone were placed coins of this year, the history and roster of the lodge and local newspapers.

Just before the casket was placed in the stone, Acting Grand Master Hervey, addressing the Grand Treasurer, said:

"It has ever been the custom of the craft upon occasions like the present to deposit within a cavity in the stone placed at the northeast corner of the edifice, certain memorials of the period at which it was erected; so that, if, in the lapse of ages, the fury of the elements, the violence of man, or the slow but certain ravages of time, should lay bare its foundations, an enduring record may be found by succeeding generations, to bear testimony to the untiring, unending industry of the free and accepted Masons."

The ceremony was witnessed by hundreds of citizens, besides the large delegation of members of the order and of the Eastern Star. "Hail, Masonry Divine," was sung by the members, and sacred music was played by the band. The oration was delivered by Grand Orator Samuel E. Barks.

After the exercises the members marched back to the Masonic hall where the grand lodge session was closed. The parade was participated in by nearly 300 members of the two orders and was three blocks in length.

After disbanding at the hall the guests were escorted to Point Fermin, where refreshments were served.

FACES CHARGES AGAIN.

Missing Complainant Found; Alleged Robber is Rearrested.

Norbretto Mayo was rearrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of holding up and robbing Miss Marion Fowler several months ago. At the time of his trial the complaining witness could not be found and as a result, Mayo was turned loose.

Several days ago, while a local officer was in San Bernardino looking for a suspect, he called at the San Bernardino Hospital and there discovered Miss Fowler, who was registered under another name. According to her story, she had been seriously injured in a train wreck and did not want some of her relatives to learn of it.

She agreed to return to Los Angeles in the next two weeks, as soon as she is able to walk, and to assist in prosecuting the man, who she alleges stopped her at the Plaza and stole her purse, containing a considerable sum of money, and some jewelry.

Baseball at "The Times" camp.

There's a lot of action in the hard-fought games at the Catalina rendezvous for ambitious boys. A handsome pennant is the prize for which every team is fighting hard, and every lad has a chance to be a member of the winning aggregation. Six subscriptions to The Times entitle any boy to a fine trip without cost.

HAPPY THRONGS ATTEND SCHOOL

Five Thousand Students Enjoy Summer Classes.

While Learning They Feel as if on Vacation.

Through Voluntary Attendance go Ahead Faster.

Again proving their popularity, fourteen summer schools are in full swing in Los Angeles for a six weeks' term and with an attendance of 5000. Assistant Superintendent of Schools M. C. Bettinger said yesterday that the attendance compares well with former years, even though there are two fewer schools this year than last owing to finances not allowing a larger number to be opened.

Two out of the fourteen vacation schools are high schools and the others intermediate. The great object of the summer schools in the intermediate grades is to furnish good, wholesome activities for the pupils and in the high schools it is to enable students to make up work. No new subjects have been added to the summer course in any of the schools.

The vacation schools are to be conducted until August 19. Half of each day, from 8 o'clock a.m. until 12 noon, is given to school work, and the rest of the day the pupils have for play, outings and other enjoyments. Most of the students are so earnest and determined, as is shown by their voluntary attendance, that both teachers and pupils find the summer schools more interesting than the regular schools.

In the summer schools of Los Angeles.

These pictures were made at Los Angeles High School and show a few of the useful courses g during the vacation months.

SCHOOLS AND PRINCIPALS.

The vacation schools and their principals are as follows: Polytechnic High School, Theodore Fulton; Los Angeles High School, Mark R. Jacobs; Grand avenue, Miss Jessie Tritt; Bridge street, Ferd M. Jack; Castelar street, R. E. Pollich; Macy street, Miss Nora Sterry; Thirty-sixth street, Miss Nellie I. Potter; Alpine street, Miss Alice H. Phillips; Twenty-first avenue, Miss Grace Turner; Fifteenth street, Miss Nora Holleran; Vernon, Miss Kate McCarthy; East Ninth street, E. G. Welch; East First street, Miss Alice Cushing; Juvenile Hall, J. H. Hutt. C. C. Kelso conducts citizenship classes five evenings a week at the Los Angeles High School during the summer.

The sum of $45,000 was appropriated by the Board of Education for the summer schools. This allows a margin over the amount appropriated last year, when $41,000 was the cost, of which $25,000 went for elementary schools and $16,000 for high schools. The $45,000 also includes the cost of keeping open a number of playgrounds. In addition to the principals about 300 teachers are employed. Academic and manual subjects embrace the course of study, with physical training in the high schools. In the playgrounds there is folk dancing and excursions and hikes are arranged for in addition to the usual playground activities.

BENEFICIAL EFFECT.

In expressing his approval of summer schools Assistant Superintendent Bettinger spoke of their beneficial effect as offering wholesome occupational activities. He went further and said the schools should be kept open the year around. Referring specifically to the summer schools he said:

"The pupils learn faster on the ordinary subjects than they do in the ordinary schools because there is so much of voluntary effort in the summer schools. The students attend of their own volition. They state what they want to take in studies and then the teachers try to let the children work in their own way instead of prescribing the way. That makes it very largely a voluntary effort. All of us, no matter how old we grow, get along better when we are exercising our own volition than when we are working under prescription.

ELEMENT OF INTEREST.

"Moreover, they are having a vacation while they are learning. Really as happy a bunch as you would find are these youngsters when they are going to school in that way.

"If I were before an educational gathering I would say that the element of interest has been sacrificed too much in our public schools. It has been made to give way to compulsion and prescription. If we could take the children at a time when they are interested only in certain lines of study and teach them at that time when they are at the white heat of interest, and then, when their interest changes, change with them—if we could take them all the way through in that way, in the course of the journey up they would touch all the interests and get through work in that way which would be many times more effective than it is under compulsion and prescription."

YEAR AROUND SCHOOLS.

Assistant Superintendent Bettinger considers it a foolish thing for the city to take care of children every day from 9 o'clock a.m. to 3 o'clock p.m. for ten months "and let the devil take them for the rest of the time."

"That is just what it means," he said, "in sections of the city where the home has no power—and that is one-half of the homes in this city, and this is a good city. The home has not the power to furnish the right kind of employment or occupation for children and young people in the afternoons and evenings during the summer."

Mr. Bettinger asserted that the school plants should be open the year around. "The truth is we have delayed it too long already," he said. "The school plant ought to be open to the public the twelve months and some plan worked out by which children could take their vacations any time, but the school plant should never be closed. In the central part of the city, closely schools should be open every night."

LESS INTEREST ON BONDS IS FAVORED.

STAND OF CITY TREASURER IS GIVEN COMMENDATION.

Correspondent Says Street Improvement Securities are Selling at Premium of Five Dollars on Hundred — Taxpayers Should Have Benefit of Lower Rate.

In a letter commending the attitude of City Treasurer Powell in favor of lower interest on street improvement bonds, C. E. Wolfenden informed the Treasurer yesterday that the bonds are now selling at a premium of $5 a hundred.

Mr. Wolfenden says in his letter:

I notice in The Times today the article in which you are quoted as to the change in the rate of interest on street improvement bonds. I have during the last four years bought for investment some street improvement bonds, and for the last three years they have sold above par and are now selling at $105, or a premium of $5 per hundred. There is no reason at all why the taxpaying public should not have the benefit of the interest rate if reduced.

I am not writing this for the reason that I am paying interest on street improvement bonds, for I am not, and I am receiving some income from the interest at 7 per cent. on this class of bonds. I feel, however, that an act of a city official who is working for the people's interest should be commended.

I cannot see why the people should be called to pay 25 per cent. more for street improvement work under the Vrooman Act than for cash when the bonds command a premium. It seems about as reasonable as the fact that loan sharks are permitted to charge any rate of interest they can fleece the very needy public out of. Just such work as you are doing is the kind to benefit the "common people." I again commend your efforts and hope you will be successful in your efforts to reduce this interest rate.

Three important cross-country runs in which the Harvard squad, coached by Alfred Shrubb, will take part are; November 4, Cornell; November 11, Yale, and November 25, eastern intercollegiate run.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY DOROTHY B. JOHNSTON.

Mrs. Lloyd W. Harmon, president of Los Angeles district, California Federation of Women's Clubs, presided graciously over the initial meeting of her board last Thursday in the bright, airy new headquarters on the top floor of the Brack Shops at Seventh and Grand avenues at 10 o'clock, followed by an elaborate luncheon and an open meeting to federated clubwomen at 2 o'clock.

The morning hours were occupied with reports and routine business and plans for effective future achievements. Among the most interesting reports was that of Mrs. Harry J. Slater of Santa Monica, chairman of legislation, who has instituted a clever move for systematic organization in issuing letters to all presidents in this district, asking that they include in their list of appointments for fall work a legislative chairman whose duty it shall be to be well informed upon the measures of vital interest to the welfare of women and children which are to be brought before the next Legislature. To help educate public opinion and bring to bear an intelligent influence during the consideration of these bills by the law-making body, monthly conferences will be held, starting in September and continuing four months.

In turn the community property bill, the Moran bill, other important measures supported by the federation, and a "Candidate's Day," at which all candidates for the legislative body will be asked to come out openly on their attitude toward various bills, are to occupy the programme of the conferences.

Mrs. W. A. Galentine, chairman of civics, stated that five towns are already pledged to give children's matinees at which the films shown will be selected from the white list, and three other theaters in Los Angeles are considering the matter. Mrs. L. C. Kimball, chairman of emblems, suggested that all out-going presidents be presented with solid gold federation pins by their clubs with initials and dates inscribed free.

Upon adjournment of the board, luncheon was served in the pretty north room, where a long table was massed in the new Los Angeles roses, gypsophila and maiden hair—a surprise from Mr. Brackett, owner of the Brack shops, who also furnished unique place cards water-colored with the emblem design, and in turn received a rousing "club yell" of appreciation.

During the afternoon session, personal impressions of the recent biennial were entertainingly given by Mrs. J. S. McNee of Long Beach, Mrs. Sherman Jubb of San Pedro, Mrs. Richard Gird, who represented the Los Angeles Ebell Club in New York and was Mrs. Cowles's traveling companion, Mrs. N. E. Wilson of the Ebell (of Los Angeles,) and Mrs. Florence Dodson Schoneman, the former president of the San Pedro Woman's Club, who was one of the Reception Committee for the California "At Home" at Hotel Astor.

Mrs. Stella D. Biddison of New Jersey, Mrs. A. B. Griffith of Texas, a southerner of rare charm who implored the clubwomen to assist her in urging Mrs. Cowles to attend the Texas federation at Sherman, and Mrs. Barnaby of New York spoke briefly, and Mrs. W. J. Chichester asked the ladies to co-operate with her in setting apart five minutes of Tuesday morning, August 1, at 11 o'clock, that all peace-loving people join in a prayer of sympathy for the war districts, that God will spare the nations from going through another winter of suffering—that all work for peace, think it and talk it, and see how effectual the good thought vibration will be.

The session closed by singing in unison the Star Spangled Banner.

The generously extended invitation to all clubwomen in attendance at the biennial—an innovation to the cards issued by all other States—to California's reception held in the lovely rose room of Hotel Astor, and the California mint punch, were two important factors which brought recognition to the "Sunkist" delegation in New York, eighty-two strong.

It was Mrs. Robert F. Garner of San Bernardino who whispered the recipe to New York's famous chef, and now clubwomen the country over are clamoring to know just how the wonderful beverage was concocted. And it was Mrs. Wilson of Ebell Club who told Los Angeles just "what a punch" the drink had in the effete East.

The recipe is to be printed in the next issue of The Clubwoman.

It consists of delicious lemonade flavored delicately with spearmint and served sparkling cold, ornamented with sprays of fresh mint.

Not a Candidate.

Again has it fallen to a woman to bring the men from under cover.

This time it is Miss Mary Foy, publicist and club woman and a recent delegate and member of the Credentials Committee to the National Democratic Convention, who all unwittingly "turned the trick" and brought consternation in the camp.

On Tuesday Judge Oscar A. Trippet, Judge Benjamin F. Bledsoe, John Elliott, Guy Barham and other big figures of their party went to Miss Foy and asked her to run for the United States Senate. George Patton was holding back. Several things were doing. Miss Foy was deliberating. The San Francisco men, hearing the rumor that a Southern California woman might become a candidate, came post haste to Los Angeles, and soon Mr. Patton came right out with the intention of launching his candidacy to offset any chance of a woman running. Then Mr. Carmichael of Sacramento got busy. And it seems others are aspiring.

Miss Foy does not seek honors, but feels gratified that the offer for so big a plum as the United States Senatorship was offered her unsought.

Some of the men on that committee who approached her were formerly against suffrage.

Although Mr. Patton was the leader of the celebrated fifty who came out strong in their opposition to woman's rights, Miss Foy doesn't hold that against him. But other women do. And there are over 30,000 federated club women in California who are anxious to give substantial evidence of the fact by their ballots.

Regardless of party, a strong candidate has been lost in so far as women are concerned.

National Party Platforms.

The meeting of the Woman's City Club tomorrow at Blanchard Hall will be a timely discussion of the five national party platforms, each having a representative speaker. Ryckman.

Speaking will begin promptly after luncheon, at 1 p.m. Mrs. Clarence Van Graham, chairman of publicity, has associated with her on this committee, Mrs. Herman S. Darling. Miss Cora Foy, chairman of hospitality, announces the following ladies on her committee: Mrs. M. G. Heintz, Mrs. Ella Miller, Mrs. William Rice, Miss Mary Reed, Mrs. W. H. Housh, Mrs. S. Wheelwright, Mrs. T. L. Woolwine and Miss Irma Haight. Dr. Jordan, chairman of membership, has added to her committee Mrs. Frederick Hickok and Mrs. R. C. P. Smith.

Readings and swinging of Indian clubs by Araminta V. Schoch, also whistling solos by Edna L. Burkhart, added to the evening's pleasure.

In accordance with the club creed, "to offer, by entertainments, meetings and classes, as many special advantages as possible in art, music, dancing, self-culture and social good fellowship" summer programmes for Wednesday afternoons have been provided from 2 until 5 o'clock. Club members will receive instruction by health talks and exercises under the direction of Henry Hurlburt Victor; public speaking and dramatic reading by Araminta V. Schoch; the recreation and art of whistling led by Naomi G. Sweeney, followed by social hour and dancing assisted by Miss Lois Walsh.

SOUTHLAND FOLKS CAMP IN YOSEMITE.

MANY MOTOR TO CALIFORNIA'S WONDERLAND.

More than Two Hundred from Los Angeles Alone in the Park. Snow in Drifts Eight to Ten Feet Deep on Merced Watershed Keep Falls Alive Through Summer.

The most beautiful season in the history of the Yosemite is what the old-time residents of the valley declare of this summer. Due to the unprecedented winter storms, the falls have remained high all summer, and will remain so until the last of September, at least. The snow still is drifted to depths of eight and ten feet on the Merced watershed, which assures a plentiful supply of water for Nevada and Vernal Falls. The canyons above Yosemite Falls also are drifted full, and will supply water for these falls during all the season.

More than twice as many motor car parties have received park permits this season than last. It is expected that before the season closes more than 5000 cars will have been driven into California's wonderland.

Last week was Southern California week at Camp Curry, more than 300 of the guests there being registered from south of the Tehachepi, the Los Angeles list alone including over 200 names.

MINELESS MINING TOWN IS ARIZONA SETTLEM

Prosperous Kingman, Where Everyone Talks of [illegible] and Which Depends Upon Them for its Existen[illegible] not Got One Within its Borders, but it is the Busy [illegible] from Which Many Camps Radiate.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

A MINELESS mining town is something of a curiosity even for such a marvelous State as Arizona. This particular little city is Kingman. It sits on the desert beside the great steel way which binds the continent. At one time its only apparent reason for being was that it furnished a place where overland passengers on the Santa Fe might lunch in Fred Harveyish luxury.

But when Arizona's new mining boom started a year or so ago Kingman was a name which broke the desert silence. For a time it was on everyone's tongue. In Kingman, the mining town minus mines, one does not, as in other mining cities, plow through ore dumps, sidestep wide-open shafts, and just in time avoid falling into assessment holes. There is missing the filing snore of the gasoline engine, nor is the air rent with boom of the dynamite blast, at the end of each eight-hour shift.

And yet in Kingman every available window on the main street is piled high with ore; men, women and children carry samples of high grade in their clothes and the principal topic is the latest strike in this mine, or the new level reached in that. Automobile stages, filled with eager investors or investigators, start hourly for one mining district or another and there is that air of excitement which no place save a mining camp can maintain.

CONSTANT MOVEMENT.

"Going over to Oatman?" "Just came back." "Ever been to Chloride?" "Going up next week. Hear there's a new strike there——" "What about Gold Basin?" "Saw some regular picture rock——" That's the kind of talk heard all the time.

At the railroad station there is constant movement, and in the freight yards huge piles of lumber, great timbers for mining shafts, and bulky machinery are unloaded every day. For Kingman is the railroad point of that wonderful new mining territory which has come into notice during the past year or so and, being the gateway, it has taken on the air of the camps to which it gives access.

At the Harvey lunch counter, which is the only good eating place, every class and condition touch elbows in that fine democracy characteristic of new places in the West. Upon one swivelled chair may be seen milady, the mine owner's wife, clad in freshly-laundered swagger linens, and at her left a miner in blue jeans or corduroys. Upon the other side a solid business man from town mops his sweating brow and glances at his chronometer, as he awaits the big motor car which is to carry him to his latest mining venture.

REMARKABLE SQUARE.

Cowboys from the range, sheep men from among the hills, railroad men and writers, all meet around that strange square, where the common impulse, hunger, makes all kin. As every traveler knows, no table in the city can boast of finer fare than that which is set forth at Harvey eating houses, provided you have the price. And in Arizona everyone seems to have it.

With a population of about 1500 persons, Kingman is substantially built. The first structure to catch the eye is the handsome Courthouse standing at the end of the principal street. The old town and the new join happily and good sidewalks in all directions invite one to fare forth. This city has never been incorporated; so after all it is not a city, and yet it is most orderly. Prohibition has done its share, perhaps, to maintain the higher standard, for even though there is a recognised clause as to "personal use" when needed, and occasionally a ginger ale has more ginger than mere ginger, this town, like most others of the once "bad ones" in Arizona, conforms remarkably well. A flare of lights along an encircling hill marks the line beyond which no conventional law prevails—a sort of desert Barbary Coast, yet a coast well marked with buoy and warning signals.

THE MINING MECCA.

Of Oatman, the mining mecca, there is much talk. All know the Oatman story, and most are aware that as in all phenomenal camps, there was bound to be more country platted out than the ore zone could justify. Everything put upon the map cannot be a producing mine and those buying stocks at very low prices ought to know that by the merest chance will they profit. Yet that very public which clamors for low-priced stocks, demanding a chance to gamble, is apt when it loses to revile all mining. Oatman has a number of phenomenal mines and experienced mining men predict a great future for the camp and back it with money. An engineer and operator from Cripple Creek who knows the mining game gave it as his opinion that the Oatman field will, as time goes on, become one of the greatest the world has known. He bases his opinion upon geological formation. While some stock investors shake their heads and aver that "Oatman has gone to the dogs" since their stocks have ceased to rise, others declare that the so-called slump was bound to come and it is one of the best things which could happen to the camp. It has time to get its second wind. "When we get to leasing underground," said a man who has watched carefully, "you will see the greatest mining camp the West has dreamed off."

FAITH IS SHOWN.

Attesting the faith in the camp a company has been formed to bring ample water to the district from the Colorado River. Some years ago a water line was laid part of the way to this locality. The Oatman Water, Sewer and Electric Company, headed by William H. Wise, president; Volney S. Rowley, vice-president, and Frederick F. Brush, secretary-treasurer, have purchased rights, titles and right-of-way. Its officers say that within ninety days they will be giving Oatman a generous water supply. Volney Rowley is the man who put Old Trails on the map.

It is believed the late autumn and winter will see a big mining revival. The metals are needed. The United States [illegible] own possibilities in [illegible] lines until the European [illegible] ing learned them and [illegible] it will never again depend [illegible] eign production of [illegible] has come back not as a [illegible] as a legitimate business.

tailor with an establishment at No. 114½ South Spring street. Two weeks ago Mr. Levy's place of business was entered, the intruder breaking open a rear window, and five suit patterns were taken.

Detective Sergeant Bowe recovered these patterns last Tuesday afternoon, finding them in a secondhand store at No. 411 East Fifth street. They were subsequently returned to Mr. Levy.

Friday night an intruder, who by his modus operandi is apparently the same burglar, broke in the same rear window and appropriated three of the five returned suit patterns. The other two patterns had been placed out of sight and were therefore overlooked.

Mr. Levy valued his goods at $15 a pattern.

BABY'S CHANCE IS BETTER THAN EVER.

OFFICIAL NEWS CHEERING TO CALIFORNIA INFANTS.

Monthly Bulletin of the State Board of Health Shows a Constant Decline in Child Mortality and an Accompanying Rise in the Birth Rate.

In spite of the present temporary infantile paralysis scare, California babies have a better chance of living to become adults than ever before. There is a constant rise in the birth rate of this State, and at the same time a marked decline in the infant mortality rate. This is the cheering news given in the last monthly bulletin of the California State Board of Health.

The report shows this condition has held true for the past ten years, but has been especially notable the past five years. The steady decrease in the infant mortality rate between 1911 and 1915 is substantiated by the fact that the percentage of deaths under one year to deaths at all ages likewise declined during the same period.

ASTOUNDING CONTRAST.

The bulletin declares there is an astounding contrast between the steadily increasing birth registration and sharply decreasing infant mortality total in recent years.

In 1911 the total number of live births was 34,828, and the deaths under one year were 3528. In 1912 there were 39,330 births and 3942 deaths under one year; in 1913 the births numbered 43,852, and the deaths under one year, 4336; 1914, birth, 46,012, and deaths under one year, 3964, and in 1915 there were 48,075 births and only 3570 deaths under one year.

MORE BIRTHS, FEWER DEATHS.

The bulletin shows that although the birth registration for 1915 surpassed by 13,247 that of 1911, yet the infant mortality total was only forty-two greater last year than five years earlier, and that while birth registration increased by 2160 between 1913 and 1914, the infant mortality total decreased by 372. While birth registration rose by 2063 between 1914 and 1915, the infant mortally fell by 394. Thus each of the last two years showed many more births reported, but actually fewer deaths among infants.

CLEAN BILL OF HEALTH.

Possession of a clean bill of health in the shape of a permit from the California State Board of Health is to be a necessary requisite hereafter for any municipality or private water company in this State that desires the adjustment of rates by the State Railroad Commission, where water is furnished for domestic uses.

This is a move that has been brought about during the past few weeks. It is really a co-operative arrangement between these two State boards, looking toward the securing of better water supplies.

MOSQUITO ABATEMENT.

The report of the State Board of Health also gives the interesting information that Bakersfield will be the first of the valley cities to protect its inhabitants against mosquitoes and malaria by establishing and maintaining a mosquito abatement district.

This proposed district is to include an area six miles wide and eight miles long. Under the leadership of Dr. C. A. Morris, health officer for Kern county, petitions for such a district are being circulated.

WIRE RATES CUT.

Western Union will Transfer Money to Troops Cheaply.

G. A. Lawrence, local manager of the Western Union, announces that the rates for transmission of money by telegraph to members of the National Guard mustered into the Federal service on the Mexican border will be cut in half. This arrangement is effective immediately.

For instance, for the transmission of money in amounts between $25 and $50 the regular rate of $1 to Arizona points will be 50 cents. To points in Texas the rate will be slightly higher, but will be one-half of the regular charge.

It is understood that in their hurried departure many of the guardsmen failed to reckon on the high cost at the border of some of the conveniences and comforts not included in the provision which Uncle Sam makes for his soldiers and their relatives, and funds cannot be quickly transferred by telegraph at a low cost. Messages of affection, cheer, etc., may be incorporated in the transfers at a small added charge for the extra words involved.

A Natural Born Spender.

[Youth's Companion:] When a long-forgotten cousin in Colorado died and left Miss Mitfield a round $100,000 the entire village, after having recovered from the shock, fell to wondering whether the faded little spinster, after having for sixty-three years pinched and scraped and plain-sewed just to keep soul body together, would, after all, get much comfort from her eleventh-hour opulence.

The state of Miss Mitfield's mind was revealed when her next-door neighbor inquired what she should do with her money—did she mean to save it?

"Save it!" Her eyes flashed with new-found scorn. "Listen to me, Betsey; all my life long I've wanted a pair of side combs with yellow glass beads onto 'em, and now I'm goin' to have 'em, yes ma'am, even if I should hev to go as high as 50 cents."

AGAINST WAR; AIDS HELPLESS.

Friends Support Two Societies to Relieve Aliens.

Work Presented in Pasadena by Prominent Quaker.

Charmed with this Country, He Buys Fine Home.

Septimus Marten, one of the three representatives sent to America from London on behalf of the Friends' War Victims Relief Committee and the Friends' Emergency Committee for the Relief of Aliens in Distress, the only two organizations in Great Britain formed to aid suffering aliens, has begun his work of mercy in Pasadena. He has a wonderful collection of inlaid wood work, beautiful inlaid bone carvings and other articles made by the alien soldiers. These he is displaying at meetings of Friends in Pasadena and is eliciting much sympathy, selling quite a few of these articles, including picture frames, vases, toys and other articles. The proceeds go entirely into the relief fund.

Much more is known in New York of the distress of the Germans and Austrians in England than out here, according to Mr. Marten. A relief organization was formed there some time ago, where articles made by German and Austrian prisoners of war are distributed and sold and the money sent to their families.

According to Mr. Marten, there are in England 50,000 alien enemies, about 10,000 of these being actual prisoners of war. After war was declared, and especially at the time following the sinking of the Lusitania, their sufferings were beyond description, because of the intense hatred of the English. Their homes were burned and they were left absolutely helpless. It was then that the Friends church in England, refusing to aid the government in any way with the war, organized the two committees. They have been doing what they could for the distressed aliens.

"In the majority of cases these aliens are absolutely innocent," said Mr. Marten, "many of them having lived in England from forty to fifty years, but because they were not naturalized they are considered as enemies.

"As many of the wives and children of Germans and Austrians as can be are sent to Germany to their friends, but where a German woman has an English husband, her case must be handled differently. These societies are also working in Holland to aid the Belgian refugees there. Going there in thousands after the attack of the Germans, they overtaxed Holland, which was not able to give them any but the poorest and coarsest food, and the societies of the Friends church undertook to provide them with better food, with employment and amusement.

"Besides these two committees of the Friends church in England formed to aid aliens in distress, there is another society in Berlin, organized to give aid to the prisoners of war and alien enemies in Germany."

Mr. Marten is a former schoolmaster, and taught nine years in London, when he became identified with a large London engineering concern, remaining in its employ until after war was declared, a period of twenty-three years. He and Mrs. Marten were accustomed to spend their winter and summer vacations taking parties to Switzerland and Italy, but the war also put an end to this pleasant pastime and they decided to come to the United States.

They have visited practically every State in the Union, as well as over much of Canada, and are enthusiastic in their praise of the entire tour. But when they reached Pasadena they found it irresistible. All their plans for the future were completely changed in a week's time, and they decided that Southern California is the place for them.

Mr. Marten hurried to England at Christmas time and landed in Pasadena again two weeks ago, since when he has purchased a beautiful home at No. 62 North Bonnie avenue.

SAYS TRADE WAR IS ON IN ORIENT.

LACK OF VESSEL MATERIAL CHECKS JAPAN.

Official of the Java-China-Japan Steamship Company Believes Nippon and Russia will be Allied Against Entire World in Contest for Commerce.

Due to the enormous consumption of shipbuilding materials during the past year, Japan's great activities in that line have recently been curtailed by lack of material, according to A. W. M. Von Gijn, of Shanghai, China, who is a guest at the Clark after a six years' stay in the Orient. He is an official of the Java-China-Japan and the recently organized Java-Pacific steamship lines, and, as such has followed closely Japan's tremendous shipbuilding campaign, which he says has aroused considerable apprehension in the Orient.

Mr. Von Gijn believes the trade war, which, it has been stated, will follow the end of the great conflict in Europe, is already under way in the Orient, with Japan and Russia aligned against the world. He says that the development of China, particularly the industrial development, has been arrested by the war and the aggressions of Japan.

He says there is intense factional feeling among the European population in Shanghai and that the German Club and the Shanghai Club are on the outs, with each organization trying its best to induce neutrals to join their respective clubs.

Mr. Von Gijn, who is en route to Holland on vacation, says that letters he receives from friends there indicate that the Netherlands army is heart and soul with the German cause, while the civil populace sympathizes largely with the allies.

Question.

WILL HE ACCEPT?

Congressman Stephens to Arrive Today from Washington and May Tell Governor if He'll Take Job to Succeed Mr. Eshleman.

Whether Congressman W. D. Stephens will accept the position of Lieutenant-Governor and retire from the Congress race in the Tenth District will probably be decided today soon after his arrival from Washington. It is understood he has an appointment with Gov. Johnson and the matter will be definitely settled.

Friends of Mr. Stephens are doubtful as to the result of the confab. They say he would be foolish to take a mere sinecure unless he can be bulldozed into believing the Governor will be elected to the United States Senate.

Gov. Johnson stated yesterday that he knows nothing about a change or contemplated change in the office of State Insurance Commissioner. This seems to settle the question which has been under discussion for months. It has been rumored that Commissioner Phelps was to leave the State official family and be succeeded by Willis I. Morrison of this city.

GOVERNOR NIPPED BY A REAL FROST.

SPEAKS TO A SMALL CROWD IN BLANCHARD HALL.

Tells Few Hearers He Came Here to Formally Launch Campaign for United States Senator—Makes it Plain He will Run as "Progressive," not Republican.

Gov. Johnson spoke to a small crowd at Blanchard Hall yesterday afternoon. He believes in precedents and told the audience that he came to Los Angeles to formally launch his campaign for United States Senator because it was in this city and on the same platform that he injected himself into California politics six years ago.

The Governor talked an hour. When he arrived in the hall the assemblage was most disappointing to him, but before he had finished a speech that was filled with the personal pronoun, a few more men and some women had slipped into a portion of the vacant chairs.

That he is to be the Progressive candidate rather than the Republican nominee was made plain by the Governor. His speech bristled with Progressivism.

While the Governor declared he is positive the Progressives can elect him, he made a most agonizing appeal to them to hurry to the office of the registrar of voters and declare their party affiliation.

"The enemy has the primary loaded," he wailed. "Just think! There are 94,000 people in Los Angeles county and 300,000 in the State who cannot vote for me at the primary unless they re-register." The Governor omitted telling his followers that the reason they had not registered their party affiliation is because he had sent them word not to do so and that the reason he is compelled to swallow the bitter pill is because he rolled it himself.

The Governor freely admitted that the national Progressive party is dead, but he declared that in California it is alive and will not be permitted to pass away. He said the people want Progressive politics and said, "With all of my wisdom and knowledge of affairs in this State it makes no difference whether I come from the southern part of the State. I will be able to represent all of you." Then he outlined his platform, but characteristically announced it is subject to modification or amplification. He said he stands for everything that any Republican stands for. All he had to say about the candidacies of Willis H. Booth and Walter Bordwell was that it gave him great pleasure to have a large number of Republican candidates in the field. The more in the field the better chance he has to go over.

The Governor was introduced by his good man Friday, Attorney Marshall Stimson. M. Lissner tried to get on the platform, but for some unknown reason was shoved off. After the Governor and Mr. Stimson filed into the hall and to the stage Lissner trailed behind. A moment later he slipped back to the door while Mr. Stimson walked out on the platform with the guest of honor.

Among those present were Frank Mouser, of course; Senator H. H. Lyon, John R. Haynes and his cane, which he used to advantage while a few others were cheering; Supervisors Hamilton and Norton, Senator W. E. Brown, Charles Porterfield, who deserted the regular Republicans when they refused to name him a delegate to Chicago; A. J. Wallace and H. J. Finger, a member of the State Pharmaceutical Board, who said he just happened in town.

Seriously speaking, the meeting was a frost and most disheartening to the Governor.

NECKLACE UNTRACED.

Detectives Making no Progress in Hunt for Rich Heirloom that Woman Hid Beneath Carpet and Thief Found and Stole.

No progress has been made by the detectives assigned to recover the valuable Mexican opal necklace stolen from the rooms of Mrs. E. T. Culver in the fashionable Mayfair apartments, No. 40 St. James Park, some time between the 1st and 12th insts.

Because of various reported thefts in the St. James Park district Mrs. Culver hid her treasure beneath a corner of her parlor carpet when she left town for several days. Upon her return she learned the hiding place had been found and the necklace was gone.

It is an heirloom of the Culver family. Mrs. Culver had not had it assayed for some time, so could not give an estimate of its present worth, but declared the intrinsic value approximates thousands of dollars.

Miss Alice Goodwin swam a mile in twenty-five minutes at Santa Cruz a few days ago and will endeavor to lower the record for the swim across the Golden Gate channel July 5. She is 16 years old.

JOY FOR ELKS AT THE FAIR.

Twenty-ninth Set Apart for Southland Herds.

Excursion Trip by Sea Plan of the Local Lodge.

Three Days' Merrymaking to Dispel Dull Care.

Saturday, the 29th inst., has been officially designated by the directors of the San Diego exposition as Southern California Elks' Day. Thousands of invitations have been sent out to Elks and their friends and this day promises to be made notable.

In honor of the occasion and for boosting the San Diego exposition befittingly, members of Los Angeles Lodge of Elks, No. 99, are to run a big excursion from Los Angeles, going by the Yale or Harvard steamers.

The excursion party, headed by the famous Elks band and drill team of No. 99, will leave the afternoon of the 27th at 2 o'clock, and arrive in San Diego about 8 o'clock, where the Elks will be met by San Diego Lodge, No. 168, with a grand entertainment and social session.

During the steamer trip the Elks band will give a special concert and a big time is anticipated.

DAY OF SIGHTSEEING.

Friday will be spent in seeing the sights—exposition, races and other interesting features. Friday night the drill team will give an exhibition and the band a concert at the U. S. Grant Hotel, to be followed by a banquet to all visiting Elks, to be given by J. H. Holmes, manager of the hotel.

Saturday will be Southern California Elks official day at the exposition, all Elks to be entertained by the directors of the big show. The drill team will maneuver on the parade ground and the band will give a special concert. At night there will be a grand ball in honor of all visiting Elks, given by Manager Holmes of the U. S. Grant Hotel. The party will return home Sunday morning.

Many Elks who cannot go on the boat trip plan to go to San Diego by the Santa Fe and be present Elks Day.

Chairman E. G. Pyle of the committee of No. 99 says this excursion is for all Elks and their friends. While the trip is to be under the auspices of the Los Angeles lodge at the request of the exposition management, special parties are arranging to attend from several Southern California and Arizona lodges, all to boost and do honor to the San Diego exposition.

FROM MANY CITIES.

Santa Monica, Glendale, Long Beach, Pasadena, Pomona, Riverside, San Bernardino and other places will send delegations and a royal celebration, which will result in much publicity for the exposition, is expected.

The following are members of the committee of the Los Angeles lodge of Elks: C. G. Pyle, chairman; Charles P. Kitts, manager of the band; Frank Marsales, director of the band; Ed Gregory, Robert Grayson, Charles Cook, Charles Mahara, Robert Cullen, Charles Morgan, Harry Brown and Capt. Glendenning of the drill team.

All Elks desiring to participate in the excursion are cordially requested to get in touch with Chairman Pyle or Secretary E. B. Lovie, at the Los Angeles lodge-rooms.

Friends of Elks are also invited to attend the San Diego exposition with the big party and become boosters for the great southern fair.

NEW CHECK TRANSFER SYSTEM IN FORCE.

SMALLER BANKS LIKELY TO BE INCONVENIENCED.

Local Banker Believes Plan of Federal Reserve Board to Handle All Exchange of Checks Throughout Country will Prove Failure and Soon be Abandoned.

Yesterday marked the beginning of the new nation-wide system of collecting and transferring checks through the agency of the Federal reserve banks. The method which was placed in operation Saturday is rather complicated, and is not expected to work out very well for the small country institutions.

"I do not think that the new system will find much favor in the eyes of the country bankers," said a prominent Los Angeles banker yesterday. "This latest idea of the McAdoo administration, although sound in theory, is going to prove a failure. The tremendous loss that the small banks of the United States, which are situated in country districts, will suffer is going to make them bitter opponents of the system. All banks which have not close connections with one of the Federal reserve banks will find it utterly impossible to make their collections of checks throughout the new system without a greatly added cost to themselves.

"The revenue formerly derived by banks which are only members of the Federal reserve system by compulsion of the original act, from the handling of outside checks and the transfer of the same, as well as other forms of exchange, will be lost entirely. Member banks in the Federa reserve system will under the new method turn all checks over to the Federal reserve bank in each particular district, which bank will take care of the transfer. Whether the administration will continue in operation the new system, in the face of the opposition of a great many banks in the country, of course, remains to be seen, but I doubt whether it will be used for any length of time."

Another Thought to be Dying as a Result of Car Capsizing and Pinning Passengers Under the Wreckage: Driver Escapes Injury.

One man is dead and another is believed to be dying as the result of an automobile accident early yesterday morning, when the car, owned and driven by W. B. Nimmo of Saugus, overturned on the San Fernando road, near the stone quarry, two miles this side of San Fernando. Joseph D. Brown and J. Marshall of Saugus, riding with Mr. Nimmo, were caught beneath the overturned car. In some miraculous manner Mr. Nimmo was hurled clear of the wreckage.

Messrs. Brown and Marshall were hurried to the California Hospital. The former died there two hours after a hasty operation had been performed. Mr. Marshall is so seriously injured it is feared he will not recover.

BOARD OF HEALTH SHARPENS STICK.

AGAIN BIDS CITY TO ABATE HYPERION NUISANCE.

Council Hopes to be Able to Satisfy Both State and Beach Cities with Double-barreled Sewer Plan Calling for Septic Tanks and Bond Issue.

With the State Board of Health renewing its demand that the city abate the nuisance at the Hyperion sewer outlet, new plans for temporary relief that are designed to form a part of the permanent improvements for the outfall sewer are being prepared by the City Engineer. The Council Budget Committee will recommend an appropriation of nearly $300,000 for the work to be done this year. These plans will be forwarded to the State Board of Health within the next few days and the board will also be informed of the action taken by the Council when it passes on the budget for the current year.

A NEW OUTFALL.

The big plan for taking care of the city's sewage called for a series of Imhoff septic tanks at the city's acreage site at Hyperion, where the present gravity outfall is located. In connection with these tanks the city proposes to build a new outfall out Bellevue avenue and through the sand hills to the ocean. This line will relieve the pressure on the old sewer built many years ago, which is now in need of repair. Including smaller disposal plants, the cost of sewer outlets is estimated at $8,000,000, but at the last election the proposal for a bond issue was denied.

SPECIAL BOND DISTRICT.

Eventually, the big project at Hyperion will be carried out. In the meantime the Council has instituted proceedings looking toward the creation of a special bond district at the harbor for construction of the outfall there that will keep sewage out of the harbor channels.

The improvements to be made at Hyperion this year include the Bellevue-avenue outfall pipe and a new pier that will conduct the sewage out into the ocean for a distance that will likely remove most of the objections of the beach cities. These will cost about $270,000 and the money is expected to be taken from the city's reserve fund. This deduction from the reserve fund, according to Councilman Betkouski, will still leave about $1,150,000 for the city to use as a "working balance," after another $50,000 has been taken for other purposes.

Removing Village of Chagres.

[Washington Star:] The War Department is informed by the acting governor of the Panama Canal Zone that the work of moving the village of Chagres, on the east bank of the Chagres River at its mouth and adjoining the old fort at San Lorenzo, to a new townsite at the mouth of the Lagarto River, eight miles to the west, is in progress.

It is estimated that at least a month will be required for the moving of the population, numbering between 400 and 500, and their effects.

Would you plant your fruit trees in large tubs?

"Without the use of dynamite in tree-planting," says U. S. Bulletin No. 38, "the roots soon meet with the smooth and compacted sides of the hole, through which they have great difficulty in penetrating. The tree is in about the same situation as if it had been planted in a large tub."

But when you plant your trees in holes blasted with

GIANT FARM POWDERS
STUMPING — AGRICULTURAL

the trees will grow faster, develop deeper, stronger roots, and bear earlier. "When dynamite is used," continues the bulletin, "cracks are formed in the soil to distances of five or sometimes six feet on all sides. This makes the very best conditions for the continued growth of the tree. For tree planting dynamite is recommended confidently as the best method of preparing the soil."

In selecting explosives for your orchard work, be careful to get those that will crack, powder and loosen the soil, rather than pack it or throw it in the air. The proper explosives are the Giant Farm Powders. There are two of these—Eureka Stumping Powder and Giant Stumping Powder—both improved forms of dynamite, made especially to meet western agricultural conditions. They are sold by distributors everywhere. Ask your dealer for them.

Grewsome Failures.

APPALLING COST OF THE STATE'S EXPERIMENTS IN GOVERNMENT.

Direct Legislation has Added Tens of Millions to the Burden of California Taxpayers, with no Tangible Benefits—Government by Commission Wasting Millions More.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SACRAMENTO, July 12.—During the last five years California has come to be regarded as an experiment station for fads and notions in government. Direct legislation, government by commission, public control of all profitable lines of private business, taxes on industry, minority elections and legislation, government by decree,—in fact, all known innovations have been welcomed in the name of "good government."

Not since the reign of Marcus Aurelius in the second century has legislation by faddists so afflicted a State. Raising the cry that human rights must no longer be subjected to the rights of property, a small but active minority succeeded through their audacity and perseverance in gaining control of the State government and of nearly every county and municipality. For four years they received practically carte blanche from the taxpayers to frame whatever legislation they liked, provided it should not be "reactionary" in character.

Now the tax collector is abroad in the land, demanding from each community the price of these new innovations. They were installed on credit; but the installments are beginning to fall due and the total is appalling. The annual report recently issued by State Controller John S. Chambers shows that the cost of State, county and city government in California has increased from $101,000,000 to $176,000,000 in four years. That increase in the cost of government is without a parallel; but it represents only a part of the actual increase to the average citizen. The only "human right" so far exercised is the right, and necessity, of paying two dollars in taxes where but one was required before.

COMMISSIONERS EVERYWHERE.

Government by commission has been injected into the city, county and State governments until every line of industry has from one to twenty deputy commissioners inspecting it. These commissions were foisted on the communities under the guise of self-supporting departments. A gullible public accepted them without giving a second thought to what "self-supporting" means; it did not occur to the electorate at large that the producer and consumer would have to pay every dollar of that self-support; that when a commission expends $200,000 a year the producers and consumers of the State must pay out just $200,000 more than they would have been called upon to pay if that commission had never been instituted.

Clever methods have been invented to disguise the cost of these new experiments, but the people have begun to discover that it must be paid; not one of the long list of alleged reforms has proved to be really self-supporting; for no commission is self-supporting unless it occasions an increased production which shall give a profit equal to its cost of maintenance, or effects a saving in that amount which was absolutely wasted before. Transferring money from one pocket into another is but a sorry method of economy.

MINES DON'T PAY IT.

California's mines are fabulous for their wealth; they give employment to thousands of men and their present production is the greatest in the history of the State; their output is estimated at $25,000,000 a year. Magnificent as this sum seems, it pays each year just one-third the increased cost of government under Progressive rule in California. This sounds incredible, but it is a statement of simple fact, as the official report of the State Controller shows.

Direct legislation was one of the first forms of government attempted by republics. Greece adopted it 300 years before Christ, and Greece died; Poland adopted it in the middle of the Eighteenth century, and Poland died; Switzerland adopted it 100 years ago, and once populous cantons of Switzerland are almost deserted, while the country has degenerated into a community of inn keepers. When we stop to compare our own tax bills with those of five years ago, we begin to understand why.

Promises of improved social conditions and lower taxes have been profuse; but the measure of the fulfilment is revealed in that $75,000,000 annual increase in the cost of government. More than fifty years ago Abraham Lincoln, while still a member of Congress, warned the people to distinguish carefully between the promises and the performances of the Democrats. "They ask to be judged by their promises; I ask you to judge them by their performances," said the great Emancipator.

California is almost overwhelmingly Republican in sentiment; yet the State has suffered during the last four years from Democratic misrule without and Progressive misrule within; the producers are paying an average annual tax equal to nine times that which Germany has imposed on prostrate Belgium.

It does not require more than average intellect to trace these enormous increases in the burden of our taxes to their sources; the cost of education, sanitation and protection of life and property shows but a normal increase. Then years ago more than half the total expense of the State government was for public instruction; less than one-fourth the State expense is for public instruction now.

COST OF ELECTIONS DOUBLED.

Direct primaries and other freak election laws have more than doubled the cost of elections in the last five years. The initiative and referendum have added entirely new expenses which total millions; and still other millions are expended by citizens to protect personal liberty and private property from their encroachments.

They have introduced an entirely new feature into legislation which is as costly as it is detrimental. When looking over the reasons for added expense, just recall the referendum against the red-light abatement law. This was generally recognized as a salutary law, yet it was held up by referendum and it became necessary to organize every community in the State at an expense to law-abiding citizens of hundreds of thousands of dollars in order to secure its final adoption, despite the fact that it had been passed by the Legislature and approved by the Governor.

Then there was the initiative racing bill. This bill was rejected by the Legislature, but an appeal was taken to the people, through the use of the initiative; again it was necessary to organize the whole State, and law-abiding citizens were compelled to contribute sums which would amount in the aggregate to more than $100,000 to prevent its adoption.

There are thousands of farmers and orchardists who have not forgotten the time and the money they were compelled to expend two years ago to defeat the initiative compulsory wage bill. It was a measure that would have meant ruin to tens of thousands of middle-class producers; yet it required an extensive organization and the loss of valuable time and more than $150,000 in money to compass its defeat. This measure had been rejected by the Legislature.

Business men have not forgotten the "blue sky" initiative, which was so drastic in its terms that it would have paralyzed industry in the State. Again the expenditure of valuable time and tens of thousands of dollars in money were necessitated for the protection of property against this reckless measure.

WORST MENACE YET.

Probably worst of them all is a single-tax initiative that is now in circulation. Owners of property will be compelled to organize and to expend tens of thousands of dollars in a campaign of education in order to prevent this measure from slipping through at the November election.

These instances alone cover an enormous expenditure of time and money, an expenditure that is forced upon us, against which we have no measure of protection. The measures were proposed under the ordinary forms of legislation and rejected. Then came the circulation of direct legislation petitions. The farce of this is proved by the fact that every initiative measure proposed in the State, however vicious, has secured enough names to give it a place on the general election ballot, provided its sponsors were willing to put up 10 cents per name received to the professional circulators of petitions.

It is to direct legislation that we owe the constant liquor agitation in California. The majority of the members of the Legislature are opposed to State-wide prohibition, and our State laws provide for local option instead. Two years ago the prohibition forces had recourse to direct legislation; the cost of the campaign to the two forces engaged was more than $1,000,000, yet nothing was accomplished. A similar fight will be waged this summer; and this prohibition movement illustrates well the unsatisfactory character of direct legislation. All successful legislation in the last 500 years has been the result of a compromise; there are always radicals and conservatives and the best laws, like the Constitution of the United States, are the product of a final compromise between the two. Direct legislation, on the other hand, is always the product of extremists, and the result is ultra-radical. When the present prohibition initiatives were drawn there was not a representative of the wine grape growers, the hop growers or the brewers in the convention. The law drafted under such conditions is bound to be radical in the extreme; it cannot reflect the opinion of the State, but only that of the pronouncedly prohibition element.

Nearly a score of States in the East and South have enacted prohibition laws; yet not one of them has been proposed through the medium of direct legislation. The prohibition advocates made their campaign to elect persons friendly to their interests to the Legislature; then the proposed laws were introduced in the Legislature and discussed by the legally elected representatives of the whole people before they were adopted and submitted for ratification. They carried with them the endorsement of the majority of the representatives of the State; the prohibition initiatives carry with them the endorsement of ten per cent. of the electors of California.

ELECTORS DON'T VOTE.

The results of special direct legislation elections show conclusively that the people as a whole do not desire to legislate for themselves but prefer that laws shall be passed or repealed by their legally elected representatives. Not one elector in five will take the trouble to go to the polls to vote at a special election called to pass upon direct legislation measures, while about four to five take part in the general election when members of the Legislature are chosen. This shows beyond cavil that direct legislation is not by the majority, but by a minority, at times extremely small.

The electors of California desire that their opinions shall be symbolized by a living entity. They will take an interest in selecting a representative who reflects their opinions; but they expect him to weigh in the balance the alternate forms in which these opinions shall be framed into laws while they proceed with the more urgent necessity of making a living for themselves and their dependents. This plan at times miscarries; they are at times misrepresented; but the general result is vastly superior to that attained through direct legislation.

TENS OF MILLIONS.

California taxpayers have contributed their tens of millions of dollars to find that direct legislation is as illusory as the clouds of sunset whose beauty, enhanced by distance, wholly disappears when one rises in an air-craft to penetrate their midst.

Direct primaries have proved as expensive as unsatisfactory. The last presidential primary was an apt illustration. The two tickets on the Republican ballot were placed in the "no-preference" column. There was a direct avoidance of the very purpose for which the primary was inaugurated. The delegation desired to know who should be proposed for President before they made their final choice, and the electors desired that they should do so.

But the result was a distinct loss to California. If these electors could have been chosen in a convention that convention would have passed some strong resolutions indorsing an adequate tariff for the protection of the industries of the whole country, adequate preparedness and adequate coast defenses. It is true that these are all embodied in the present Republican platform, but the time must surely come when California's delegation will have to fight in convention assembled for California's interests. These fights have been waged successfully in former years, but the basis of the demands was always resolutions adopted by a convention representing the whole State.

NO CHANCE FOR POOR MAN.

In State politics the result of the direct primary has been to make it impossible for the office to seek the man; it has driven the poor man out of politics by making the cost of covering the whole State in two campaigns prohibitive; the successful candidate must either be a man of independent means or one who can ally himself with some powerful political organization or private interest. And to this it adds the still worse feature of government by minority. Whenever a convention is held the successful candidate must get the majority of the entire vote cast; but in the direct primary the candidate receiving more votes than any opponent is declared elected. The result is that men have been nominated when two-thirds of the vote of their party was cast against them. It proves the strength of organization against individuals. The fact that "conferences" will be held this summer for the selection of primary candidates shows that the plan of making individual races has proved a costly failure.

The direct primary has served the purpose of the present administration in enabling a member of one party to get a nomination on the ticket of another party, but it has weakened the respect for the wishes of constituents, it causes men to conceal their real opinions and has done more than any other one thing to corrupt elections and legislation in California.

Government by commission has become so malodorous that the outcry against it is almost universal. The commissions are costing the State, counties and cities about $8,000,000 a year, and many of them are worse than useless. The chief aim of their professional proponents has been to make a department perform the work that a single man in some other department performed before. The State motor vehicle department furnishes a striking instance. Under a Republican administration this department was conducted by two clerks in the office of the Secretary of State; under the present Progressive rule it is a separate department, with its salaried men at its head, and costs the State $125,000 a year. As payment of license is made compulsory and the driver of an unlicensed car is immediately arrested by the first peace officer he meets, it is easy to understand how much of the $125,000 is wasted in useless salaries.

There is a Board of Control that costs the State about $200,000 a year, with an auxiliary purchasing department that costs probably $50,000 more. This replaces the former board of examiners that was headed by elective officers, which was practically no expense to the State. The Board of Control is supposed to be created in the interest of economy. It has been made so top heavy with high-salaried sinecures that it would be necessary to save about 18 per cent. on the average purchase of material for State institutions to pay the expense of the commission.

There are more than a score of commissions in the State and almost as many in the different counties and municipalities that are costing the taxpayers millions of dollars a year, and that were never dreamed of a few years ago.

These things are just details; no one of them amounts to a great part of the $75,000,000 annual increase in cost of government; but it is the aggregate of these fads and experiments that makes up nearly the whole of that sum. The condition of the State recalls the incident of a reporter of the New York Sun, who asked an old member of the New York Stock Exchange the reason for the shrinkage of the value of securities and the general unsatisfactory condition of the market.

"Young man," he replied, "its just one derned thing after another."

Such is the condition of the California producer and taxpayer. It has just been one "derned" fad after another, State, county and municipal, until the aggregate seems incredible.

THE REMEDY.

But the nature of the disease is finally so apparent that it is not difficult to find the remedy. Direct legislation will not bring us out of this maze; it will only cause us to wander through new labyrinths. There must be a return to representative government. The taxpayers must get rid of these fads before they can hope to escape from the inevitable high taxes which are their effects. To repeal these unsatisfactory laws they must elect to office persons who are known to oppose them. We must have a State Legislature composed of men big enough to discuss measures intelligently and to give us real relief. They must be men who, to party loyalty, can add common sense. It is useless to send back to the Legislature the men who involved us in this noisome mess and expect them to get us out of it.

More than $5,000,000 has been wasted during the last year by the present administration. We must elect men who will stop this waste, who will abolish the useless commissions, cut out the dead wood in the necessary ones and bring a genuine return to the Republican principles of efficiency and economy. This must be done by the taxpayers themselves, and they should begin by going to the polls in the August primary and voting only for those candidates for the Legislature who are pledged to support a policy of retrenchment and efficiency and who are thmselves supported by a conference of citizens that was not dictated by the satellites of the present Progressive administration.

DRIVER'S LEG BROKEN.

Youth Suffers Severe Hurts in Motor Car Collision.

Lloyd Vermillion, 21 years old, No. 1636 Maple avenue, was seriously injured yesterday when the automobile he was driving collided with another machine, owned and driven by J. H. Chapman, No. 1436 Mt. Pleasant street. Mr. Chapman escaped injury.

At the Receiving Hospital it was found that Mr. Vermillion's right thigh bone was fractured, his head gashed and his body bruised.

NO COMMISSIONS TO PAY IN CANTU'S AUTOCRACY.

Governor of Lower California Rules Capably, Fixes Tariff and Laws to Suit Himself and Pays no Attention to Mexican Chiefs Who Would Depose Him—Arbitrary Administration that Makes People Prosperous.

ALTHOUGH Californians are spending most of their time trying to get money and more money to support their cumbersome, extravagant, commission-ridden administration, many of them find a minute or two daily to pity the Mexican people and their lack of government. It would no doubt shock and offend the State's hired help if they could know that residents of Lower California, where Gov. Esteban Cantu has established a beneficent autocracy, think just as patronizingly of commission-ruled California.

Gov. Hiram Johnson, professional politician and executive head of this State, swayed by the demands of his political sponsors and backers, has succeeded in building up the most foolishly costly form of government that the people of any community were ever forced to stagger under. Gov. Cantu, youthful, with only limited experience and none of the pretensions to wisdom of the demagogic Johnson, has in less than two years built up an autocracy, which is managed economically and successfully, and his people are lightly taxed.

Gov. Cantu is a law unto himself. Whether or not the rest of the Mexican provinces war with each other or with the United States appears to concern him not at all. He has decided that Lower California shall not be interrupted by any war, and that settles it.

BECOMES GOVERNOR.

A year ago last December Gov. Cantu, then a colonel in the Mexican army, decided that Lower California affairs were not being properly administered. Following differences with Gov. Aviles, Col. Cantu assumed the reins of government himself and has kept them tightly gripped in his own capable hands ever since. It does not appear that he took the trouble to consult anybody about the change. To him it seemed advisable and that was sufficient.

One of his first steps was to arrange for revenue by taxation and by tariff fees. He employed and outfitted an army of nearly 1000 men and paid them every day—paid them more than any other Mexican soldiers were getting. This act of preparedness has made it thus far unnecessary for him to fight.

With reconstruction of his province progressing rapidly and according to his programme, First Chief Carranza decided that some other man would suit him better than Gov. Cantu. Accordingly he sent a successor.

REMAINS GOVERNOR.

Gov. Cantu greeted the newcomer courteously, explained to him fully and patiently that he was certain that a change would be disastrous to Lower California. He said it was obvious that he could rule much better than any new man. There was nothing for the newly-appointed man to do but go away and leave Gov. Cantu in charge. And that was the end of that.

Later another man appeared with credentials showing him to have been appointed Governor. Col. Cantu, much bored by the necessity of explaining the situation, nevertheless went over the ground again and the would-be Governor sadly departed. Gen. Obregon sent a commission of investigation to Mexicali last winter. Gov. Cantu showed them every courtesy and entertained them with lavish hospitality.

As a result of their report the Carranza administration decided to send a new treasurer to handle the increasing revenues, but Gov. Cantu sent him off in a hurry. He was inaugurating a lot of new improvements and he didn't propose to let anybody else handle the money that was needed for them.

HIS OWN TARIFF FIXER.

[illegible] cotton growers were alarmed one Sunday last winter when they learned that a telegram from Gen. Obregon had announced an increase from $2.30 to $10 a bale as export duty on cotton. They had hundreds of truckloads of unginned cotton at the border line and the new tariff would be ruinous. Gov. Cantu did not seem to be particularly interested either by the order from Obregon or by the frantic protests of the American growers. It was a business matter to be decided on a business basis. He decided to maintain the $2.30 rate, and his decision, like the rest, was final.

Gov. Cantu fixes and collects a tax on every concession. His dealings with his own people and his American neighbors are satisfactory. Even with mutterings on both sides of the line, the American growers in Mexico have been so sure of Gov. Cantu's ability to handle the situation that they have increased the acreage in cultivation on the Mexican side from [illegible] acres to 63,000 acres. Fifty thousand bales of cotton will be produced by American growers this year in Gov. Cantu's domain.

The revenues are increasing and the little Governor is using them to build improvements. Whether his acts are approved by Carranza, President Wilson or the Kaiser doesn't seem to worry him. His [illegible] and he is prepared to struggle along without the advantage of a few million dollars' worth of commissions. He is willing even to forego the privilege of reading a text-book, "How to Govern," by Hiram Johnson.

SCHOOLS AND ROADS.

In the short time he has been in office Gov. Cantu has extended the educational facilities. He has built schoolhouses, including a $30,000 concrete high school. The curriculum will embrace advanced studies, including the modern languages.

Since he made Mexicali the capital he has built there a new customhouse, military headquarters, a concrete jail, an $8000 bridge. He has installed a $10,000 sewer system and has appointed a sanitary commission. A central park, or plaza, known as "The Heroes of Chapultepec," has been laid out with cement promenades and electroliers. A municipal band plays there Sundays and holidays.

He has spent a great deal of money constructing a highway from Mexicali to Ensenada. From the border it goes ninety miles to Tecate, [illegible] miles from Tecate to Tia Juana and then 100 miles along the coast to Ensenada. Along it are being built a telegraph and a telephone line. Another project made possible by increased revenues is the building of a railroad to the Gulf of California.

All this Gov. Cantu is doing himself without commissions or high-salaried heads of departments. His salary is naturally higher than Gov. Johnson's. Following is a comparison of the cost of government in the territory of Lower California and in commission-ruled California. If all the commissioners in this State were named the comparison would be more extensive, but no more striking:

Monterey Camp.

fessional men in the camp, however. The vast majority of the cadets are engaged regularly in some commercial work—and disprove effectively the theory that the average business man is physically deficient.

GRIND IN SIGHT.

The fellows who have elected to specialize to an extent on military engineering are grooming their muscles and preparing to grow callouses on their palms. Capt. Richard Park of the regular army engineering corps has offered preliminary instruction in road building and map making, but the theoretical teaching will be abandoned this week for the real thing. Pontoon bridge building, infantry trench work and construction of temporary barriers will be demonstrated in grim actuality. The recruits will sally into the woodland on the military reservation at the Monterey Presidio, will fell trees, dress the timber, and slap the pontoons together; they will dig good mother earth in earnest and heap sand and timber in the path of imaginary charging cavalry.

During the past few days Capt. Park has set some weird puzzles for solution by the rookies. Every man in the ranks has to learn how to find himself with the aid of a field map. Worse still for the unitiated, he has to learn to find distances with no other standard of measurement than his two legs. That is, he has to learn to pace off a mile within an error-limit of fifty yards. The results of such measurements he has to record on a rudimentary map of the countryside.

There is one hopeful feature for the fellows struggling with the mazes of a map. Not a soul has to learn the secrets of a coffee pot or potato boiler. Army cooking is the sole angle of military service the recruits are not allowed to tackle. The work is all done by men of the regular army service and no citizen-soldier can hope to advance higher than waiter or dishwasher in the culinary department.

Brig.-Gen. W. A. Sibert, the camp commander, yesterday expressed great pleasure with the results obtained in the first week of training.

"I am of the opinion that all this will result in the organization of a splendid reserve force of citizen soldiers throughout the nation," he said. "These men are active, earnest and most of them physically fit for active service.

"It is possible that orders may be issued which will permit them to take an oath to respond to a call for volunteers at any time during two years from date of enrollment. If that is done it will be possible to enroll them in regiments and provide government equipment. At present they must be kept on a cadet basis."

The deep-lying air of serious purpose noted at the camp finds visible expression in the strictness with which military regulations are enforced at the guard lines. Guard duty, like the cooking, is carried on for practical purposes by the enlisted men of the regular army who are serving as instructors at the camp. Not a few joy-riders have essayed to rush the lines, under the impression the whole thing is a holiday affair. They have been rudely disillusioned. Some of them even know how it feels to be gently but firmly pricked with a bayonet. As a result fewer and fewer motorists seem overcome with a desire to treat a soldier as they would a traffic policeman. The sentries are all armed with ball ammunition and are as business-like as they look.

Meantime this is rest day at Monterey. There's nothing to do till tomorrow—when the bugles blow at 5 a.m.

LOS ANGELES COUNTY WORTH NEARLY ONE BILLION DOLLARS.

"THE billion-dollar county of Los Angeles" is at last a reality, instead of being merely the happy thought of the statisticians given to the lumping of figures. We have the word of County Assessor Hopkins for it. Mr. Hopkins, it might be added, has some ninety ponderous volumes, each packed from cover to cover with the incontrovertible deductions of a battery of adding machines, to offer by way of substantiation of his assertion.

The actual grand total valuation of nonoperative and operative property in Los Angeles county, according to the official assessment figures finally computed yesterday, is $995,171,925. This staggering sum is made up of the total of property of all kinds assessed for city, county and State purposes by the County Assessor's office, amounting actually to $984,323,675, and an estimate of $10,848,250 representing the valuation of steam railroads, which are still assessed directly by the State. The estimate is a repetition of last year's railroad total, and is perhaps a little low, and certainly not too high.

Last year's grand total county assessed valuation was $857,445,700. The increase of $137,726,225 represents an advance of 16 per cent.

IN TWO CLASSES.

The total valuation of nonoperative county property, taking in real estate, building improvements and personal property, and in which, of course, the public is, at this moment when county and city taxation are the topic of the hour, the most interested, is given by Mr. Hopkins at $802,081,075, an increase over the 1915 total of $97,039,730, or about 14 per cent. The total of operative property, which is to say, the valuation on which the public utility corporations pay their taxes to the State, is $182,242,600 for 1916, as against $141,556,105 for last year. Because the corporations are compelled to pay their share of the interest on all county and city bonds issued prior to 1910, when amendment No. 1, releasing them from local taxation and transferring their taxes to the State, went into effect, it still falls upon the county and city assessors to annually appraise their holdings.

HALF BILLION IN CITY.

The total valuation of property in Los Angeles city alone for 1916 is given by Mr. Hopkins at $486,815,815. City Assessor Mallard gave an estimated total of around $470,000,000 yesterday, but explained that the replacing of five of his experienced clerks by new civil service appointees during the final checking up had made it impossible for him to complete his computations and that his figure was not to be considered as anything but approximate. The city and county values for the city will, of course, be identical when everything has been checked up, owing to the policy adopted of making a uniform appraisal for the two assessors' offices beginning with this year. Mr. Hopkins asserts that his totals have all been carefully worked out and expresses the belief that the changes to be made by the City Council and the Board of Supervisors, sitting as boards of equalization, will not materially alter the totals for the city as presented by him yesterday.

The city valuation for 1915 was $402,005,925. The increase of $84,809,890 represented by the 1916 total as offered by Mr. Hopkins amounts to a little over 21 per cent. This sets at rest many of the widely divergent guesses and is the answer to the general speculation and the numerous utterances, public and private, on the subject. The total valuation having been determined, it all rests with the City Council and the Board of Supervisors engaged in fixing the budgets as to what percentage of this amount is to be demanded for expenses. The rates for county and city are the things now and it follows that there will have to be a real and substantial reduction from last year's budget demands and last year's rate to insure the general lowering of taxes, let alone to guarantee that they will be no higher for the host of property owners whose properties have been raised.

VALUE OF REAL ESTATE.

The total city valuation for real estate alone by the county figures this year is $312,645,550, as compared with $231,725,335 for 1915, an increase of $80,920,215, or 34 per cent., thus amply confirming the prevalent belief of a large advance in this respect. Improvements, on the other hand, show only a slight advance, being valued at $115,093,385 this year as against $113,737,090 last year. Allowing $7,000,000 for new buildings erected during the the past year, or half of last year's building permit total, it follows that there has been a considerable reduction in the total valuation of improvements that have stood a year or more.

Mr. Hopkins is authority for the statement that three-fourths of the real estate of Los Angeles has been raised and three-fourths of the improvements lowered in valuation as the result of this year's assessment. He further states that about 60 per cent. of the owners of homes in the city will be called upon to pay less taxes this year than last, even if the budget makers do no more than keep the amount of money they demand down to the figure of last year. His deductions, he declares, are based on a careful analysis of the mass of figures in his possession.

Approximately $10,000,000 out of the total increase in valuation in Los Angeles city, according to Mr. Hopkins, is represented by the value of property in lands annexed to the city since the last assessment. This would leave roughly $75,000,000, instead of the $84,809,890 representing the difference between last year's and this year's total assessment, as the amount of increase actually due to the advancement of valuations by the Assessor's office. The personal property valuation for 1916 in the city is $59,076,880, an increase of $2,533,380 over 1915.

OUTSIDE GROWTH.

Outside the city of Los Angeles the county valuation total for 1916 is given at $315,265,260, as compared with $303,035,420 for last year. This is an advance of 4 per cent. Real estate outside the city was increased from $208,832,560 to $225,579,960. Improvements, which for the county assessment includes not only buildings, but producing trees of various kinds, were reduced from $62,247,490 to $58,655,380. Personal property was reduced from $31,955,370 to $31,029,920.

The thirty-five incorporated cities of the county outside of Los Angeles accounted for $171,063,881 out of the total county valuation for 1916. The valuation in the same cities in 1915 was $153,160,295. The real estate in these cities was increased from $91,340,280 to $112,552,105 and the improvements were decreased from $44,384,400 to $40,694,365.

PASADENA'S WEALTH.

The valuation total of Pasadena was increased from $40,676,795 to $42,952,940, the real estate going from $21,221,200 to $24,769,110. In Long Beach there was a jump in the total valuation from $25,416,240 to $29,706,925, the real estate alone being raised from $15,607,840 to $20,565,570. The valuation total of Santa Monica was advanced from $11,198,285 to $11,885,520, the real estate being increased from $7,302,370 to $8,300,180. The Pomona valuation was advanced from $7,481,601 to $8,380,060, the valuation of real estate going from $3,985,215 to $4,877,060. In Glendale the total valuation grew from $4,373,970 to $5,139,585, the real estate being increased from $2,524,795 to $3,293,490.

GREAT TASK DONE.

Mr. Hopkins stated yesterday afternoon that 750,000 separate pieces of property of all kinds had been appraised by his office in the county as a whole, about half of these being in Los Angeles city. About 2500 complaints, he said, had been received to date by the Board of Supervisors acting as a board of equalization, and 90 per cent. of these, he dedeclared, had related to valuations placed on Los Angeles city property.

Mr. Hopkins expects to put in one of the busiest days of his life tomorrow, when he appears with the Supervisors for the last day's official hearing of protests from those dissatisfied with their assessments, as something like an eleventh-hour rush of complainants is anticipated.

Invited to Return.

SONORA LANDS RESTORED TO LOS ANGELES OWNERS.

HERBERT A. SIBBET, general manager of the Richardson Construction Company of this city, received a telegram yesterday from American Consul Simpich at Nogales, Sonora, in which the latter stated that he had been notified by Mexican officials that the order issued by Gov. Adolfo de la Huerta to confiscate the Richardson company's property in Sonora last week has been vacated.

Gov. Huerta of Sonora recently declared the Richardson Construction Company an enemy of the Mexican de facto government. The administrator who was appointed by the Governor to take charge of the Los Angeles company's property has been withdrawn, according to Mr. Simpich's message.

The American Consul states that business men in this country have been invited to return to Sonora to assume charge of their holdings in that State, and to resume their activities, under the protection of the de facto government.

The property owned by the company, of which W. E. Richardson of this city is president, includes about 600,000 acres of fertile farm land, valued at many millions of dollars.

"Despite the assurances of protection offered by the Mexican officials, we shall not be able to resume our operations in Sonora until we receive a notice from the government officials at Washington," Mr. Sibbet said yesterday. "We have never done anything to incur the enmity of the de facto Mexican government and we have felt confident that Gov. Huerta would ultimately vacate the order appointing an administrator for our property." All of the American settlers and employees of the Richardson company's property left Sonora last month and have not yet returned.

Cracksmen Labor Hours, Bore Hole that Reveals Gold Coins in Downtown Strong Box, but Completely Fail to Reach the Loot.

Yeggmen who worked for two hours on the safe of the Sun Drug Company store at Sixth street and Broadway early yesterday not only had nothing to show for their labor when they retreated as the sun arose, but also left with the agonizing memory they had gazed upon $1200 in gold through a small hole they had bored, without being able to lay their hands upon the coin.

Using sledge hammers, cold chisels and other paraphernalia employed by the conventional cracksman, the intruders apparently labored from late at night until early morning. When the employees of the store opened the doors yesterday morning they discovered the battered safe, still holding its precious contents.

This is the second downtown burglary reported in a week.

PRAISES WON AT FIRST REVIEW,

Showing of Civilian Cadets Called Remarkable.

Result of Intensive Effort, Says Gen. Sibert.

Sabbath Lull in Activities Welcomed at Camp.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MILITARY TRAINING CAMP, MONTEREY, July 15.—Twelve hundred citizen soldiers, comprising the First Regiment, Pacific Division, Provisional Troops, passed their first regimental review this morning with a snap and swing that won for them words of high commendation from Brig.-Gen. W. L. Sibert and Col. Frederick Perkins.

"That a new regiment can pass through a review as acceptably as this regiment has just done is, to my mind, a remarkable achievement," observed Gen. Sibert as the last company marched past the reviewing station. "I have never before seen such intensive work," he added, "and the results are commensurate with the effort."

Many of the cadets limped on blistered feet as they walked, giving to the regiment the appearance of a body of troopers completing a forced march of many miles, while a clod of dust floated like a halo above their heads; but there were no disconsolate faces nor dragging steps; the nonchalance of the troops suggested the close of a successful reconnaissance.

Col. Perkins swelled with visible pride. "Recruits in the regulars seldom do so well after six months drilling," he said. "It hardly seems possible that these men have had but four and a half days af actual training."

Among the cadets there was a lively desire to know what the regular officers really thought of their work; their greatest fear seemed to be that they were not making a creditable showing for the citizen soldiery.

ENTHUSIASM AMAZES.

Noncommissioned officers among the regulars are at a loss to understand the pluck and enthusiasm of the cadets. The men selected for the work of instruction have all served several years in the regular ranks, and are used to dealing with new men who do just as little work as possible. They cannot yet grasp the mental attitude of men who consider it an honor to obey.

This afternoon and tomorrow the cadets are privileged to go where they like, provided they are in their tents at the sound of taps and respond to reveille. There are nearly 200 private automobiles in camp, the property of the citizen-soldiers. Most of these were in use this afternoon for excursions about Monterey Bay, but more than 100 of the cadets reported for rifle practice on the Presidio range at Monterey. This practice was optional. At the close of the encampment there are to be some competitive tests between the best of the cadet marksmen and crack shots of the regulars of the Coast Artillery. The scores this afternoon were all considered unofficial.

On the aviation field a Bleriot monoplane was taken wholly apart and reassembled by the aero corps. Necessary repairs were made to the machine to enable it to be used for practice flights Monday. All next week forty cadets will be at work dismantling and reassembling monoplanes and biplanes. The planes on which the cadets work will not be used for actual flights. Two special machines have been reserved for the flights of the eight actual bird men.

INVENTOR IN CAMP.

One of the achievements of the first week of camp is the perfection of an automatic attachment which permits the use of twenty-two short cartridges in a regulation forty-five caliber army pistol. This invention comes from Co. I; it belongs to J. H. Carl of Gilroy. He had been working on the idea for several months, but it was not perfected until last night. The commissioned officers show a lively interest in it, as it will mean a saving of 50 per cent. on cost of ammunition used in pistol practice. Col. Perkins said this afternoon that the ordnance department has been seeking such a device ever since a somewhat similar attachment was invented for use in rifle practice. A number have been offered but all were imperfect. In trial this morning the pistol wasted but two cartridges in 300 shots. The attachment is comparatively inexpensive, and can be used with any regular army pistol.

That many of the cadets are not cutting wholly away from the civilian past is evidenced by the fact that a collection has been taken up in camp to get both the latest stock reports and the baseball scores every afternoon. These are collected by the Western Union operators and placed on the bulletin board at the post exchange. An enterprising salesman of automobile sundries is in a fair way to make a small fortune by the time the camp closes.

Willie Ritchie, former lightweight boxing champion, has joined the aviation corps, and asserts that he has an ambition to become as noted as a bird man as he was formerly as pugilist. He learned today, however, that it would become necessary for him to serve at least a year as a ground-hog before he could hope to participate in a practice flight.

TALK ON RABBITS.

And Poultry Lectures at Chamber of Commerce Hall.

The business side of raising rabbits will be told at the opening lecture of the week in the noon series at the Chamber of Commerce lecture hall. After this week the poultry course will be discontinued until September.

The lectures begin promptly at 12 o'clock noon. Following is the programme for the week:

Tomorrow—"The Real Business of Raising Rabbits" (genuine facts by an expert,) Mrs. C. A. Richey, Pet Stock Farm, Alhambra, breeder of prize-winning New Zealand rabbits, pheasants, Barred Rocks, White Minorcas, bantams, etc.

Tuesday—"Brooding Large Flocks of Chicks by the Stove Method," B. R. Holloway, Holly Poultry Ranch, Van Nuys, breeder of White Leghorns.

Wednesday—"Selection and Mating of Breeding Stock," E. E. Emerson, breeder of prize-winning White Leghorns, Burbank.

Thursday—"Despise Not the Day of Small Things" (insects, the poultryman's greatest enemy,) Dr. G. Irwin Royce, election commissioner American Poultry Association of California, Glendale.

Friday—"Comparative Cost of Raising Pullets in California and the East" (a practical talk from experience,) R. C. Beardsley, breeder of White Leghorns, Van Nuys.

A Revival of Shakespeare.

[Scranton Republic:] Indications are not lacking that the time is ripe for a revival of Shakespeare's plays, and farsighted theatrical managers would do well to take cognizance of this important fact. The public has had a surfeit of the "dumb drama" of the screen, and we believe it would welcome once more the eloquence of the human voice in the interpretation of Shakespeare's opulent and immortal lines.

MUSICAL

SYMPHONIC NOVELTIES.

MANY INTERESTING NEW WORKS ARE PLANNED HERE.

If the war permits there are some big plans for new musical offerings that will be carried out by the Symphony Orchestra this coming season. And anyone who has glanced at the list of compositions already ordered will be more than willing to breathe a hope that Mars and his cohorts will give place to the desires of the heads of the orchestra in this particular instance. Old and new, the selections outlined are of rare and distinct interest. Some of them date back to the dim past, but a large majority are of today.

Heading the list of symphonies that have been ordered are, in point of novelty, the Sibelius, No 2, in D, and the Hugo Alfven Symphony, No. 3, in E, the latter played with great success under Stock's baton in Chicago last year. It is considered doubtful whether or not this work can be procured, as it is still in manuscript form, and is in considerable demand, but a strong effort is being made to secure it for one of the concerts next season. If it is not available then, it will be brought out here the following season. The work is one of unusual beauty, the composer being regarded as the foremost in Sweden at the present day.

The Sibelius Symphony in D is due for large popularity judging from the reception which was accorded the same composer's work in E minor last season. Other works contemplated for next season's programmes are the Schumann Symphony, No. 1, in B flat, and the Brahms Symphony, No. 2, in D.

Besides symphonies, compositions ordered include Cesar Franck's symphonic poem, "Les Djinns," the Italian serenade by Wolf; Rhapsodie Espagnole by Ravel, Suite Pastorale (Charbrier,) Istar Variation D'Indy, Children's Corner (Debussy;) "Carnival de Paris" (Svendsen;) Carnival Romaine (Berlioz;) "A Dance Rhapsody" (Delius;) "L'Apprenti Sorcier" (Dukas;) "Invitation to the Dance" (Weber-Weingartner;) Capriccio Italian (Tschaikowsky;) A Merry Overture (Weingartner;) suite in A minor (MacDowell;) "A Life of the Tsar," overture (Glinka;) "Tam O'Shanter" (Chadwick.) Other works promised for the coming season are "Till Eulenspiegel," symphonic poem (Strauss;) 1812 Overture (Tschaikowsky;) Egmont Overture (Beethoven,) and symphony in C (Jupiter) Mozart.

FEATURE PROGRAMME.

Every programme next year is to be marked by some outstanding feature, according to present plans. This will draw greater public interest to the concerts of the orchestra, and will have important value from an educational standpoint as well. The support of the orchestra promises to be unusually strong this year, and, especial efforts are to be made to stimulate the interest in the organization, the importance of which in the upbuilding of the city's artistic growth cannot be underestimated.

An interesting view on the situation is expressed by Frederick Kimball Stearns, who has recently been elected a director of the Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Stearns has had a vast amount of practical experience in the East with musical activities, and has spent much time in the study of orchestral conditions in the larger cities.

"Private donations alone tend to pauperize an organization, to induce class distinction and to prevent its being the big vital educational factor it should be to all classes," he said, in speaking of the present method of supporting the Symphony. "It is right, of course, to allow these generous people to make up the deficit each year, if there is one, and I think there is not a symphony orchestra in the United States which is self-supporting. But we want the people to give us their mental and moral support; we want them to buy tickets and come to the concerts, thus expressing their interest as well as their pride in the city's musical efforts.

"If the civic pride of a city confines itself to an occasional parade, or a spectacle such as the 'Julius Caesar' performance or the 'Fairyland' production, which are given only a few times at most, there is something lacking. What any city needs is permanent educational institutions in music as well as in art or literature, and there is nothing more vital in this line than a good symphony orchestra.

"There are only five or six other cities in the United States which have orchestras better than the Los Angeles Symphony. I should not call it a great orchestra yet, but it is very good, with an efficient leader, concert master and musicians. And the opportunities for presenting orchestral music properly are unsurpassed. I know of no other auditoriums as satisfactory as you have here, with the possible exception of Carnegie Hall in New York and the Auditorium in Chicago. When I recall the unattractive halls with poor acoustics, which so many cities are forced to use for their concerts, and in which the symphony plays to packed houses, I am more than ever convinced that it isn't another symphony hall which Los Angeles needs, but better support for the orchestra."

Composers' Club.

At last the local composer is to find his way to the fore in a distinctive and, perhaps, less arduous, manner than heretofore. A composers' club has just been formed, with the purpose of enabling the creatively inclined to have a hearing for their efforts in musical writing. No active public work will, of course, be done by the organization until next fall, but several busy sessions to lay foundation stones for the future, have already been held.

The club is an outgrowth largely of the recent contest held by the Matinee Musical Club, for the benefit of composers in this vicinity. The large representation of musical writers, and the marked interest that surrounded the event, led Mrs. James Henry Ballagh, president of the club, to endeavor to perfect an organization that should have the furthering of the local composer's career in mind.

The new organization has been linked to the contest out of which the idea grew, by the election of Oscar A. Rasbach, winner of the first prize, to the presidency. There are eighteen charter members.

The club has already received $100 from Frank J. Hart, president of the Southern California Music Company, to be used for prizes in contests to be carried out next year.

Swedish Singers Coming.

The Orfei Draengar, student singers of the University of Upsala, Sweden, are expected to make a concert tour of the United States next season, including the larger cities of the Pacific Coast in their itinerary. The chorus, it is said, will consist of about thirty voices carefully selected from a vast number of student clubs. It will be a truly representative Swedish male singing organization and the soloists will be selected with a view to match, if possible, the powers of the chorus.

Noted Teacher Here.

Charles F. Carlson, formerly dean of the musical conservatory of the University of Denver, and brother to the well-known local baritone, Anthony Carlson, has joined the Los Angeles colony of musicians. He has become a member of the teaching staff of the Von Stein Academy of Music and will have in charge the upbuilding of a department of opera training. Mr. Carlson is a composer and teacher of note and is particularly distinguished for successfully conducting opera classes, his pupils, it is said, having given an excellent account of themselves. In the field of composition he has written a very interesting setting of Tennyson's "Enoch Arden" verses.

Grunn Pupils.

Pupils of Homer Grunn, well-known local pianist and composer, presented a programme of the heavier type at Mr. Grunn's residence studio, No. 1601 West Forty-seventh street, Friday evening. The following were heard: Francis Ulrich, Lois Chambers, Marcia Adelmann, Elizabeth Day, Homer Simmons, Marguerite Kinley, Elizabeth Barrett, Emma Eble, Irvina Shanklin and Rose Woltmann. Selections from the works of Bach, Chopin, Tschaikowski, Grieg, MacDowell, Rachmaninoff and others of similar difficult type were presented.

SOME ABSURDITIES OF OPERA.

The Knight on the Back of the Swan and the Fattily Degenerate Stage Hug—Anticlimaxes for a New Music Revolution to Sweep Away.

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

THE musician type of mind is, of all genius, the most peculiar. There seems to be required, in order to produce great musical genius, an atrophy of those sections of the intellect which are not concerned in the making of music. In the creating of musical genius, it would seem to have been necessary that much be taken from the balance of the brain in order to concentrate upon that one gift and develop it. There are many cases, of course, in which musical genius has been combined with a clear intelligence and many talents, but they are too few to be considerable. The type, on the whole, is unbalanced.

It is an unusual thing to find a painter of talent who will respond to the Elsie series, or a great writer who will respond to Leybach's Fifth Nocturne; but you will find a musician of real genius with knitted woolen mats on the back of her chairs, or poppy pieces of burnt leather on the table. Musicians talk of tone-color, and they understand it, but otherwise they are color-blind. I have talked to a great symphony conductor upon the subject of color in music, and writhed the while at his mustard-colored suit of clothes and his salmon tie. A painter may dress eccentrically, and usually does, but there's some taste about the ensemble, some visible purpose, while the musician dresses in the poorest taste imaginable, and with the utmost confidence in his success. And they marry unesthetic-looking wives, who seem to account for Schopenhauer and his diatribe against the sex. Is it that musicians are mostly German and that Germans are mostly unesthetic? No, it is simply a part of musical genius and applies in more or less degree to the musicians of every nation.

What I am trying to do, of course, in sketching the musical type of mind in these rude lines, is to account for opera. There must be some way to account for opera, and it is interesting to note that musicians are not only inartistic in their love of opera, but in many other respects. The truth is that a musician is rarely an artist in anything but his music. The universal artistic impulse is not often embodied in a musical genius, while it very often is found in an amateur. The man who can sit at a piano for seven hours a day, more or less, and train his fingers, must have peculiarities of brain and nervous system which another type lacks. A composer must have a different organism from common humanity. The "temperament," which we are all so tired of hearing about, is an actuality. And the type of mind is as real.

For a rich example there is Mozart, whose letters will put at rest any one's doubts as to the genuineness of the temperament. "I love strange words which have no meaning," says Mozart, "such as 'Schnuur . . . knaller paller . . . Schnepeperl' and when I hear them my amusement is so great that I fairly jump around with pleasure." Crazy? No, simply a rare example, as I have said, of the "temperament." Mozart was delicious. He laughed at nothings, and when he was married he burst into tears at the close of the service—although that can hardly be said to be without reason. He was, like all good Germans, a great hater; the sort that Goethe speaks of when he says that a man cannot be an artist unless he can learn to hate. There was none of the love for all humanity in Mozart.

The operas of Mozart are full of good humor, as the man was, and as his music is. Mozart's music literally laughs all the way along.

Yes, he laughed, as I have said, at nothing in particular, but it was a laughter so real and spontaneous that it colored his whole life as it did his music. In a letter to his father telling of his mother's death, he winds up with a joke, and a not too pious one, either. Mozart died—of trouble and misery, by the way—at about 35 years, but he felt no dread of death. He had accustomed himself to expect it, and look forward to it, with his usual good nature, as rather a pleasing event. Mozart's was a mirth-loving and blithe nature, and he got what most unsuspicious persons get—fooled. Not by the people, but by the thing he trusted. He had no illusions about the people, and he knew that money was what he wanted. He said that next to health, he wanted money, and he made his operas pay. Of course, they were wonderful music, for the public does sometimes pay for good music when it is attached to a bad libretto.

Mozart said that he loved opera better than anything else in music, and no doubt he did, but that was because he was only a musician and nothing else. He had no literary tastes, or what would he have done with the stories furnished him? Thrown them, as would have any good editor, into the waste paper basket.

For example there is the "Marriage of Figaro" with its count who falls in love with his wife's maid, while the countess falls in love with, I think, the count's page. The maid puts woman's attire on the page, who conceals himself in the closet, but the count insists upon looking for him even there, and by some rare good chance the page manages to get out the window and the maid to take his place in the closet, which confuses the count somewhat and causes him to emit some most lovely music as a result. Then, and to keep up the excitement, the maid and Novelty.

AUTHOR'S FIRST PLAY.

"SERVANT-MASTER-LOVER" HAS PREMIERE TODAY.

A new playwright will make his bow today. Youthful J. H. Lawson will watch the premiere of his first creation, "Servant - Master - Lover." There are to be other striking offerings on the Rialto this week, but new plays always seem to afford a superior thrill, especially when they are by brand new playwrights.

Vaudeville offers some unusually good things, too—headline acts including the grand opera singer, George MacFarlane, and a playlet entitled "The Heart of Chicago," a tabloid version of Lincoln J. Carter's spectacular melodrama.

Morosco.

"Servant-Master-Lover" is the title of a brand new play by a brand new author, J. H. Lawson, who is only 23 years of age. The piece will receive its first production at the Morosco Theater this afternoon, with Ida St. Leon, Mary Servoss and Paul Harvey in the leading roles, and the full strength of the very excellent Morosco company supporting.

The story is that of a whimsical little Cinderella of the slums. The first act shows her, a pathetic figure among the boxes and bales of a huge storage warehouse, where she has been snatching a bit of sleep for want of a better place. Here she meets by accident the "prince" of her dreams, a story writer, and the remainder of the play tells how her dreams become a reality.

Beside the actors named above, Leo Carrillo, Fred Tiden, Howard Scott, Joseph Eggerton, William MacDonald, Harry Duffield, Jack Belgrave, David Butler, Herschall Mayall and Emily Melville will play parts for which they are well cast.

Mason.

"The Brat," Maude Fulton's play, which has been scoring a tremendous hit at the Cort Theater in San Francisco, will come to the Mason for a limited engagement, opening tomorrow night.

The sparkling, human little play is still acted by its original cast, which includes Maude Fulton, Edmund Lowe, Wyndham Standing, Lillian Elliott, James Corrigan, A. Burt Wesner, Gertrude Maitland, Marjorie Davis and others.

Burbank.

Maude Fulton's delightful comedy, "Mary," will be withdrawn from the Burbank stage to make way tomorrow night for Frederic Chapin's amusing farce, "C.O.D.," said to be one of the best laugh getters ever put on. The play concerns the amusing adventures and entanglements of three couples who are summering in the Catskill Mountains. The farce is said to be funnier than "Charley's Aunt," "Officer 666," "The Man from Mexico" or any of the other favorites.

Edith Lyle, Harry Hollingsworth, Douglas MacLean, Frank Darien, Winifred Bryson, John Burton, Warner L. Baxter, Ralph Bell, Dora Mab Howe, Vera Lewis, Nan Carter, George MacDaniel and others will be seen in the play.

Orpheum.

Two headliners are announced on the Orpheum bill opening tomorrow. Besides, all the other acts are said to be of the highest quality.

George MacFarlane, the American baritone, is one of the top liners. He has lately made a big hit in the all-star Gilbert and Sullivan opera tours, and brings to vaudeville the best of his repertoire.

The other top-notch act is that of Clark and Hamilton, the former being a well-known English comedian, and his partner, Miss Hamilton, a lady noted for her beauty. The name of their act is "A Wayward Conceit."

Others on the bill will be Harry Tighe and Sylvia Jesen, in song, dance and patter; Libonita, the ragtime xylophonist, and the holdovers, including Nat M. Wills, Wilfred Clarke and company in "Who Owns the Flat?" Claudia Albright and Manuel Rodolfi, in operatic selections, and the Gladiators.

Pantages.

"The Heart of Chicago," a tabloid version of Lincoln J. Carter's famous spectacular melodrama, with the sensational drawbridge scene, headlines the new Pantages bill opening tomorrow.

Others will be Cleopatra, who will re-enact the closing scenes of the Queen of Egypt's career as the Siren of the Nile; Clark and Chapelle, the "saleslady and saleswoman;" the Kerville Family of billiardists; Three Helvins, acrobats; Baby Violet in character impersonations, and the latest chapter of the Billie Burke serial.

Hippodrome.

A fascinating midsummer bill is promised at the Hippodrome beginning tomorrow.

Belle and Eva open with a trampoline acrobatic novelty; Bert Ward has some good songs and stories; West and Van Siclen will offer "The Rose Arbor," a musical oddity.

"The Soldier of Propville," presented by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Esmonde, promises to be a playlet of unusual attractiveness.

Others will be Ray and Ray, in a singing and dancing turn; Warren and Dietrich, comedian and singer, and the Juggling Bannans.

Republic.

Unusual offerings are many on the new vaudeville bill that comes to the Republic tomorrow. The tramp Caruso furnishes a turn that will probably be of unusual interest to local theatergoers because of the fact that he is a home product. He was discovered singing in an alley, hoping thus to receive a few pennies from the chance passersby.

Others on the bill will be Stedman and Richards, German comedians, a near Kolb and Dill turn; Franzeska and Jackie, with a surprise act; La Vere and Palmer, harmony singers and character change artists; Harry Reichman, the comedy pianologist, and Boniger and Lester, comedy singers and instrumentalists.

Fingering Finery.

AMONG THE STORES AND AMIDST THE SHOPS

Along Our Dazzling Streets, where Dame Fashion's Shopping is Done.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

Now is the time to buy:

The ready-to-don summer frock, in one of the sales of such fluffy ruffles which this week offers opportunity.

One more hat untrimmed, as a last offering to summer, which you may obtain in many different straws for just a few cents, in a certain sale for the purpose of calling attention to 'way-down prices in a 'way-down basement.

Nectarines, the most delectable of fruits, which are now in the market in perfection. Both to partake of fresh and to preserve or can, this peachy-plum is among the best of the Burbanked fruits.

Practical Suggestion.

In washing white silk garments, either knitted or of the fabric, if you will place in the rinse water a few drops of peroxide it will prevent the silk from turning yellow.

A Man's Indictment.

"I do hate to see a mussy woman!" exclaimed a man I know, and somehow, although he himself is cleanliness personified, minus all Beau Brummelish frills, I was surprised to hear him thus express himself; but it set me to thinking. I wonder if half the women who seem to care about the impression which they make do fully realize that when all is said it is more the matter of neatness than that of style which proclaims them. While, I believe, most men care that the women of their family shall be smartly dresed, they care first of all for that personal daintiness which is above and beyond all, the charm of femininity. It is rather a simple matter, too, and one which does not call for great expenditure of either time or money. Personal cleanliness, of course, is the foundation. Absolute perfection must be here. Daintiness cannot be built upon less than this. Next, clothes in order and put on in such a way as to seem a part of the person wearing them—not something tacked on as an after thought and poorly assimilated. In other words, even in this material state of our existence clothes should be thought on—or, at least should give the impression of being an emanation from our inmost selves. In other words, our clothes should express us—and whether we so will or no, they are likely to do so.

Newest Sweaters.

At that Knittery where they make sweaters, bathing suits and all their kin, I was surprised to find sweaters with the very latest sailor collars and in fact every little touch which you may have observed in the latest fashion magazine. Somehow, you do not expect knitted things to keep in such perfect touch with the advancing mode; but this knittery, being a Los Angeles institution, does keep right up to highest pitch in style as well as quality. The girls who go there for their bathing suits are always in the swim.

A Forest of Shoe Trees.

"There!" exclaimed Evelyn, as she scanned the advertising of that place which ocasionally makes a point of lowest prices in basements just to show what basements are for. "There!" I mean to get enough shoe trees to tree every pair of my shoes. It certainly does ad to the longevity of one's shoes to have them treed." And I see we may get shoe trees for half price this coming week. By the way Evelyn always tips her shoe trees with bits of silk and inserts a few sprinkles of oris powder, which gives them just an additional touch of daintiness.

One More Dustless.

The one more dustless duster which is always needed by the Good Housekeeper may be obtained for the merest fraction of a dollar during a big sale this week.

Supers.

"Super collars" is what the French dressmakers call the take off collars of organdie or lace which are placed above the collars of the gowns. And, by the way, those super collars are just what give the touch of daintiness to the costume.

Not Too Early.

Although it may seem early to begin thinking of Christmas, the provident needlewoman is already planning the wonderful creations which she will achieve for friendly gifts and, the very wise ones are taking advantage of the visit of that skillful needle-man now visiting one of the popular stores, for from him they may learn lore quite magical. Have you observed in the windows those lilies and other flowers in full relief, which stand forth boldly, done in knitting or crochet? You would be ready to declare that some new flora-culture had sprung into being in some enchanted garden, to produce such wonderful creations. But, if you will pay a visit to that art needlework section where the man is ensconced, you may there be able to evolve creations quite as magical.

July Patience.

The woman who has had the patience to wait for the great midsummer sales, for some of the apparel which she has been wanting, may begin this week to reap the harvest of her waiting. She will save, in some of the clearance sales so high a percentage as will go far toward the purchase of her autumnal wardrobe.

That Brace of Shops.

"Never, never!" exclaimed the lady from Arizona, "did I imagine anything so convenient as that brace of shops where one may center all one's shopping activities. I had not thought it possible, before, upon coming to town for but a day or two, to find with so little trouble, everything one wanted and all of the so-different sort." Then she added with satisfaction, "With my buying so quickly out of the way I can give nearly all my time to pleasure at the beach and the theaters."

"Rose Garden of Gowns."

That is what the man calls it and I think he is right, for they are truly as alluring as a garden filled with roses and each frock is as individual as is every rose upon a tree full of them, or each flower in a garden wherein are myriads of the soft-petalled people. And, really, do you know, summer frocks are or should be the most unusual, the most individual of garments? So many possibilities there are with frills and softly-falling folds in thin materials.

The Touch of Black.

The touch of black is never forgotten by the French dressmakers and, in fact, it has doubtless more to do with the chic and charm of their creations than any other single thing. This wondrous touch is most often given by means of black velvet ribbon; and that is why positive excitement prevails when it is discovered that in a sale of such ribbons, during the coming week, great big fractions may be saved in buying. For black velvet ribbon in the sewing closet is like money in the bank. It always comes in handy.

Writ on Fashion's Tablets.

Coat collars are uncommonly high.

Fur on linen blouses is the latest novelty.

HAPPY THOUGHT CLUB SYMPOSIUM.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

An effort was made to enlist the Happy Thought Club in the crusade for making California a dry State and some of the members are not exactly certain yet how it came out.

It was brought up with a rush at the symposium yesterday afternoon. It was in the form of a resolution sponsored by Esmeralda Hooligan, who is the authoress of the campaign song beginning: "The lips that lick liquor will never lick me."

The Cheerful Nut claimed that the resolution was out of order on the theory that the club sought to evade entangling alliances on politics or religion, but President Tootles declared that they might as well try to rule out love and literature.

It was agreed to submit it without debate, however, and save that much friction. On a count of noses the secretary reported thirty-six ayes and thirty-six noes. It was a tie vote. Everybody looked at the president to decide, but that worthy said that in the absence of any bylaw he did not have to vote at all—and would not.

Although President Tootles is a pronounced advocate of temperance he would not commit himself before the club and the result was that the resolution failed of passage.

"But the end is not yet," hissed Esmeralda through her clenched teeth.

The new information bureau of the club in connection with its activities reported having to turn out in the middle of a recent night to settle a dispute between two doctors over the treatment of a case of hives. Both were mental healers but differed on the thought. The information bureau gave the happy thought which put the patient to sleep serenely confident that nothing ailed him.

In the collection of Hughes rhymes the secretary read the offering of Amelia Oriole Schmitke, the laureled laureate of Claremont. There were half a dozen stanzas of the limerick pattern, a selection being as follows:

Concerning Charlie.

In case you should need some more news
In regard to our friend, Charlie Hughes,
I send to your club—
"Happy Thought"—there's the rub—
Some lines for your eyes to peruse.

The symposium, I'm sure, can't refuse
To learn more of Charlie E. Hughes,
So as I'm a co-ed,
Happy Thought in my head—
May I join now the Sunshiners' cruise?

There's a much-whiskered party named Hughes,
Who's bound to give Wilson the blues:
When the votes are all in,
He will find with a grin
He is wearing the President's shoes.

And so when our friend, Charlie Hughes,
Fares forth on his long four years' cruise,
His sponsors out West,
Will at once do their best,
To give to Charles E. his just dues.

The secretary was instructed to communicate to Amelia that her offering was accepted as a rhymed application for membership in the Sunshine Sisterhood section of the club and if she will contribute her happy thought she will be eligible to wear the pin of that branch.

J. Walsingham Cooney, the bland old bard of Barred Rock, sent in a Hughes paean of victory patterned after the historic poem of ivory. It is as follows:

The White Plume.

All true Republicans rejoice;
Progressives, too, enthuse,
O'er such a stalwart candidate.
As Mr. Justice Hughes.

If in the fight his standard fall—
As fall full well it may;
For never was there promise yet
Of such a glorious fray.

Press where our leader's whiskers wave
Above the battle sea,
And let your slogan in the fight
Be "Hughes and Victory."

The Old Resident once more wore a chastened look and even those who knew not the circumstances knew that something had happened. It appears that he had received a valentine from Barbara Barbour, the fair barbarian of Santa Barbara, suggesting that he take her to the club picnic—it being leap year. He felt very much elated over the adventure and on his way from the office stopped at several places where elation is sold by the glass. As a result he presently forgot most of his good behavior and along about midnight he was rounded up by a bunch of motorcycle cops for throwing rocks through the windows of the Young Women's Christian Association rooms. He was locked up till near morning and had to put up $1000 for bail. He tried to send a telegram to Barbara, but the operator couldn't make out the address and the old man was too incoherent to give it.

President Tootles took the Old Timer to one side before the session opened and warned him that his sinful habits would get him into trouble and that he might be deprived of his club button for thirty days.

The old man begged piteously and explained about Barbara's valentine. "That's right," snorted Epictetus. "Blame it on the woman!"

The veteran showed a paragraph in the letter from Barbara in which she said: "One of my dictionaries gives this definition: 'The symposium was the intellectual side of the feast. It consisted of conversation and convivial songs rendered to the accompaniment of the lyre.' Now, as between friends, old pardner, who is the lyre?"

Uncle William Skaggs, who lives in the house that Bill built, back in the woods, forwarded an application for membership with a bit of political grand opera in the background. His communication was, in part, as follows:

"After weeping through your Happy Thought Club symposium today I have concluded that I am entitled to symp. with you. That is, of course, if the record of my past life doesn't keep me without the pale of the symps in this neck of the woods.

"As a Leading Light of the Liars' League the Good Fellows of my native town 'way back East kept me at the helm of their organization for three successive years, and if your Happy Thought Club has anything on the Good Fellows of old Pittsburgh you are indeed going some.

"I submit the following, which you will kindly attach to my application, and, while the balloting is in progress, have the other symps sing it to the tune of 'I dreamt that I Dwelt in Marble Halls.'

In Marble Halls.

For four years I've dwelt in marble halls,
With friend Tumulty by my side,
And of all who ever lived within those walls
I feel I'm the hope and the pride.
Power and glory are my constant boast,
My hope in life's wilderness;
I hunger that men my name shall toast,
But I fear I've missed my guess.
Yea, I fear I've made of it one bad mess,
And I greatly fear I have missed my guess.

I long to be It for four more years,
And I don't like to think of the day
When my successor in the White House appears,
And I from these halls fade away.
Ah, for some sign from the pork-barrel host
That they will uphold my claim!
Oh, for the words that I yearn for the most,
That they love me still the same!
That I am still, I am still in the game!
That they love me, they love me still the same!

Uncle William was invited to come in and bring his knitting with him.

Shortly after which the symposium adjourned to the soda fountain.

Meanwhile, all applications for membership, all limericks in competition, all suggestions for the club button, or any other club communication should be addressed to Eugene Brown, editorial rooms, The Times.

EDUCATORS, SCIENTISTS.

Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice, surgeon, scientist and South American explorer, will soon leave his summer home at Newport, R. I., for a trip along the Amazon River in Brazil. The explorer will be accompanied by Mrs. Rice. The trip, which is expected to occupy several months, will be made upon a yacht that will be especially prepared for the voyage. Dr. Rice received the patrons' medal of the Royal Geographical Society, London, for his work in the wilds of Brazil in 1907-1908, when for a long time it was feared he was lost. On his return he announced that he had reached the headquarters of the Orinoco and had found the source of the Rio Negro.

Byron S. Huhribut, dean of Harvard College for the last fourteen years, has resigned. He will not leave the college, however, but will continue as a member of the faculty as a professor of English, which title he has held since 1906. His office will be taken by Assistant Dean Henry A. Yeomans.

Prof. Roscoe Pound, who has been appointed dean of the law school of Harvard University, is a native of Nebraska. He was admitted to the bar in 1890, and for several years practiced at Lincoln. He is also well known as a botanist, having been director of the botanical survey of Nebraska, 1892-1903. He has written many monographs and articles for European and American botanical journals.

Some Absurdities.

mistress disguise as one another, meet in the garden and the two men with them. More confusion and lovely music! The wife unveils, is forgiven, and all ends well. The music to this atrocious nonsense is graceful and rollicking. It is all that the story is not, and it's a pity to waste it.

Mozart knew his public and did not despise it, but I am inclined to think that he did not despise the stories either. Whether the great composers of a later date despised the stories which they used, is uncertain; but it must be said that when the composers write the libretto, as Wagner and Strauss did, they may play to the public, but they have a healthy approbation of their own writings. It cannot be credible that Wagner would deliberately write his libretti in the full consciousness of their absurdity. He felt all the sublimity, but did not sense the ridiculous.

The stories Wagner used were in themselves not bad, as poetic legends; in his case it is the appurtenances which kill one's pleasure. For example "Rienzi" is a story by Bulwer, "The Last of the Tribunes," and it's a good story as that sort goes. The music is vigorous and splendid, and in the style of Wagner before he made his new departures. When the story is read, and when the music is heard, it is all good stuff, but when the opera is acted, it is altogether dreadful. There certainly should be music to be heard only, books to be read only, and perhaps, if one will drive production to its limit, plays to be acted.

"Tristan und Isolde" stands alone among the operas of passion. It is the supreme expression of love in music. It is an inspiration which carries us on dizzy heights, and brings us to the realization that Wagner felt emotion which have been denied to the most of humanity. Words cannot describe the beauty of "Tristan," and it never can be felt universally, because it is seen, and it loses so much in the representation. The rampant passion and tenderness expressed in the music, are tortured by the fact that the opera is acted by two huge singers (the managers do demand it be a man and a woman, at any rate) who embrace each other, to this most sensuous of all music, with every evidence of being determined to keep within the stage directions at all cost, and to be at least three inches apartment when they hug. It is ghastly. Not that Wagner's music demands the indecent; thorough-going kisses are not indecent; but operatic kisses are an insult to humanity. When I see Tristan acted, I could enter gladly into a scheme by which all acting would be abolished. Self-consciousness ruins the world, and why advocate it?

The use of magic draughts for the arousing of love in one act and the destroying of it in another is unpleasant in Wagner; and then there is his eternal menagerie. To see human beings and their plans upset by artificial dragons and all sorts of strange fowl is depressing to the artistic sense. And the swans and other birds of plumage take one's appetite, as George Moore points out. But on the whole there is much to be said for Wagner over the Italians.

Italian opera is food for the emotions of the unintelligent. The Italian opera of the first half of the nineteenth century (Verdi, Bellini, Rossini, etc.) dealt mostly with monastery scenes, with eloping abbesses and pro-consuls who were unfaithful to their wives. The same sort of plot which we have now, only a different vogue in personalities. Religion and infidelity are still used widely as motifs, but we now attach the events to artists, cowboys and orientals. If there is a religious woman in it she is young and good-looking — an improvement, on the whole, over the old-timers.

In the days of Scott and Bulwer, of Donizetti and the early Verdi, the heroine went into an unaccountable decline, or died suddenly of grief, as the case required. Now she either kills herself, or someone kills her. In a few isolated cases she still fades away. It is amusing to watch the development of the novel in this connection. The novelists are forcing, for the sake or realism, their heroines to outlive their love and to remain married to the hero long after they desire their marriage to continue—and so the subtleties begin. I doubt if that stage of realism will ever be achieved in opera until some music newer and even more complex that any we now know shall have been born, as the revolutions revolve.

With what sort of music shall we present the sordid miseries and monotonies of unhappy marriage? Music may be emotional as you please; it may express violent emotions and endless ecstacies, bitter hatred and irony, but how will it sing boredom? And how are we to have monotony chorded in music, and enjoy it? In ages long ahead, when the listener will have taken his post-graduate course, we may be able to realize boredom and monotony in music, but for the present we must have low or high lights in emotion, and therefore the operas must needs be absurd.

Puccini can express woe which will be apparent even to the illiterate (I recall a cloak woman in an opera-house who told me to hurry, as "them mournful sounds is beginning.") But how express subtle ennui which hovers over the breakfast table? It is one thing for Charpentier to represent the cry of Paris as it makes its appeal to Louise, and to picture her response. Those things are high lights and they are, in this instance, well done. But what of the girl who sits at a machine all day, and longs only mildly—for she is too depressed to long with any degree of passion—for the wide world? The wide world scarcely makes itself felt at all in the heart of such a girl. Well, she is not subject for an opera. Think of one of Theodore Dreiser's girls in an opera! It cannot be done. But shall we have nothing but raging love, murder and sudden death, operatically performed for a further indefinite period? Or shall we cling to legends of knights who go on a search for a Holy Grail, and gladly resign all personal desires and aggrandizement in the pursuit of the elusive ideal? If the knight has to go on the back of a swan, simply clad in his chapeau, I shall continue to plead for dramatic symphonies, sans actors and sans song.

But I can see, I think, the signs of a new music revolution, whose war cries shall be, "Death to the impossible swan!" and "A bas the unlovely loving!" And these, too, shall pass away.

BITS OF VERSE.

The Present Chance.

There may be other lives for me,
But that I do not know,
And other worlds for me to see
And other paths to go;
It may be I shall come again
Upon this earth to dwell,
But knowing not what will be then,
This life I would live well.

It may be souls of men return,
Though none can truly say,
To win perfection and to learn
Life's lessons, day by day;
But all I know beyond a doubt,
Is that my chance to be
Of worth is quickly slipping out
Toward that mysterious sea.

And if, perchance, some distant day,
My soul should come again
The devious paths of earth to stray
And know the haunts of men,
I think that I could face the strife
And joys and suffering, too,
If I had lived my precious life
Up to the best I knew.

The Salutation of the Dawn.

Listen to the exhortation of the dawn!
Look to this day! For it is life,
The very life of life.
In its brief course lie all the varieties
And realities of your existence;
The bliss of growth,
The glory of action,
The splendor of beauty;
For yesterday is but a dream,
And tomorrow is only a vision;
But today well lived
Makes every yesterday a dream of happiness,
And every tomorrow a vision of hope.
Look well therefore to this day!
Such is the salutation of the dawn.

At the Stations.

There are gatherings at the stations like you never saw before,
There are gatherings at the stations night and day.
There are crowds of old and young,
Native born and foreign tongue,
Just because the soldier boys are going away.

There is cheering at the stations as the trains go rolling past,
There is cheering at the stations night and day;
Crowds admire a soldier true,
Like they always ought to do,
And they cheer them just because they're going away.

There is weeping at the stations as the trains are pulling out,
There is weeping at the stations night and day;
There are mothers, sisters, wives,
Who are fearful for the lives
Of the soldiers who are going far away.

There are gatherings at the stations like you never saw before,
There are gatherings at the stations night and day;
There is laughter, there are cheers,
There are brave but silent tears,
Just because the soldier boys are going away.

"Every man who is called out of the Wanamaker stores in New York or Philadelphia to respond to the President's call for troops in the trouble with Mexico will continue on our rolls with full pay during the term of service." This statement by former Postmaster-General John Wanamaker recalls a similar statement he made in April, 1898, when President McKinley issued his first call for troops for the Spanish war. At that time Mr. Wanamaker not only declared his readiness for personal service, but offered to raise a full regiment and support it throughout the war, serving himself either as a colonel or as a private in its ranks, as the government might direct. He did raise 1200 men, who were accepted by Gov. Hastings of Pennsylvania, not as a regiment, but were detailed in companies to regiments that were not full. All these men received full pay from the store while in the service.

THE decorative possibilities of the new drapery and upholstery ideas shown by the California Furniture Company are almost unlimited.
Bright colors, strong contrasts and striking designs sound an entirely new note in interior decorations.
Birds, fruit, flowers and other objects are ingeniously reproduced in their natural hues that permit of most effective treatment and make possible a complete change in the atmosphere of the home at comparatively small cost.
So marked is the tendency towards color contrasts that the furniture pieces are frequently hand-painted, reproducing the motif or design of the draperies.

ROMANCES OF HISTORIC BACHELORS

How Their Experiences Influenced Their Lives.

VIII.

OLIVER GOLDSMITH.

BY MADISON C. PETERS.

Oliver Goldsmith, one of the most pleasing writers of the eighteenth century, was born in Ireland, where his father was a poor curate. His Irish bloods accounts, perhaps for the delicate humor, of which the "Vicar of Wakefield" and "She Stoops to Conquer" are such good examples. Even in these days of perfect technique in the drama, the latter does not seem as antiquated as some famous works of a hundred years later.

Goldsmith was the laughing stock of the schoolmasters. He was graduated "Wooden Spoon," a college name for dunce. He much preferred to while away the hours at public houses and gaming tables. He attended three colleges, Trinity at Dublin, where he chanced by a stroke of luck to get his B.A. degree; then at the universities of Edinburgh and Leyden; he left the latter institution in his twenty-seventh year—he had no degree and knew very little about medicine, the study of which he had been pursuing. Nothing daunted at his failures, he set out upon the high road of life with naught but his clothes and his flute. By writing little ballads for street musicians, he earned 5 cents a day. He rambled through France, Flanders, Switzerland and Italy, gaining his food and an occasional lodging for the night with his flute. He returned to England in 1756, experiencing all sorts of hardships.

At 28 he was penniless in London and lived in the beggars' quarters in Axe lane. He set up as a doctor in the suburbs of London. He wore a second-hand coat of rusty velvet, with a patch on the left breast which he covered with his three-cornered hat during his visits and the story is told of his contest of courtesy with a patient who persisted in relieving him of his hat, which only made him press it more devotedly to his heart. He had often to pawn his clothes to keep him from starving. His landlady once arrested him for rent. He finally embarked upon the career to which so many turn as a last resort—to literature. And what a struggle that was at first.

Dr. Johnson came to his relief, took from his desk the manuscript, "The Vicar of Wakefield," and sold it for $300. After "The Deserted Village" was first written, he spent two years revising it. For his "History of the Earth and Animated Nature" he received $4000, and "She Stoops to Conquer" had a large sale, but he was continually in debt, chiefly because he was imposed on by others. The world came late with its laurels to the weak, gentle, lovable author of "The Vicar of Wakefield," but it came and gave him a monument in the Poet's Corner in Westminster Abbey.

From the bitterest experiences he wrote these lines on the uses of [illegible]

[illegible] plants bestow
[illegible] spicy fragrance while they grow;
But crushed or trodden to the ground,
Diffuse their balmy sweets around."

In appearance Goldsmith was not prepossessing; he was short, stoop-shouldered and so pitted by smallpox that the boys made fun of him. He was not a good talker and did not shine at all in society, but the people who knew him loved him, numbering among his friends, Johnson, Burke, Reynolds and the Horneck family.

Mary Horneck was the woman he loved, but whether he ever asked her to marry him is not known. When Goldsmith met Mrs. Horneck and her two charming daughters, he took an immediate fancy to the whole family. He was diffident and ill at ease when in the presence of women of his own station, but these charming ladies knew just how to draw the shy-mannered man out of his shell and their friendship was one of life-long standing.

Always careless in his dress, Goldsmith now secured a most expensive tailor and took pains to purchase such little vanities as silver buckles, silk hose and neck ruffles of rare lace, all of which seemed to indicate a perturbed disturbance of the heart.

In [illegible] the Hornecks decided to make a tour of the continent and Goldsmith was asked to accompany them. He accepted the invitation with the greatest alacrity and after many conferences with his tailor, his haberdasher and his wigmaker, he started on a second tour, which was vastly different from his first tour abroad. The delightful companionship of the beautiful Jessamy Bride, as Mary Horneck was called, gave Goldsmith the greatest possible pleasure, and it was with real sorrow that he returned to England, where Mary was forced to divide her attention among several. His attentions to her were the cause of much joking among his friends, which caused him the utmost mortification, for he was extremely sensitive. The Jessamy Bride was probably the one woman that Goldsmith ever really cared for, though in his youth he was quite attentive to his cousin, Jane Contarine, though the attachment was probably only cousinly affection.

Poor Goldsmith died in 1774, very much in debt. Though he made a great deal of money out of his writings, he could not take care of it. His poverty alone kept him single. His health had been failing for some time, yet his death was unexpected and caused grief among many. The day of the funeral, Mary Horneck came to take a last look at him; the coffin lid had been put on, but Mary begged them to remove it so that she might look upon him once more. Left alone with him she fell on her knees beside the coffin and burst into passionate sobs and taking a pair of scissors from her bodice, she cut a lock of his hair which she treasured always. Miss Horneck afterward married Gen. Gwyn and lived well into the last century, dying in [illegible]. Nothing gave her such delight as stories relating to her youth—when the great Oliver Goldsmith was her very dear friend.

WILLIAM COWPER.

IX.

BY MADISON C. PETERS.

William Cowper was born in 1731 of good parents; his mother, who died when he was six years old, traced her ancestry to Henry the Third.

He fell madly in love with his first cousin, Theodora Jane Cowper, and she loved him. Her father, Ashley Cowper, forbade the marriage and Theodora was torn between love for her cousin and the duty to her father; fear predominated and she yielded to her father's wishes and severed all connections. Ashley Cowper's principal objection was on' the ground of the close relationship, although he feared that his nephew would never be able to support his family in comfort.

Theodora remained true to her first love and never married. It is generally believed that this disappointment was what first deranged the poet's mind. She preserved with tender care all the love poems he had written to her under the name of Delia. If Cowper could have married her, his life would doubtless have been less unhappy.

In 1765 Cowper met the Unwins and took up his abode with them. Two years later Mr. Unwin died, but Mrs. Unwin, "the Mary of his poems," and Cowper continued to remain together. It was through her gentle nursing and patient watchfulness that the poet recovered from his various attacks of insanity. She devoted her life to waiting on this man, with his dark soul, his fitful temper, who had at times nothing to give her but hatred. Mrs. Unwin was seven years older than Cowper, and he always declared their affection was purely platonic. Their friendship continued until her death in 1797. Cowper afterwards wrote his most sordid poem, "The Castaways."

About this time Cowper met Lady Austin, a witty, brilliant, fascinating and much traveled woman of the world. He was completely captivated with her and deserted Mrs. Unwin, who, if she felt any qualms of jealousy, failed to show them. Lady Austin directed the poet's thoughts and the result was "The Task" and "John Gilpin," his most laudable works, the latter having been inspired by a story told him by Lady Austin.

Lady Austin was the widow of a baronet and therefore free to marry Cowper, had either been so inclined. She was a woman of consummate tact and treated Mrs. Unwin with the greatest affection, being apparently as devoted to her as Cowper. But Lady Austin soon became tiresome; and her tiresomeness consisted in this, that she loved Cowper a great deal more than she was loved by him and she was always calling for those little demonstrations that women delight in.

She left Olney very suddenly and never saw Cowper again. Everyone knows the poet's muslin nightcap and his passion for hares, but he had the facility of flattering women by lifting the commonplaces of life into sweetness and nobleness.

Cowper sadly lamented Lady Austin's sudden departure, and her absence would have caused a grievous issue in his life had not his cousin Harriet, Lady Hesketh, come to Olney at that time. Lady Hesketh was cousin of his first love, Theodora, She was witty, and accomplished, and while her love was that of a cousin, she did everything to make Cowper as happy as possible, who, however, was never so happy as when he was miserable. He really enjoyed poor health; that was his specialty.

Mrs. Unwin died in 1797, and Cowper afterwards wrote his most sordid poem. He died in 1800.

OVER THE SEA.

Sir Edward Grey is the first British Foreign Minister to sit in the House of Commons since the day of Palmerston.

King George has given his sanction for the Duke of Connaught, whose term as Governor-General of Canada expires next October, to return to England. The Duke of Connaught became Governor-General of Canada in October, 1911. At the outbreak of the war the Duke had arranged to leave Canada, as the Prince of Teck had been announced as his successor, but for the present the Prince feels that he cannot leave his military duties.

British courts in war time give short shrift to titles. This was proved when Viscount Canterbury, lord of 5200 acres, was arraigned on a charge of being absent without leave when called up for war service. The viscount said he was doing work in a government office and far from trying to evade service, was seeking the duty most useful to his country, whatever it might be. The magistrate swept the defense aside and fined the prisoner $8, humiliation if no great penalty.

The soldiers on the front are cheered by frequent visits of the King and the Queen of the Belgians. On their last visit King Albert was in a general's uniform of khaki and Queen Elizabeth looked charming in a smart tailor-made suit of the same hue. Instead of the usual toque she wore a Belgian soldier's steel helmet as a protection from stray bullets. After examining the various front line position, the King and Queen passed in review of infantry and sailors, who were delighted to see the royal couple, especially the Queen, who displayed on her jacket the French war cross awarded her by President Poincare for bravery at the front.

The most popular parson in Great Britain today, and the only one that wears the Victoria Cross, is the Rev. Edward Noel Melish, the East London (Deptford) curate, who during the fighting at St. Eloi went out time after time under shell fire and brought in wounded men on his back. A public ovation was given him a few days ago, and as he rode through the streets with the troops he was cheered by women and children who came out of streets and alleys and courts by thousands. The boys of Deptford have organized a guard of honor for "the fighting parson."

THE UNCHLOROFORMED.

For the ninety-fifth time Mrs. Bertha Foglestad and Mrs. Martha Erickson, of Chicago, celebrated their birthdays jointly. They are twins. There was a family gathering at the home of Mrs. Erickson. Mrs. Foglestad's two great-grand twins were present.

John Nally of Defiance, O., is 106 years old, and takes much of his exercise chopping wood "just to keep in shape." Mr. Nally also has the distinction of being the oldest living veteran of the Civil War. He was nearly 60 years old when the Civil War ended, in fact he was past the maximum age limit for enlisting when that conflict broke out, but he managed to get by the recruiting officer. He served for two years and ten months as a member of Company C, Ninety-second O.V.I.

Fernando El Ciano, who says he was a "man with whiskers" when the first white man came to Alexander Valley in this State, registered at the Court House, in Santa Rosa, giving his age as 115 years. The astonished look and actions of County Clerk W. W. Felt, who was registering a party of Indians, including Ciano, caused the aged man to nod his head and repeat "one hundred and fifteen." It is believed that Ciano is the oldest registered voter if not the oldest man in the State of California.

HOW THE WOUNDED SOLDIER ESCAPED FROM CARRIZAL.

It was a wounded trooper that fled from Carrizal,
Who said, "I'll tell it to you men, my own good comrades all,
Just how we have been vanquished and how the fight begun,
With seven hundred Greasers, they all Carranza's men,
And we just eighty-four of cavalry regiment Number Ten,
The Greasers with machine gun,
And we? Not one, not one!
Armed with only our rifles and our bayonets, nothing more,
We never thought of standing at Death's wide-open door,
We never thought of fighting, for they were eight to one,
But those confounded Greasers opened on us with their gun;
Surrounded were we, suddenly, we fought for life with Death,
'Twas only my good charger that saved my living breath,
I with a wounded shoulder and he with a bleeding neck,
Safely carried me away from that grim and direful wreck, Charged through those Mejicanos, charged through them, rank and file,
And carried me away from death for more than fifteen mile,
Then down he sank, and whinnied, as if he just would say,
'I've done for you, good master, now all I can today.'"
And here the trooper halted, and then with tearful eye,
Said, "Men, I hope you'll never have to say good-by
To a horse like that of mine was, who carried me today
From such an awful shadow to sunshine right away.
I thanked him for the mercy that he to me had flung,
And poured water from old canteen upon his bleeding tongue;
And then there came a loving look into his dying, glazing eye—
A loving look, as if he said, 'My master, dear, good-by!'"
—This was the tale the trooper told to us, his comrades all,
How he escaped that awful day from ambushed Carrizal.

GARIS' BEDTIME STORIES.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND HIS TORN COAT.

BY HOWARD R. GARIS.

"DO YOU think I look all right?" asked Uncle Wiggily Longears, the rabbit gentleman, of Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, his muskrat lady housekeeper. He was standing in front of her, turning slowly about, and he had on a new coat. For, now that summer was near, the bunny uncle had laid aside his heavy fur coat, and was wearing a lighter one.

"Yes, you do look very nice," Nurse Jane said, tying her tail in a knot so Uncle Wiggily would not step on it as he turned around.

"Nice enough to go to Grandfather Goosey Gander's party?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"Oh yes, indeed!" exclaimed Nurse Jane. "I didn't know Grandpa Goosey was to give a party, but if he is, you certainly look well enough to go, with your new coat. Of course, it might be better if it had some lace insertion around the buttonholes, or a bit of ruching, with oyster shell trimming, sewed down the back, but—"

"Oh no, indeed," laughed the bunny uncle. "If it had those things on it would be a coat for a lady. I like mine plainer."

"Well, take care of yourself," called Nurse Jane after him as he hopped off over the fields and through the woods to the house where Grandfather Goosey Gander lived.

"Now I must be very careful not to get my new coat dirty, or I won't look nice at the party," the old rabbit gentleman was saying to himself as he hopped along. "I must be very careful indeed."

He went along as carefully as he could, but, just as he was going down a little hill, under the trees, he came to a place that was so slippery, that, before he knew it, all of a sudden Uncle Wiggily fell down, and slid to the bottom of the hill.

"My goodness!" he cried, as he stood up after his slide, "I did not know there was snow and ice on that hill."

And when he looked there was not, but it was covered with long, thin pine needles, which are almost as slippery as glass. It was on these that the rabbit gentleman had slipped down hill.

"Well, there is no great harm done," said Uncle Wiggily to himself, as he found no bones broken. "I had a little slide, that's all. I must bring Sammie and Susie Littletail here some day, and let them slide on pine-needle hill. Johnnie and Billy Bushytail, the two squirrels, would also like it, and so would Nannie and Billie Wagtail, my two goat friends."

Uncle Wiggily was about to go on to the party, when, as he looked at his new coat, he saw that it was all torn. In sliding down the slippery pine-needle hill the coat had caught on sticks and stones, and it had many holes torn in it, and it was also ripped here and there.

"Oh, dear me!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Oh sorrow! Oh unhappiness! Now I'll have to go back to my hollow stump bungalow and put on my old coat that isn't torn. For I never can wear my new one to the party. That would never do! But the trouble is, if I go back home I'll be late! Oh dear, what trouble I am in!"

Now was the time for some of Uncle Wiggily's friends to help him in his trouble, as he had often helped them. But, as he looked through the woods, he could not see even a little mouse, or a grasshopper.

"The tailor bird would be just the one I'd like to see now," said the rabbit uncle. "She could mend my torn coat nicely." For tailor birds, you know, can take a piece of grass and, with their bill for a needle, sew leaves together to make a nest, almost as well as your mother can mend a hole in your stocking.

But there was no tailor bird in the woods, and Uncle Wiggily did not know what to do.

"I certainly do not want to be late to Grandpa Goosey's party," said the bunny uncle, "nor do I want to go to it in a torn coat. Oh, dear!"

Just then he heard, down on the ground near him, a little voice saying:

"Perhaps we could mend your coat for you, Uncle Wiggily."

"You? Who are you, and how can you mend my torn coat?" the bunny gentleman wanted to know.

"We are some little black ants," was the answer, "and with the pine needles lying on the ground—some of the same needles on which you slipped—we can sew up your coat, with long grass for thread."

"Oh, that will be fine, if you can do it," spoke the bunny uncle. "Can you?"

"We'll try," the ants said. Then about fourteen thousand six hundred and twenty-two black ants took each a long, sharp pine needle, and, threading it with grass, they began to sew up the rips and tears in Uncle Wiggily's coat. And places where they could not easily sew they stuck the cloth together with sticky gum from the pine tree. So, though the pine tree was to blame, in a way, for Uncle Wiggily's fall, it was also the means of mending his coat, you see.

Soon the coat was almost as good as new, and you could hardly tell where it was torn. And Uncle Wiggily, kindly thanking the ants, went on to Grandpa Goosey's party and had a fine time and also some ice cream.

And if the egg beater doesn't take all the raisins out of the rice pudding, so it looks like a cup custard going to the moving pictures, the next story will be about Uncle Wiggily and the bitter medicine.

BILL'S BACHELOR BUDGET.

Dear Bob:
Since last I wrote you of our strange financial freaks,
Los Angeles has taken on economy in streaks;
Each day the cry that "something must be done" still louder waxes,
We've not sufficient supermen to pay our supertaxes.
Last week I spent a rotten time before the Equalizers—
Their methods in Los Angeles will turn us all to misers;
I made my points so strong the board got hot beneath their collars
And when I got my tax bill back they'd raised it fifteen dollars.
Before I try to prove again that "something must be done,"
I'll join the camp at Monterey and learn to load the gun.
And so you see the problems of this life grow more and more;
There's gasoline and Mexico, street traffic and the war;
I hear the clergy has a scheme to make the scrapping cease,
To concentrate by millions on five minutes' prayer for peace.
That's very fine for those whose line of business is to pray;
An amateur like me would never know just what to say.
I fear that my peace sentiments, could they be duly "prayered,"
Would start and finish with the words, "O Lord, keep us prepared!"
And really from police reports the project's bound to fail;
It seems one man in every twelve is booked to go to jail;
And so one prayer in every twelve must fall for short of heaven,
But, thank the Lord! your William still belongs to the eleven,
The brave, free men who haven't yet disgraced their social station,
And so are still at liberty to plan their next vacation.
This year the beaches offer nothing new or chic or shocking,
Each pretty leg is covered by a very ugly stocking,
Official bathing suits are worn of very dense material,
The sad sea waves have ceased to be poetic or ethereal;
So I am booked for pastures new, to be a jolly tramp,
I hear the dears are plentiful in every mountain camp;
Then, too, the mountain air will tone my citified complexion,
And give me p'raps some bright ideas before the fall election.
One Presidential candidate who banks on next November
That 'twas a "fall" election will in after years remember.
Which one? I merely make the guess—and not a very rash 'un—
That in the year of seventeen full beards will be the fashion.
I don't believe that whiskers suit my style of beauty, still I'm going to back a winner though it takes a face. That's

HOLLAND READY FOR INVADERS.

AN ARMY OF FOUR HUNDRED THOUSAND MEN.

Also a Small but Very Efficient Navy, but in Case of Invasion the Dikes Would be Opened and the Invaders Compelled to Swim for Safety.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat:] If Holland's army is forced by invasion of her soil or any other cause to enter the great war, it will give a splendid account of itself. This is the verdict of a distinguished American who has had exceptional opportunities to familiarize himself with the morale of the organization, and after a study of all branches of the service, during a tour of the cities and villages of the country I heartily concur.

Not only is Holland's army of 400,000 men—bright looking, well set up soldiers of the American type, nearly all clad in West Point gray—an inspiring, confidence-compelling organization, but the navy, though weak in gunpowder, nevertheless seems to be marvelously efficient. I got my first glimpse of a flotilla of this navy when, after a voyage through the mine-sown North Sea —during which the vessel upon which I was a passenger was forced to anchor for nineteen hours about thirty miles off Gravesend in order to give British mine sweepers a chance to clear the way for us, so that we might not share the fate of two little steamships which, with masts and funnels still protruding from the murky waters a few miles from our anchorage, had been sunk the previous day—we were landed at Flushing, there to see, as our vessel steamed up the Scheldt, smart-looking light cruisers, small but swift torpedo boats, up-to-date submarines and some mine layers laden with engines of destruction that will be employed against the ships of any nation that attempts to violate the neutrality of the Dutch coast or waterways.

Of course, Holland does not expect that her navy will ever repeat the feats of Van Tromp's famous fleet, but she does expect, and she is apparently justified in the expectation, that her martial sons by sea and land will make any foe pay dearly for any attempt to degrade her as an independent nation.

Of course, the whole world admits that Dutch sailors, man for man, are the equals of any fighting men afloat. The navy, however, is so small when compared with the mighty aggregations of Britain and Germany, that it can be dismissed with the statement that it will do its utmost when called upon, but the army, ever growing, is a body that I feel sure will compel the respect of any foe.

I obtained my first glimpse of some of its units at Flushing in the days when Holland was ringing with the baseless rumor that Britain had asked for the privilege of landing an expeditionary force in Zeeland to take the enemy in the rear, and I was duly impressed with their soldierly appearance.

I have seen many other contingents of Dutch soldiers since that day in Rotterdam, Amsterdam, The Hague, Utrecht, Haarlem and in the towns and villages that nestle along the banks of the wide-reaching and serpentine Maas River, and have had no cause to revise my first judgment.

True, the Dutch army is not the perfect military machine that has made the goose step famous or otherwise—one could not expect anything like that in a democratic kingdom where brains command respect and where even the lowliest have the gift of tongues—but I feel that if forced to fight it will prove worthy of the traditions of a race that has sacrificed much for freedom and that has contributed great names to the history of the United States.

Don't make the mistake of thinking that the Dutch, no matter how great the odds may be, will not oppose any and all invaders, for the spirit of the army today was voiced by the third William of The Netherlands, to the first William of Germany when, after the latter had presented one of the Rothschilds to the Dutch King, the newly-crowned Emperor advised his brother monarch to placate the banker because he could advance money to The Netherlands.

"We don't need Rothschild's money," said the stiff-necked Dutch King; "we have plenty of it in Amsterdam."

"Oh, you have, have you?" the Emperor replied. "Well, if that is the case I think I will take those gentlemen outside, all of whom you will notice are at least six feet high, and will visit that city."

"Come, if you will," the Dutch King retorted, "but when your grenadiers cross the water they will have to advance through seven feet of water."

Holland today does not want to be forced to join in the war, because to fight the enemy by flooding the land would mean almost irreparable ruin, but if compelled to enter the conflict to maintain her neutrality she will maintain it no matter what price she is compelled to pay to vindicate her national honor.

That is why the floodgates of the land are ready to be opened, that is why on the approaches to her bridges one sees barbed wire stockades which can be placed in position as barriers at a moment's notice, and that is why the bridges over her northern and southern waterways, with dynamite at hand if needed, will be blown up to compel the foe, if foe there is to be, to swim to victory or defeat.

But Holland's army will not continue to retire indefinitely, as when the enemy reaches Amsterdam, in the north, or Utrecht, in the south, he will face defenses that, designed as a result of the lessons taught by this war, may tax all his offensive powers.

Indians' Way the Best.

[Leavenworth (Kan.) Times:] Are we civilized? A young woman of this city who visited the Grand Canyon a few weeks ago had an educated Indian as a guide one day and as the party went along they saw a father, aggravated by something his young son had done, stop on the edge of the canyon and give the boy a thorough spanking. The Indian was indignant. "That is what I call barbarous," he exclaimed. "Now that boy will always remember this great canyon as the place where he received a spanking. He might have carried a picture of its grandeur in his mind that would have grown with the years and would have assisted in developing him, but now all that is spoiled. We Indians don't do things that way. We expect our children to endure pain, but we don't inflict it." And wasn't the Indian right?

LORD KITCHENER.

True Character of the Man Who Became a Military Machine.

[Boston Transcript:] No one since Mark Twain has fathered so many stories and anecdotes as the late Lord Kitchener. This is easy enough to understand. Few men have ever possessed a more pungent personality, a more striking character. Always silent as the Sphinx, a man impenetrable even to those who called themselves his friends, these tales paint the traits of the man better than the careful estimate of the biographer. Indeed, Kitchener made so few speeches, wrote so few letters, and otherwise expressed himself so briefly, that these anecdotes are almost the only truly human portrait that he has left of himself. These that follow are but a scanty and hasty culling from the mass of them.

Begin early or late in Kitchener's career, these striking, often dramatic, sometimes humorous, but always laconic episodes, are encountered.

Late in the war Kitchener had a short, sharp crisis to handle in England. In a big English biscuit factory, where they were working overtime and therefore had to supply a large additional staff of nonunion men, a walking delegate appeared and notified the superintendent that unless he discharged all the nonunion men by 11 o'clock of the following day, the union men all would be called out.

As the biscuits, 1000 tons of which had been ordered, were for the troops, both at home and at the front, the managing director of the company went at once to the War Office and told of the threat and the consequences if it were carried out.

"You must see Lord Kitchener at once," he was told, and an interview was arranged.

"What time did that fellow say he would be on your premises to call out the men?" the chief of the war staff asked.

"At 11 o'clock," the director answered.

"All right," responded Kitchener, "I'll be there a little before him, and let him hear me."

In due time the following day the delegate arrived at the office of the biscuit plant, noisy and threatening. When told again that the nonunion workers would be retained, he announced his intention of calling out the men at once.

Suddenly Lord Kitchener stepped out and confronted him.

"Better wait and hear me," he admonished.

"If you call out any men on this work I'll have every one of them shot as they come out, and you yourself within a quarter of an hour. All my sentries have the entire place under view, and are ready to fire when I give the word. You are now under military law, and we'll civilize you."

The delegate almost fainted from fright, but didn't offer a word. The nonunion and the union men kept on working, making biscuits.

Lord Kitchener was so generally credited with an iron character devoid of sentiment in matters affecting his great purpose that the following story of his thoughtfulness is of special interest.

A Sunderland woman with five sons in the army lay dying. Her one desire was to see her boys again. Through the offices of a local Salvation Army officer four of the sons serving in England reached home within twenty-four hours, their expenses being paid by the authorities. The fifth son, however, was at the front, and there seemed little chance of the old woman's wish being fulfilled. But the Salvationist wired to the War Office, and back came a reply over Lord Kitchener's signature, saying that if the son could be found he would be sent home. Afterward came a wire to say the man was on his way home, and eventually he landed in time to see his mother. The authorities had paid his expenses and gave him a seven days' furlough and ration money.

A good instance of Kitchener's laconic style of speech was that made to an officer who, during the Boer War, after struggling vainly to get an artillery train through roads that were almost rivers of mud, came to Kitchener.

"It is no use, general," he said, "we are so deep in mud that we cannot move our heavy guns another mile, and the Boers will get them for certain."

Kitchener looked at this worn-out and discouraged officer a moment, then quietly said: "Go on with your work, but don't forget that the mud is not only clogging our wheels, it is clogging the Boer wheels as well."

Here is a story showing the South African commander-in-chief in another light. There was in the Royal Engineers a private of exemplary character, who one day reported himself ill and unfit for duty. The medical officer of the corps examined him, decided that the man was malingering, and ordered him back to duty. Against this there was no appeal. The soldier returned to his work, which was preparing planks for a temporary bridge. He found himself too weak to work and said so to the sergeant.

"Why not lay the case before Lord Kitchener?" said the sergeant; "he is in the office now."

"Oh, I dare not," replied the man, "he is too stand-off and cold."

"Well, if you are afraid I'll do it myself," and he did.

"Order the man here at once," said the commander-in-chief without looking up, "and also Drs. Y and X." Each of these he made examine the patient in his presence. They both reported typhoid in a marked stage.

"Send for Dr. Z," slowly muttered Lord Kitchener.

"Please, Dr. Z, examine this man carefully; he is either ill or malingering." Dr. Z performed the commanded task, and nervously said: "Sir, I fear I have made a mistake; this man is in the early stages of typhoid."

"Have the man at once removed to the hospital," came in cold, passionless tones, "and you, sir, apply to the adjutant for your papers and at your earliest convenience return to England!"

With all his aloofness and self-sufficiency, Kitchener had one excellent custom in the Soudan—he lived "in one mess with the whole of his very small staff, perhaps eight or nine men altogether, and was always accessible to information and opinions of all sorts. He was thereby placed in close touch with that strange uncanny "will-o'-the-wisp, the spirit of the army, which some generals who live too much apart from and above their men never count with and never understand—to their own infinite loss and the army's." At the same time "no man ever kept his own counsel better than Kitchener when fighting was afoot; there was never any leakage of information, because there was never any information to leak.

Lord Kitchener enjoyed some marvelous escapes in the Soudan; he never seems to have had much thought of his personal safety. The Atbara was a stiff fight, and rather a dangerous fight to boot, for at one moment everybody who held a rifle, friend and foe alike, was firing toward every point of the compass. Into that hell Kitchener rode almost alone, and quite unarmed, holding up his hand to stop the firing, and offering pardon to the still living remnant of the vanquished, who rushed out from trench and hut to throw themselves and their arms at his feet, as though recognizing the master spirit, and seeking safety under his shadow. Yet there were some who did not hesitate to accuse him afterwards of every crime against humanity.

Kitchener's first chance came in 1882, when the rising tide of Mahdism threatened to sweep from end to end of the Soudan. But it was expected that the false prophet's successes were being exaggerated, and young Kitchener was deputed to make investigations and report. He dressed himself as an Arab trader and entered Omdurman, taking his life in his hand. He went among the wild Kababish and treacherous Pashas, who, had they once penetrated his disguise, would have shown him little mercy.

One day he witnessed the execution of a supposed spy in the town. The poor wretch was subjected to such torture that Kitchener procured a tiny phial of cyanide of potassium, which he concealed about his person. As he subsequently remarked to a brother officer: "Death at their hands I did not fear; in fact, I expected it. But such a death!"

Lord Kitchener was one of the first public men to announce to the world that he would follow the appeal of King George to the nation to abstain from the use of alcohol during the war.

Fifty Thousand Aviators.

[Popular Science Monthly:] To the average American, the aeroplane still is a wonder, a miracle, a creation of magic. In Europe men have become so accustomed to it that children now talk of becoming "aviators" as they would of becoming "policemen." Counting both pilots and observers, there are more than 50,000 men now in Europe, in daily flights above ground. The number increases from day to day and before the war is ended it is possible that the number will have reached 100,000. A hundred thousand human beings taking to the air every day—and only six years ago Glenn H. Curtiss made his first long flight down the Hudson River—a wonderful feat chronicled in the press of the world!

CANADIAN WAR SCARES.

Mysterious Fires, Stores of Dynamite, and Suspected Gun Bases.

[Buffalo Times:] Rumors have been plenty of "German plots," and every mayor of a village is guarding his city hall or town hall as if it were the object of personal vengeance by Kaiser Wilhelm himself. It is true there have been some happenings that lack an explanation. Thus, it was strange that in a carload of household goods consigned to the town of Wingham, north of London, there should be found a box of dynamite and the consignee of the car unable to explain how it got there. But it was even more strange that the same thing should have happened a week later at Exeter, a town in the same district of Ontario. The town constables of both places were "on the job" at once, but the dynamite is not explained.

Then there were a number of mysterious fires in the same district that bore an incendiary look and the police authorities began to investigate more thoroughly. But so far they have made no arrests save a few Germans, who may, in all probability, have been quite as loyal as those who arrested them. However, it is unhealthy to be a German in Canada today.

There is no doubt but that the professional jokester has taken full advantage of public gullibility during this war-time period, knowing full well that whatever he did would be exaggerated into something big. Kites flown from swiftly moving automobiles have been used to represent aeroplanes on more than one occasion, and in some cases lights have been added to help the general effect. The German "gun base" plan has been worked to a finish. Every man owning a tennis court has had some suspicious persons prying about to see if it might be of concrete and designed to act as the position for a heavy gun.

As a matter of fact there was one real gun base found in Canada. That was on the island of Orleans and it created a lot of excitement in Canada because it happened that it was located on property that commanded the citadel of Quebec, and that, curiously enough, was owned by a German. But investigation showed that the gun base had been built by British engineers a century ago at a time when Quebec was being strengthened and that its location had been actually forgotten by the military authorities.

From "The River Path."

No bird song floated down the hill,
The tangled bank below was still.

No rustle from the birchen stem,
No ripple from the water's hem.

The dusk of twilight round us grew,
We felt the falling of the dew.

For from us, ere the day was done,
The wooded hills shut out the sun.

But on the river's farther side
We saw the hilltops glorified.

A tender glow, exceeding fair,
A dream of day without its glare.

With us the damp, the chill, the gloom;
With them the sunset's rosy bloom;

While dark, through willowy vistas seen,
The river rolled in shade between.

The Book of Los Angeles.

The picturesque aspects of Los Angeles and its environs have provided motives for innumerable artistic subjects with pen, pencil and brush, but they seem inexhaustible, and it remained for two well-known artists, Marion Holden Pope, etcher, and Charles Farwell Edson, writer, to conceive the idea of the book of Los Angeles.

This important record of the beauties of Los Angeles, just begun, will probably reach its completion in the fall. It was suggested to Mrs. Pope by her delighted perusal of Joseph Pennell's recent book on San Francisco, and by her study of his no less attractive account of New York, and will be carried out very much on the lines pursued by Mr. Pennell.

A series of twenty-four etchings is planned by Mrs. Pope. The series will include "A Vision of the Past in La Brea Arroyo," "The Plaza Mission," "Central Park," "The Municipal Links," "Bridges," and the deep canyons of our business streets, the places of the cliff dwellers of today. Universal City will also be pictured, and our wonderful harbor as seen from that great curve of beauty, the new breakwater.

Mrs. Pope tells me that she has already begun to enjoy the work immensely, and that she expects to have a good time up to its completion. She has also promised me one or more of the prints for reproduction in this column, a courtesy that my readers will surely appreciate.

Charles Farwell Edson's contributions to the book of Los Angeles are to be in verse, a poem for each picture. Presumably his comments are to be descriptive, and the wisdom of his choice of the verse form is therefore to be questioned. The succinct directness of forcible prose seems more in keeping with the theme of the book.

But the main thing, of course, is the pictures, and Marion Holden Pope's long experience with the etching needle, her finely poetic and imaginative interpretative powers, give us full assurance of the volume's success. It is bound to be good, and very good. Mrs. Pope is also the owner of a fine press for etchings, perhaps the best in the West. She uses it with perfect understanding, and no careless imprint has ever left her hands.

"Solveig."

A life-size study in characterization has just been completed by Ella Woodward Fagin, and is now on exhibition in the studio of Helen Coan, No. 204 North Burlington avenue. This is a picture of Solveig, the devoted heroine in "Peer Gynt."

Myrtle Stedman, leading woman for the Morosco motion picture concern, posed for the picture. It will be remembered that Miss Stedman took the role of Solveig with marked success when "Peer Gynt" was produced in pictures by Morosco. She is a tall, beautiful girl of the true Norwegian type, blond-haired and fair-skinned, her face almost classic in the purity of its modeling, her figure lithe and full-bosomed.

The moment chosen by Mrs. Fagin is the young Solveig's arrival in the mountains, where she has gone, leaving home and kindred, to devote her life to the man who has dominated all her maiden dreams of life, love and happiness. It is the supreme, the emotional moment that vibrates in the picture—when the simple-minded yet deep-souled girl—the woman strong enough to overcome every difficulty, to defy every convention in order that she may follow her ideal, satisfy the overpowering call of her heart—stands before her lover with a glad, triumphant smile that is yet wistful, almost beseeching, for she is still uncertain as to how her sacrifice will be met. In short, it is the complexity of the feminine heart and its capacity for great devotion that has been the inspiring motive back of the picture. Solveig is seen against a background of mountains blue with trailing mists. Superbly simple, a goddess in peasant costume, she stands upon a rock-strewn eminence, the fine free spirit of the mountains, finer and freer than her earth-bound lover will ever be. In her we find the epitome of our ideal of true womanhood, as Peer Gynt did after years of search and wandering.

Mrs. Fagin's drawing, her construction of the figure, is very good. Between two thick braids of amber-colored hair Solveig's beautiful neck rises with the dignity and grace of Greek sculpture. Her sea-blue eyes are radiant with her vision. Her lips are parted in that smile of hope, fear and expectancy. Her hands hold lightly up the yellow apron that adorns a gown of deeper yellow, and the mountain breeze stirs the white puffs of her sleeves above a black bodice trimmed with gold. Solveig was the daughter of an orthodox minister, but she lived in a remote region where democratic simplicities were observed, and she dressed like her father's peasant parishioners.

The artist has caught the young dreamer's expression with insight and fidelity, and has given us a picture of much truth and charm—and something more. She has, indeed, revealed a soul. This, it seems to me, should be the aim and idea of all genuine art, for the soul that lies in landscape may be almost as significant as the soul that dwells in a man. At any rate, the artist's own soul can never be negligible.

Green and Gold.

Six pictures may make a little exhibition or a big one—it all depends on the pictures. And six life-size portraits of people may be a smaller exhibition than six pictures of parrots.

E. Newell Marshall has painted the six parrots, all green and gold dashed with crimson, amid fruits and flowers, almost as brilliant as themselves, and made a big exhibition of them. This, even though he has used the medium of water color on pieces of Whatman paper of no great size. Some men consider water colors rather trifling pictures, hardly to be reckoned seriously as art. But, of course, they are wrong, as every true lover of art knows, and, of course, they are lamentably far wrong when the water colors of E. Newell Marshall are under consideration. For Mr. Marshall paints water colors of amazing richness of effect of astonishing dash and effectiveness.

The artist, though a young American, sent the pictures from Switzerland to London, where they, with others from the same daring brush, created something of a sensation, even royalty asking to have them sent up to Windsor for its inspection. No less a personage than John Singer Sargent—who is more than royalty, is he not?—chose these six and sent them on to the exposition in San Francisco, and Mr. Kanst chose them, again, for his gallery in Los Angeles, where they are now on exhibition. Many pictures are painted, many are called, but few are chosen so consistently as these.

They are worthy of the honor, They might be termed riots of color, were they not so well ordered, so absolutely in the fullest and richest harmony. They are a feast for the eye, a stimulus to the senses, a joy to the observer as their making must have been a great joy to the painter. When a man handles color like this he shows a genius for it. And Mr. Marshall chose parrots and peaches and the brilliant flowers of the ranunculus because these three are absolutely en rapport in color.

When still-life can express so much it is enough. You do not ask for figures or landscapes, for your longings after beauty are thoroughly satisfied. No imaginative heights nor depths can give you more—or so it seems when you look at these stuffed parrots and parroquets standing among luscious fruits and flowers.

Decorative Seascapes.

After an absence of six months at Carmel-by-the-Sea, Rose Lippincott is now back in Los Angeles—and glad to be back, too—and is decorating a big barn at the rear of her garden on West Adams street which will presently blossom into a studio of the amplest proportions and the best north light.

Miss Lippincott's experiences at Carmel have helped much in her art development. While she prefers the gray and gold of the landscape of the south, she found much to interest her and to engage her brush in the vivid green and blue of the sea at Carmel. She has used the patterns of the breaking waves in many decorative schemes, for she feels and sees a decoration in everything. These wave patterns, these interwoven ribbons of color, she has used with distinction in designs of great and original virility. She also painted several portraits in the northern city, one of which, the presentment of a young German diplomat, has gone to Chicago. Five of her recent pictures are being shown in San Francisco at the exhibition inaugurated by J. Nilsen Laurvik.

Looking at her work, I always feel that Miss Lippincott would be happy in the designing of stained glass windows. Her rich and radiant color sense would find its full expression in this medium, which carries with it the glittering surprises of a turning kaleidoscope. Here she might leave every hard fact far behind her, concerned only with her color and her design, in each of which she already enjoys a large liberty, an enviable freedom from rules laid down by others.

American Pictures.

The promised exhibition of pictures by famous American painters, to be held in the museum gallery at Exposition Park, will find its fulfillment very soon, probably early this coming week, for the delectable canvases have been sent for and are now doubtless either arrived or on the way. They are the selection of Mr. J. E. D. Trask, in charge of art for the recent great exposition in San Francisco, and are pictures from that fine collection, twenty large ones and a score that are somewhat smaller.

This exhibition will be one of the most notable yet held in Los Angeles, for Mr. Trask's opportunities are almost without parallel, and, of course, his judgment in matters of art is above our questioning. Mr. Trask himself may come down to see that the pictures are arranged on the walls to the best advantage. He has been invited to do so, and if he finds that he can accept he will probably deliver a talk on an important art subject, either at some club or at the exhibition.

A week ago we were prepared to accept, without a murmur—and why, indeed, should we complain?—the present interesting exhibition in the museum gallery for a continuous run through the summer months, but we are on the knees of the gods and they have seen fit to be exceeding kind. A vuestra salud, Signor Trask, and we thank you and the gods, whom you must have propitiated with the gift of your smile.

All good things come to Los Angeles, wise men and fair women, hard cash and gentle art. We need only work, then watch and wait for them.

Murals by Villa.

Hernando Villa, a young artist of pioneer Spanish stock, who was born in Los Angeles and received his entire art education here, was a contributor of seven large mural decorations for the Palace of Transportation, P.P.I.E., in San Francisco, and recently, after six months of work upon them, he completed two large decorations for the lobby of Tally's Broadway Theater, where they may now be seen.

The decorative paintings represent "Spring" and "Summer," and each contains three jocund female figures clad in diaphanous flowing draperies of pink and blue. Music and song, laughter and the dance, the joy of life when life is young, are the subject of these mural decorations, which are painted in a high key of light and color, in the ultra-modern French technique. Their scheme of color is one of the pale yet vivid blues and pinks, giving that life and animation which belongs to the entrance of a building devoted to the fleeet pleasures of the motion picture. Undoubtedly they are admirably adapted to their purpose.

Mr. Villa was at one time instructor in the Los Angeles School of Art and Design, where he passed many years as a pupil, and recently he was reinstated in this post, teaching painting, drawing, decoration and outdoor sketching.

July Magazines.

Five of the color illustrations in the International Studio for July are reproductions of the remarkable pastel studies of animals by Arthur Wardle. A. L. Baldry presents the text to Mr. Wardle's work, with fourteen illustrations in all. An account of the Royal Academy exhibition for 1916 contains fourteen illustrations, and Selwyn Brinton's "Recent Sculpture of Daniel Chester French" has eight illustrations. Another article of great interest, profusely illustrated, speaks of the black and white work of F. H. Townsend. W. H. de B. Nelson discusses "Art and the Magazine Cover;" Antony Anderson, "The Universal Appeal;" Arthur Wesley Dow, "Printing from Wood Blocks," Raymond Wyer, "Art and the Man, Blakelock."

The Fine Arts Journal opens with an illustrated article on tombs, "The Mansions of the Silent," by Anne Lisle Booth. The editor, Evelyn Marie Stuart, writes of "The Joy of Living Expressed Through Art," with seven illustrations; F. W. Warford, of "An American Artist of Merit," with seven illustrations from the paintings of Edward J. Holslag; Edna Ida Colley, of "England's Home Beauties Interpreted Through a Woman's Art" (Lillian Stannard;) Cora A. Randall, "Pictures—Their Selection, Hanging and Artistic Value."

The cover of Arts and Decorations reproduces a delightful drawing, a portrait by Ingres. The frontispiece is a sculptured head by Maillol, one of the illustrations to W. G. Blaikie-Murdoch's paper on "The Development of Sculpture in Europe." The fifth article on "Creators of English Style," by Walter A. Dyer, brings us to Thomas Chippendale. R. Geare writes of "Decorative Masks of the Ancient Drama" and Hazel H. Adler of "Modern Tableware for the Modern Home," while in his Who's Who in American Art, Guy Pene Du Bois, the editor, speaks of Cecilia Beaux.

Mrs. Marion B. Cothren, an attorney in Brooklyn, recently tried her own case in court, and succeeded in defeating a traffic policeman who had charged her with violating the traffic laws.

Positives in the social world.

Miss Roberts is the house guest of her uncle and aunt, the Edward T. Sherers of No. 640 South Serrano avenue, and is responsible for many happy complimentary courtesies. Mrs. Litzenger, as a guest of Mrs. J. E. Maurer, is submerged in a maelstrom of delightfully small parties. Miss Tunison, who is to wed Edward T. Farley of Columbus, Ohio, in the early autumn, will find her ante-nuptial days full of showers and luncheons. The other ladies occupy prominent places socially. Lady Constance Victoria Lewis is soon to marry Horace Derby Perry of Pasadena, their engagement having been announced exclusively in The Times Tuesday. Lady Constance is a native of France and a descendant of Count de Villiers and Lady Rose Randolph of England. Her fiance is descended from Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry and Lady Mary Elliott of England.

and giving their lovely little 1-year-old daughter, Lucy Estelle, a most wonderful opportunity to become an adorable "merbaby," her pink face dewy with salt spray and her bright eyes twinkling with that wide-open gaiety that comes only as a reward of playful, exhilerating exercise. The senior Dohenys find a compelling force drawing them Hermosawards and join the others frequently.

Within a stone's throw are the Forrest Stantons, living in the parental C. Q. Stanton home at Twenty-fifth street and Hermosa avenue and just now very happy in entertaining Mrs. Forrest Stanton's mother, Mrs. Charles Peyton, who has come from Charlton, W. Va., to make her annual visit with her charming young daughter and son-in-law and members of the senior Stanton family. There is an added interest this year in the addition of Edwin Locksley Stanton's sweet young bride, who has made a tremendous hit socially. Mrs. Peyton always inspires much entertaining, and will during her stay of a month or six weeks be complimented at innumerable festivities.

The Joy Clarks went down to Hermosa early in the season, as did the W. D. Woolwines, with their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Weeks Banks. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Britt and their charming debutante daughter, Miss Agnes Wickfield Britt, and Judge and Mrs. Frank G. Finlayson of Gramercy place and their pretty daughter, Miss Beatrice, are all domiciled at this beach, as are Mr. and Mrs. Boyle Workman and Miss Eleanor, who have taken the Bovard house for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harvey Miles, with their younger daughter, Miss Edna, and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Shelton Dulin (nee Sueadele Miles) favor Hermosa as their playground this year and have swelled the temporary Los Angeles colony. Mrs. William T. Johnston and her interesting family have also forsaken their home on Kingsley drive for Neptune's border at this particular spot, and Mrs. A. H. Busch with her daughter, Miss Amy, and son, Hays, plans to go there for August.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Fleming and daughter, Miss Margaret, are staying in town for the present, with frequent week-end trips, but plan to start the first week in October for a two months' trip to take them as far as the Atlantic Coast and through the Berkshire hills.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Phillipps McReynolds, who are entertaining at their home in No. 20 Berkeley Square the doctor's distinguished jurist brother of Washington, D. C., Justice McReynolds, and their sister, Mrs. John N. Zarecor of Austin, Ky., have planned to spend at least a part of the next several weeks at Hermosa Beach, where they have taken a house. Their daughter Olive, 8 years old, and son Robert, 4, with Mrs. McReynolds's mother, Mrs. B. F. Coulter, will complete the merry household. Justice McReynolds and his sister arrived yesterday. The former is always much honored with complimentary functions, though he prefers quiet after a busy season in the national capital.

Mrs. W. S. Bartlett and daughter, Mrs. James Henry French, are to enjoy Carmel-by-the-Sea for a few weeks, during Mr. French's stay in the military camp at Monterey.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Galbreath of Highlands have leased the Porter cottage at Hermosa Beach and Dr. and Mrs. Gaylord are established in their cottage on Eighth street, Manhattan.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore R. Cadwalader have closed their town house and are now in fashionable Beverly Hills, to be near Mrs. Cadwalader's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amasa Spring, who are house guests of Frederick Kimball Stearns in his handsome new residence— a veritable show place. Mrs. Stearns is in New York, having invited, it will be recalled, Mrs. Gertrude Ross to accompany her. Mr. Stearns and the Springs recently motored to San Diego, spending several days at inviting Hotel del Coronado.

At Ocean Park friends will find the C. Modini Wood household cosily ensconced in the former Nat Goodwin home, the Angelenos having purchased the place for a beach home many weeks ago.

Mrs. Eugene Overton and manly little son, with Mrs. Overton's mother, Mrs. George A. Caswell, are to spend the major part of the heated term at beautiful Lake Tahoe, with Mr. Overton going up as often as he can to join his interesting family.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Sanger, with their daughter, Mrs. Agnes S. Bell, Miss Agnes Bell, Mrs. Horace B. Cline and son Walter and Earl McMullen are now cruising on the Sanger yacht Dreamer about the channel islands, and plan to remain until the second week of September.

Those who have not already "exodused" are planning for fishing trips, or a day or two in the wilds.

—o—

Novel "Movie."

It has remained for the younger set to actually "stage" the one bright mov(i)e on the past week's social calendar.

Miss Florence Marsh, the beautiful young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marsh of No. 1119 Westchester place, gave a theater party followed by dancing and a midnight buffet supper in the rustic roomy cabin back of their pretty garden Friday night. The affair was attended by sixty or seventy of the college and younger set—hardly any of whom have yet been officially presented—and furnished for entertainment an animated screen picture with her best friends as the principals of a snappy, "thrilling" story written and personally directed by Lee Milbank.

A complete orchestra gave appropriate airs, with marked crescendo and diminuendo expressions to emphasize the bright and exciting action, which centered around a playground where the tiny folk and their nurses are wont to collect each afternoon, and where little 9-year-old Martha Marsh was (in the play) kidnaped by a pair of gypsies impersonated by Miss Evelyn Johnson and Larson Miller, who "made their getaway" in an auto with the young lady at the wheel. The nurses, Misses Margaret May Johnson, Mildred Wellborn, Karla Schramm, Elizabeth Winston and Florence Marsh, had gone out on a joy ride instead of remaining on duty as the children enjoyed their daily airing, and stopped for lunch at a cafe where Misses Rosemary Rollins, Margaret Miller, Margaret Johnson and Marjorie Hines (you couldn't find a more attractive quartette of future debutantes,) together with Messrs. Hays Busch, John, Henry and George Dockweiler and Lacy Swain, were "waiting table.' Such a cafe could not help but enjoy popularity, especially with the accompanying cabaret features and dancing. (This much of the scene was taken on the porch of the Isaac Milbank home on Country Club drive, where small tables arranged on the porch gave the needed cafe suggestions.)

Mr. Marsh, coming home from town and discovering the child missing, is all but stricken with hysteria and calls upon the services of Lindley Gillis, Chief of Police, and Lewis C. Torrance, his aide, to institute a rigid search. Others of the police squad included Francis Miller and Marshall McComb, who had forsaken their "beat" as protectors of the playground and had escorted the nurses off to the cafe.

Thatcher Kent, a "bum," is first taken in tow, but establishes an alibi and the officers of the law let him go.

After an exciting chase the gypsies are all but taken and drop the child, escaping.

Martha is then welcomed home with much rejoicing.

The films were made Wednesday afternoon, all but the cafe "set" being staged around the Marsh home.

—o—

To Cement Cordiality.

There is no reason why San Diego and Los Angeles shouldn't have thought of it before—but it fell to some of the leading women of the two places to outline a charming plan whereby celebrities who come here and to the Exposition City may find their arrivals heralded with deserved recognition in the way of personal greetings, flowers, motor rides to scenic points of interest, teas and extra little courtesies which will make tangible the memory of delightful hospitality. And now this has been arranged for. At her attractive home on Andrews boulevard Mrs. C. Q. Stanton will entertain members of the Los Angeles committee informally at tea Wednesday afternoon. Then prominent women who are destined to play a strong part in California's claim to superiority of many things—in this case, hospitality—will discuss plans for co-operation. Mrs. Stanton has asked to serve with her Mrs. Walter Harrison Fisher of the Ebell Club, Mrs. Edward Rankin Brainerd of the Friday Morning Club, Estelle Heartt Dreyfus of the Dominant, Mrs. J. R. Moyst, Lyric; Julia Bracken Wendt, Art; Mrs. Grantland Seaton Long, the United Daughters of the Confederacy; Mrs. Samuel Taylor Dunlap, the College Women's Club; Mrs. Jamison, the National Federation of Musical Clubs, and a representative of the Ruskin Art Club. The Los Angeles committee will act with Mrs. G. Aubrey Davidson, wife of the present of the San Diego exposition, and with Miss Gertrude Gilbert and Mrs. McKenzie of the southern city, in finding out who the distinguished visitors are and when they will arrive, arranging for many charming courtesies meanwhile.

—o—

For This Week.

Pleasurably anticipated is the luncheon which Mrs. Charles Clarence Carpenter is to give at the Crags Country Club Tuesday. It will be delightfully informal, with covers for sixteen guests.

—o—

To Meet Charming Guest.

At the Los Angeles Country Club Friday Mrs. George F. Beveridge presided over a smart luncheon, in compliment to her house guest, Mrs. Carroll Canbron of San Francisco—a very charming visitor. Later auction bridge furnished a merry diversion, and several additional ladies joined them for tea.

—o—

To Del Monte.

Los Angeles sent many of its smart set to Del Monte for the annual golf tournament, among them such superlative golfers as Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Fulton, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jevne, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Braly, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Phillips, besides a score or two of the bachelor players. In fact, among the entries one observes all of the old timers, meaning that the gathering would lose none of its former pleasant favor of comradeship.

—o—

Mrs. Cottle Honoree.

Since her arrival from Chicago to establish a residence in Los Angeles, Mrs. Phillip Cottle has been extended numerous welcoming courtesies, none of which, however, excelled in enjoyment the pretty luncheon with Mrs. W. G. Cochran, hostess at the latter's attractive home, No. 1550 West Second avenue, Friday. Mrs. Cottle is a niece of the Cochrans, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac B. Newton, and has taken a house at No. 1561 West Second street—conveniently close to her kinsfolk. The luncheon board, exquisite with its glowing bed of varicolored summer chrysanthemums, had covers for Mrs. Cottle, Mrs. W. S. Hook, Jr., Mrs. Jefferson Chandler, Mrs. Ralph Hubbard, Mrs. A. J. Waters, Mrs. Josephine Witmer, Mrs. Robert Phillipps McReynolds, Mrs. Robert Leonard, Mrs. Thomas C. Ridgeway, Miss Bradley, Mrs. Newton, Mrs. S. E. Hunt and the hostess.

Mrs. Johnson Leaves.

After a visit filled with a continual round of pleasure, Mrs. Frank R. Johnson left Friday for San Francisco, en route to her home in Portland, Or. As the guest of her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Perry Story, this charming lady was fairly besieged with pretty courtesies, being a great favorite socially by reason of many visits.

Saturday of last week Mrs. C. H. Sharp took a number of friends to the Crags for a splendid week-end in compliment to Mrs. Johnson, the personnel numbering the Storys, Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Holterhoff, Jr., Thomas B. Brown and one or two others. They enjoyed outdoor life until Sunday evening, motoring back to town after dinner.

Nearly every day registered parties for the northerner. Mr. and Mrs. Story chose dinners for twelve or fourteen guests, entertaining cozily in this delightful fashion for their mother and house guest.

—o—

In Farewell.

Brilliant was the musical reception given by Mrs. Emma Porter Makinson of No. 227 North Rampart boulevard Friday evening in honor of Charles Wakefield Cadman, the composer, and Madame Cadman, who are to leave late in the month for their cabin in fashionable Estes Park, just out of Denver, to enjoy a summer outing.

Another distinguished guest was Clarence McGhee, who has but rerecently returned from Japan, where he was in the Buddhist monastery for a year in study. There were many artists and musicians bidden, many of whom contributed to a superior programme. Mr. McGhee did some Oriental things and Mr. Cadman played exquisitely some of his own compositions. His Japanese romance, "Sayonara," founded on Nipponese melodies, especially fitting into the spirit of the Far East, was sung by the hostess.

Beautiful floral decorations enhanced the scene, and a dainty collation was served.

Her southern hospitality makes for all Mrs. Makinson's affairs a distinct air of charm, her courtesy to the Cadmans, but adding to her former social triumphs.

—o—

Adorable Little Host.

Hardly a prettier or more pretentious birthday party has ever delighted childish hearts here than that which Wednesday made memorable the fifth natal day of Frank Edward Butterworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Butterworth of the Murray apartments. Mrs. Frank Harbert assisted Mrs. Butterworth in entertaining.

Games in the amusement room, where the little guests romped lightheartedly, occupied the time until they were called to the prettily decorated apartments for a delicious repast, the table being done in pink rosebuds and greenery. A mound of frosted white, on which was a spray of rosebuds—the birthday cake—surmounted with five burning pink tapers, occupied a conspicuous place. Tiny blue and white baskets tied with tulle held candy for each child, and favors were "Peter Rabbit bean bags." Daylight was excluded from the rooms, the lights shaded in pink, the apartment a perfect bower of blossoms, Enchantress carnations, pink straw flowers and Gypsophila entering into the artistic arrangement.

Little guests going were Billie Squires, Virginia Fox, Dorothy, George and Ruth Vorhees of Pasadena, Phillis Franklin, Lawrence Price, Ferris Keller and Martha and Woodrow Claussen.

—o—

New Residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilford John and their mother, Madame Crawford, who recently removed to this city from Portland, Or., are now occupying a large home at No. 1831 West Twenty-first street, where they will be at home to their many friends in this city.

Mrs. John is now entertaining as her house guest Miss Freeden Newman, a charming girl of Tacoma, and is planning in the near future to entertain in her honor with a luncheon at the Athletic Club.

—o—

For Chicago Guest.

Honoring her brother, Henry F. Reilly of Chicago, Mrs. Frank Stone of No. 1625 Fremont avenue, South Pasadena, entertained last evening with one of the smart dinners of the week, covers being laid for ten, all former residents of Chicago.

My Maryland roses graced the handsome lace cloth, the scheme of rose color being deftly carried out with rose-shaded lights and great bows of pink tulle and broad bands of satin ribbon. Music sped the hours following dinner.

Mr. Reilly is touring the Pacific Coast cities, and will remain a fortnight with his sister.

—o—

Bound for Europe.

David Burton Beggs has left for New York, from which point he expects to sail for Paris and other European points July 29.

—o—

In Cupid's Realm.

Miss Norma Minor, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Minor, formerly of Nephi, Utah, became the bride of B. F. Sweeney of San Diego at the home of the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. H. G. Sanger, No. 1006 South Westlake avenue, Monday evening. A wedding supper was served.

—o—

Visit in Ohio.

Mrs. J. M. Danziger of Beverly Hills, who went East in company with Mrs. Al G. Faulkner several week, ago to meet the former's sister and husband, the Caspar Whitneys, who have just recently returned to New York from Belgium, stopped in Columbus, O., for a visit with the former Dorothy Canfield whose marriage to Raymond Cheseldine of London, O., was a fashionable event of over a year ago. A lovely little daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Cheseldine the 4th inst.—an auspicious cause for celebrating. Mrs. Danziger was there to welcome the tiny [illegible] of femininity, whose mother has been popular in Los Angeles circles as a society girl.

Mr. Danziger is at the Monterey training camp and will time his return with that of his charming wife.

Soon to Return.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fusenot, who have been vacationing several days by motor, are expected home shortly.

Her Visit Over.

Mrs. Bob Hopkins, a prominent San Francisco matron who has been much entertained in this city the past six months, has just concluded her happy visit and returned to the north.

Much Entertained.

Los Angeles is entertaining a pretty young visitor in the person of Miss Mildred Roberts of San Francisco, who as the house guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Sherer of Serrano avenue, is being made the inspiration for many festivities.

Antenuptial.

Miss Myrtle Mae Tunison, who is to wed Edward T. Farley of Columbus, O., in the early autumn, was delightfully entertained recently with a linen shower given by Miss Gladys Disher.

Herring-Martin.

The Church of the Holy Faith at Inglewood was the scene of a charming wedding the evening of the 5th inst., when Miss Maude Ridley Herring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Grandon Herring of South Pasadena, became the bride of Harold H. Martin of Pasadena.

Two hundred guests assembled in the church, of which the bridegroom was the architect, to witness the ceremony and testify to the popularity of the young couple. Mrs. Hallet of All Saints, Pasadena, was the organist.

The bride looked radiantly happy in a gown of real lace over taffeta, with long tulle veil and crown of orange blossoms, and carrying a bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridal procession, to the strains of the "Lohengrin" Wedding March, was led by Miss Dorothy Thurston in lace and pink chiffon, and carrying a shower bouquet of Cecile Brunners. Hubert Frohman of the famous theatrical family supported the bridegroom as best man.

The exquisite floral decorations of the church were the gift of Mrs. Howland.

After the ceremony the happy pair were assisted in receiving by the parents of both, Mrs. Herring gracing a delightful gown of embroidered and beaded blue taffeta, and Mrs. Martin one of electric blue satin with an all-white hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin left by automobile for San Diego for their honeymoon tour before returning to their Pasadena home.

To Wed Easterner.

Miss Virginia Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Murphy of No. 1679 West Thirty-third street, and niece of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Penny of Long Beach, will marry Mack McGreery of Benton, Ill., next Tuesday evening. The wedding will be solemnized at the home of her parents, and the newlyweds will leave immediately for the East by way of the Southern Pacific and Canadian Pacific.

Miss Murphy is a peculiarly talented and charming girl, an artist and brilliant amateur cartoonist. Mr. McCreery is a mine operator and prominent in business circles in Illinois. It was while Miss Murphy was a resident of Benton three years ago that the love affair had its interesting beginning.

The young people were the guests of honor at a dinner party at Hotel Virginia Saturday evening, and many other prenuptial affairs have been showered upon them. They will reside in the East.

Resting at Long Beach.

Miss Bernice Downing of Santa Clara and her twin sister are seeking rest and seclusion at Long Beach just now. Miss Downing is an exceptionally interesting young woman, in that she is proprietor, managing editor and editorial writer of the Santa Clara Journal, since the death of her father. She has guided the newspaper with enterprise and success, notwithstanding she took up her responsibilities directly upon leaving a finishing school in the East. Miss Downing, besides being socially prominent in Santa Clara, is an influential political factor and serves on the Central Republican Committee of Santa Clara county.

The Misses Downing will remain in Long Beach until August for a much-needed rest.

Off to Honolulu.

Miss Ruth Sidey and Miss Anna Morrison of Altadena, accompanied by Miss Sidey's aunt, Miss Adams, left Tuesday for San Francisco, whence they will embark on a pleasure trip to Honolulu, sailing on the Matsonia. They expect to spend several weeks on the islands.

At Home Again.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Rogers have returned from their long stay at San Diego and will be at home to their friends at No. 1946½ Park Grove avenue. Mrs. Rogers will be remembered as Miss Hazel Adele Buckius.

Birthday Party.

The artistic bungalow home of Mrs. G. O. Grover on Morton avenue was the scene of a well-appointed party Tuesday evening, to celebrate the birthday of Mrs. G. H. Boyd. Cecile Brunner roses and asparagus fern were used in the pretty decorative scheme, and a musical programme added to the charm of the occasion.

For Noted Baritone.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Henley of Sacramento were the guests of honor at an informal party given by Mr. and Mrs. Horatio Cogswell at the Alexandria ice palace Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Henley is a popular baritone in the northern part of the State. Among those invited to meet him were Mme. Estelle Heartt Dreyfus and William Shakespeare.

SOCIETY.

Coronado. Mrs. J. R. Powers, who has again taken her pretty home at No. 2636 Portland street, and who had planned an informal musical evening for Friday to meet Barron, the Boston musician, found it necessary to call off the much-anticipated affair. Mrs. Johnston was to have been one of the honored guests.

The Powers will be home most of the summer, with perhaps a motor trip to Yosemite later on.

Betrothal Reception.

Between the hours of 8 and 10 o'clock Wednesday evening, at their home on Tenth and Lake streets, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred May will hold a reception honoring the announcement of their daughter Fernande's betrothal to Arthur Lazarus. No cards.

Announces Engagement.

Miss Hazel Ashton announces her engagement to Robert L. Robinson. The wedding will be in the late autumn.

Many Visitors.

The past week's activities at the Los Angeles Athletic Club were made more interesting by the number of noteworthy visitors entertained by club members. Among these were H. W. Gibson and his sons, H. W., Jr., John and James Gibson, residents of Muskogee, Okla., who came as guests of J. L. Dabbs; Alexander Campbell of Liverpool, Eng., a guest of J. Tod Cook; Sir Herbert Tree of London, who was entertained by Douglas Gerard; Gen. Thomas F. Wilson of Tucson, Ariz., a guest of J. B. Van Winkle; L. J. Kirkpatrick of Mazatlan, Mex., a guest of Edwardo J. Creel; E. Deming Smith of San Francisco, a guest of Harley Hamilton, and R. W. Gedney of San Francisco, who was entertained by J. Charles Harris.

Numerous elaborate dinners contributed to the week's social interest. Of particular interest were that given by Earle C. Anthony, who entertained Monday evening in the English Room for eleven guests; that given Friday by F. I. Morris, that brought together fourteen of his friends, and that given by Mrs. B. M. Pattison Friday for fourteen guests.

The Ladies' Annex presented its accustomed activity, many club members gathering there for luncheon entertainment. Using the annex were Mrs. George H. Kress, Mrs. Waller Taylor, Mrs. Frank Byington, Mrs. Richard Dunnigan, Mrs. W. S. Graves, Mrs. W. F. Jacoby, Mrs. F. S. Lyon, Mrs. B. L. Dowell, Mrs. A. Lester Best, Mrs. A. A. Gibson, Mrs. Charles G. Andrews, W. Perry Wood, Mrs. Willis H. Booth, Hugh H. Fillmore, Mrs. O. H. Morgan, Mrs. John McPeak, Miss Nettie Spier, Mrs. P. H. Burke, H. M. Carter, Edward C. Campbell, Mrs. F. G. Mortimer, Charles H. Guild and H. J. Burkhard.

At Santa Barbara.

Mrs. Conway Evans is delighting Montecito and Santa Barbara society women with a series of Monday afternoon lectures on Florence. The talks are given in the beautiful Montecito gardens of the patronesses. Among the most enthusiastic listeners are: Mrs. William Miller Graham, Mrs. Oliver Dwight Norton, Mrs. Benjamin Brodie, Mrs. Milo Milton Potter, Mrs. Charles Park, Mrs. Franklin Price Knott, Mrs. Francis Underhill, Mrs. William Griffith Henshaw, Mrs. Alla Henshaw Chickering, Mrs. Charles Keeney and Mrs. Charles Ladd Johnston.

Miss Nina Jones, who is well known in Los Angeles, recently entertained with a supper party in the palm room of the Potter Hotel. The affair was given in honor of Mrs. Alla Henshaw Chickering and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keeney, who are spending the summer with Mr. and Mrs. William Griffith Henshaw at the Henshaw place in Montecito.

A recent "Dutch treat" dinner-dance at the Country Club attracted among others Mr. and Mrs. J. Langdon Erving, Dr. and Mrs. Oliver Dwight Norton, Dr. and Mrs. David Andrew Conrad, Mr. and Mrs. Grosvenor Porter Orton, Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brodie, Mr. and Mrs. William Karl Dick (Mrs. Dick was formerly Mrs. John Jacob Astor,) Mr. and Mrs. William Griffith Henshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford Kearney, Mrs. John Anderson, Mrs. Rachael Peabody Frazier and the Messrs. Harold Chase, Ralph Isham and William Edwardes.

Mrs. William Miller Graham's return from New York means the Country Playhouse will again be the scene of some clever amateur plays. Mrs. Graham has not made public her playhouse plans for the summer, but it is rumored two very interesting plays which she brought with her from New York will be put on in August.

Mrs. Ridgeway Trimble entertained a party of sixty members of the younger set with a dinner dance at the Arlington last Wednesday. The affair was given in honor of Mrs. Trimble's daughter, Miss Margaret Trimble, and Miss Ruth Driver and Jack Rock, who recently announced their engagement.

Mrs. Charles Harris Hopkins entertained members of the younger set with a dinner at the Country Club Friday. The affair was in honor of Mrs. Hopkins's son, Prince Hopkins, who recently returned from China.

Mrs. William Griffith Henshaw has issued cards for a large luncheon to be given July 20 in honor of her sister, Mrs. Greenwood.

To Tour the Orient.

The Japanese liner Tenyo Maru will sail from San Francisco August 26 with a large party of Angelenos, who will tour the Orient, a journey which will include Japan, Korea, Manchuria and Peking, Hongkong and the Philippines. They are to return to Los Angeles November 28.

Those who have already joined the party are Mrs. Wellington Vanata, Mrs. L. M. Hackney, Dr. and Mrs. Peter Scott, A. D. McCann, Mrs. H. L. Beckjord, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Waterson and James Carruthers.

Entertains Officers.

Mrs. May Watson, president of the Bartlett-Logan W.R.C., entertained officers of the organization with a luncheon party last Wednesday. She was assisted by Mrs. Coulter, Miss Phyllis Ford and little Miss Helen Watson. Hydrangeas formed the table decoration, with patriotic place cards. Music was provided by Mrs. Flora White.

Present were Miss Mabel Jefferson, Mrs. May Wadman, Miss Gertrude Hatch, Mrs. Sarah Martin, Mrs. Mary Huff, Mrs. Amanda Hiner, Mrs. Pearl Neville, Mrs. Clara Henton, Mrs. Magery Dean, Mrs. Cora Horton, Mrs. Jessie Ford, Mrs. Flora White, Mrs. Daisy Beecher, Mrs. Fanny Hayes, Mrs. Lou McKirahan and Mrs. Jennie Noble.

Lampman, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lee, Mrs. A. C. Volk, Mrs. E. B. Weikle, Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Reynolds, Mariam Reynolds and William S. Noble.

A merry party of Santa Barbara folks that arrived there recently for a brief sojourn includes Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Hale, Miss Marian Vail, Catherine Vail, Jane Vail, E. F. Vail, J. E. Hollister and W. E. Chamberlain.

Mrs. Frederick Eldridge and Dr. and Mrs. E. Avery Newton are also at the mountain resort.

Unique Wedding.

The sightly La Crescenta home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Adolphus Baldridge, Onondarka ranch—the house on the hill—furnished a unique setting for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mae Haase Anderegg, and Gordon Farrar Blackwood of Glendora, Wednesday evening, the happy young couple plighting their troth underneath the starry heavens, on the spacious roof.

The decorative scheme was kept delightfully rustic, with innumerable bell-shaped lights hung overhead, and an improvised altar erected at one end of the outdoor rendezvous, massed in vines and ferns. Yucca blossoms marked off the path of the bridal party, with garlands of white tulle and wedding bells. Indian bowls containing brightly-vivid salvia and Indian paint brush, with the contrasting yuccas, which the Spanish call "the candles of the Lord," and Navajo rugs, harmonized in an exquisitely effective whole, accentuated by the sweet music from a strolling Hawaiian stringed orchestra.

In the bridal party were Mrs. Frank H. Ohrmund, the bride's sister, matron of honor; Miss Dorothea Fouke, maid of honor, and the Misses Mabel Patton, Elizabeth Streeter and Elizabeth Furlow, bridesmaids. Henry Waters of Glendora was best man, with James Riddell, Wayne Ferguson, Morse Cooper and Frank H. Orhmund, ushers.

While the 200 or more invited guests were gathering—and well they were guided by orange lights which illumined the entire way from the end of the Montrose line to the country home—music filled the night's quiet with sweet harmony. Just at 8:30 o'clock Rev. William Rialto.

ONE of the most effectively-appointed bridge whist luncheons of the season was that given on Wednesday at the Glenwood Mission Inn, with Mmes. Thomas McHugh and T. H. Van Frank, who are possessed of an especially happy faculty of entertaining, as hostesses. The long table was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of yellow and white, dainty floral festoons leading to a center piece of nasturtium, coreopsis and marguerite blooms artistically intermingled with greenery. Places were found by means of dainty cards bearing suggestions for vacation time diversions, by their aptness adding to the general enjoyment. At the war of cards Mrs. C. V. Roberts won the highest score prize, an exquisite flower bowl of Eocean pottery. Following the games an organ recital and paintings by F. Hopkinson Smith were enjoyed. Those present included Mmes. Sawtelle.

MRS. GRACE M'CLELLAN entertained at dinner last Sunday evening for seven of her out-of-town friends. They were Mr. and Mrs. Schober, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schober, Dr. and Mrs. Malchow and Miss Glyck.

Many of the summer week-end parties have begun in the city now. A group of people to enjoy one of these this week are Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Stoner and Mrs. Mary Thode. They will spend three days at Catalina in swimming and fishing and will return on Monday to the city.

One of the former well-known residents of Sawtelle has returned to the coast region for the summer. She is Miss Ella Caveness, who for many years resided in this city and is now living in Yuma, Ariz. Because of the hot weather at her present home Miss Caveness has come to Ocean Park for the summer and will undoubtedly be the guest of many of Sawtelle's families.

The great social surprise of the week was the marriage of Miss Marie Lockheart and Orris Jewitt. Unknown to their friends, they motored to Ventura yesterday and were married there by the Rev. Mr. Lawrence. They returned to this city yesterday.

The Woman's Club of Sawtelle has maintained the policy of keeping up their social meetings during the summer. Butterflies of varying shades of yellow and of many sizes, suspended and at rest throughout the rooms, were the charming setting in which Miss Dorothy Folger entertained at a high tea last Saturday afternoon. The menu embodied the same color scheme. Prior to the last course, an orange was served, which, when loosened of the silken lover's knot which bound it, fell apart, disclosing a butterfly bearing the names of Miss Edith Corene Hollister and Mr. Harley Harper Booher. Both Miss Hollister and Mr. Booher are popular and well-known young people, having lived in this city since childhood. Miss Hollister is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Hollister; Mr. Booher, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Booher. The marriage will be solemnized in the early fall.

Superfluous Hair
Must Be Devitalized

Unlike pastes and rub-on preparations, this wonderful liquid attacks hair under the skin as well as on the skin. It does its work quickly, then evaporates. Results from its use are immediate and lasting. Buy a bottle of the genuine De Miracle to-day and you will get the original liquid hair remover, which alone has the power to devitalize hair. Well groomed women always use De Miracle for removing hair from the limbs to prevent it from showing through stockings. Also for removing hair from under arms. To avoid disappointment, refuse imitations or substitutes. Be sure to buy De Miracle by name and you will get the only depilatory that has a binding guarantee in each package which entitles you to your money if it fails. In 50c, $1.00 and $2.00 bottles at your dealer's, or direct, postpaid, in plain wrapper. De Miracle Chemical Co., Dept. A-3, Park Ave. and 129th St., New York.

Those who were invited to welcome the guest to Venice amid a bower of marguerites were Mrs. Irving Hellman, Mrs. Louis Nordlinger, Mrs. Stephen Leow, Mrs. Ben Meyer, and Mrs. Milton Goetz.

Santa Monica.

SOCIETY here this week is wavering between golf and various other outdoor events, mainly something that has the smack of the sea. A novel event is that planned by the Brentwood Country Club, the exclusive club on the edge of this city. Leap Year is mingled with the golf match, inasmuch as a mixed foursome beginning Saturday and lasting over for the week-end is planned. The Leap Year phase of it is in that the women players have the right to pick their own partners in the matches they go into.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Morphy gave an informal affair recently, tennis being one of the interesting outdoor features of the afternoon, and of the week-end. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. William S. Hook, Mrs. Dan McFarland, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Chandler, Mrs. Harry Coburn Turner, Mrs. Samuel Brown Thomas, Miss Louise Burke, Charles Seylor and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney I. Wailes.

MRS. J. S. HILL opened her French-street home on Friday evening to a coterie of her friends who united some years ago in a friendly tie which they cemented by taking the name of "The Beach Girls," they having spent several summers together at one or another of the beaches of Orange county. Her guests included Mmes. Henry Thompson of Stillwater, Okla.; George Cole of Riverside, D. A. Bear, Will Cowan, Will Compton and E. B. Sprague; Misses Mary Smart, Bessie Lewis, Alice Trickey, Esther Patterson, Hattie Whidden and Leslie Smith. After an evening of reminiscences invoked over pretty needlework the company was seated at a daintily-appointed table in the spacious dining-room, where Cecil Brunner roses in a low crystal bowl on a glass plateau made a charming centerpiece. Gilt-edged place cards marked covers at the collation.

A pleasant family dinner and reunion was enjoyed on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Pumphrey on West First street. The affair celebrated the twenty-seventh birthday anniversary of their son, Mr. Marshall Pumphrey, who is engaged with Barker Bros. at Los Angeles. Those at the table included the host and hostess, the honoree and his charming sister, Miss Lillian Pumphrey; Mr. and Mrs. James Pumphrey and son, James; Mrs. F. D. Deffiedieu and daughter, Miss Kathrine. The evening following the dinner was spent with conversation interspersed with music and the voicing of good wishes for the young man who was the honoree of the event.

A juvenile party which gave pleasure to a large grouup of children was given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Battey, for little Miss Helen Battey on a recent Wednesday afternoon, to celebrate her eighth birthday. The children had a happy time with a peanut hunt and various jolly games that preceded a dainty birthday feast served in the dining-room, which was decorated in patriotic colors, flags being largely used. The raspberry ice was topped with flags and the candles were in red, white and blue, and a delicious birthday cake was the prime attraction as the youngsters gathered around the festal board. Gifts were showered on the little hostess, whose guests included Dorothy and Virginia Battey of Los Angeles, Sanford and Barbara Babson, Jeanette and Gertrude Smoyer, Teddy Burlew, Florence Brownridge, Bernice and Hazel Palmer, Gladys Cope, Evelyn Metzgar, Veda Mitchell, Mary and Lou Pomeroy, Estelle Schlesinger and Frances Battey.

Miss Elizabeth Dunnaven arranged a most delightful function for her friends on a recent Friday evening when she entertained with a masquerade. The guests were ushered through the driveway, brilliant with multicolored Japanese lanterns, to a lawn at the rear of the Dunnavan home, where rugs, easy chairs and couches were most invitingly placed. The large garage with its cement floors presented an inviting place for dancing, alluring music being furnished by a Victrola. Mrs. Dunnavan was the gypsy fortune-teller, who later attracted most of the party to a unique house perched in the branches of a large tree, reached by a steep and winding stairs up which the guests were ushered by two ghosts, personated by the Misses Anita Cox and Carolyn Dunnavan. As the fortune-telling proceeded individual tables were set in the garage and delicious refreshments were served as an interlude before a programme of merry games was presented by the entertaining hostess. Miss Jewel Hickox, as a dainty colonial maid, was awarded first costume prize, and David Smiley as Uncle Sam was also winner of a handsome trophy. The costumes were various and attractive. Those in the company were: Misses Florence Neff, Mildred Murphy, Dorothy Hendrie, Elizabeth Roy, Luelma Neff, Frances Baker, Jewel and Ruth Hickox, Ruth Webber, Vivian Cox, Margaret Francisco of Monrovia; Messrs. Husted Metzgar, Warren Fletcher, Clyde Plavan, Dewey Scott, Donald Winans, Burr Shafer, Perry Thomas and David Smiley.

A dual birthday dinner, with Mrs. H. Clay Kellogg as hostess, was given at the Kellog home on Friday evening in honor of the two sons of the household, Harold and Franklin. Maman Cochet roses and blue Ipomea developed the shades of light blue and pink chosen as the color scheme for the event. The same tints prevailed on the hand-painted place cards, on the backs of which were written clever poetical prophecies as to the futures of the young men who are preparing to be civil engineers. A birthday cake for each of the honorees graced the long table, at either end of which sat the honorees. Mrs. Kellogg's daughters, Misses Helen and Rose, served, proving most efficient waitresses. Music was played during the various courses of the dinner and during the evening handsome gifts were bestowed on each of the young men.

Mrs. George W. Faul entertained on Monday with a patriotic luncheon in the attractive Dragon balcony. Adorned with floating Stars and Stripes and garlands of greenery, the attractive banquet-room was centered with a handsomely-appointed table with a centerpiece of a dainty cake over which waved tiny flags. The crystal candlesticks were tied with red, white and blue ribbon and the place cards bore miniature flags and the same potriotic colors that prevailed elsewhere. The luncheon was followed by returnto Mrs. Faul's apartments at the Colonial, where five hundred was played, with prizes going to Miss Helen Garden, Miss Arvilla Ball, Mrs. Eugene Ketchum and Miss Muriel Lee. Miss Helen Sylvester, niece of the hostess, assisted in doing the honors. The occasion also was the anniversary of Mrs. Faul's birthday and her friends showered her with beautiful gifts. Those in the company were Misses Merle Obarr, Helen Remsberg, Elizabeth Givens, Arvilla Ball, Dorothy Mead, Muriel Lee, Norma Wingood, Helen Carden, Helen Sylvester, Zina McArthur, Florence McArthur, Ramona Clevenger, Isabelle Anderson, Grace Gebhardt, Murial Lee; Mmes. Chaperoned by Mrs. Leslie of Los Angeles a gay party of charming young girls joined in a delightful house party of a week's duration at Dewdrop Inn Cottage, Balboa, recently. All the pleasures of the beach, including bathing and boating and the social pastimes that make Balboa so supremely enjoyable, were participated in by the following young women: Misses Helen Sylvester, Blossom Ward, Mildred Smith, Marian Scudder, Marie Golden, Gwendolyn Hoyle. A feature of the sojourn at Dewdrop Inn was a party given at the week-end at which the following young men were guests: Neal Raney, Ed Holmes, Joe Kelly, Carl Stevens, Carl Johnson, Eugene Trago and Cornish Roehm. A trip around Newport Bay in the new launch, The Limit, was a delightful feature of the week-end event.

Upland.

A ROMANCE which has kept Upland friends of both parties guessing for the past six months or more culminated happily Wednesday in Whealton, Ill., according to word received here, when Ernest W. Fisher and Miss Harriet Robinson, two popular local young people were united in marriage at the home of the bride's sister. Miss Robinson was at the head of the domestic science department at Chaffey High School, Ontario, for the past two years, and Mr. Fisher is at the head of the mathematics department of the same school. Friends of the couple have whispered it about for months that they were to wed, and when Miss Robinson asked for a year's leave of absence to take a course at Columbia University, N. Y., and she and Mr. Fisher departed simultaneously for the East, speculation became rife. Up to the time of their departure, however, both parties persistently denied any intention of marrying, and it was not until word that the wedding had been celebrated reached here that anything definite was known. Mr. Fisher plans to take a course at the Columbia summer school and he and his bride will remain in the East for perhaps a couple of months. Upon their return, they will reside at the Fisher bungalow in Laurel avenue, which has just been renovated for their occupancy. Miss Robinson is the third instructor to desert the domestic science department of Chaffey for the practical application of her art.

A merry party of Upland society folk motored yesterday to Long Beach, where they are the guests over the week-end of Mis Ismay Chadwick, who is passing the summer at the Coast. Those enjoying the delightful outing include Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pierce Fuller, Miss Eva Gerry, Miss Mildred Ware, Miss Hazel St. Amand, Phil Damon, Everett H. Fuller, Cecil G. Ware and Harold C. Moore.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Stewart in First evenue, was the scene of a happy gathering Monday evening, when a large party of young people gathered to help Miss Agnes Stewart celebrate the anniversary of her birth. Games and music occupied the evening, and light and cooling refreshments were served at a late hour. The guests numbered Miss Mildred Bower, Miss Katherine Puehler, Miss Paloma Wilding, Miss Letha Bice, Miss Maude Dinger, Miss Nora Singer, Miss Viola Yegerline, Miss Geneva Moreman, Miss Ella Haddow, Miss Lillian Widner, William Thayer, Ivan Soper, John Bice, Floyd Soper, William Manker, Melvin Dinger, John Estes, Charles Lee, Charles Miller, and Theodore Nafius.

At Aloha, her attractive home in Second avenue, Mrs. D. D. Crew entertained Friday with a charming afternoon affair. Wisely, Mrs. A. L. Palis, Mrs. Cushing, Miss Annie Larter, Mrs. G. Aaron Brest, Mrs. Paul Cushing, Mrs. John M. Collins, Mrs William C. Cline, Mrs. W. B. Duncan, Mrs. Chad K. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jay Hall are back at their home in Euclid avenue after a most enjoyable motor tour about the State, in which they covered some 1200 miles. The Halls went first to San Diego, where they spent several days enjoying the exposition. From the southern city they drove to Bakersfield by the Ridge route, thence to Fresno, on to Coalinga and down the Coast to Santa Barbara, where they spent a few days before returning to Upland.

MRS. C. A. VEDDER of Galveston, Tex., was the honor guest at a delightfully appointed "America First" party Thursday afternoon, given by her daughter, Mrs. John Key and Mrs. Herbert M. Key, at the country club. The clubhouse was decorated with flags and bunting which gave a very patriotic aid to the happy gathering. As the score cards (bearing small United States flags) were passed, the guests were told to find their own "forts." Instead of the tables being numbered, the guests found that each bore the name of some United States fort, and in the center of each table was a miniature fort with guardian soldier, and Old Glory in her place. Couple number one was designed as "Company A," and couple two as "Company B," etc. Whist was played at fourteen tables. Thep rize winners of the afternoon were Mrs. F. A. Brubacher, first; and Mrs. J. W. Grinnell captured the consolation prize. The latter was a toy cannon and the first prize was a handsome flag. The refreshments were also in keeping with the patriotic spirit of the party, ice cream, cake and mints being served. Those present were Mesdames C. A. Vedder, T. A. Fraser, R. N. Ross, Clarence White, W. L. Lyman, F. A. Brubacher, F. H. Roberts, S. L. Waite, S. L. Vale, L. D. Bedford, R. R. Root, C. H. Read, E. C. Reid, Mary Archer, J. W. Grinnell, S. A. Baxter, L. L. La Habra.

THE lure of camp life in the mountains has drawn several parties to the nearer popular resorts the last week, among them Mr. and Mrs. George Wolf and their children. They left Wednesday by automobile for a sojourn in the San Antonio Canyon and expect to breathe the fragrant air of the pines for several weeks.

Camp Baldy was chosen by the Bradshaw party for a stay of a fortnight or more, as it seemed to hold out a greater number of attractions just suited to their taste. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Brewster and children there were Miss Lizzie Luehm of Fullerton, Mrs. Brewster's mother, Mrs. Sherman, and brother, Arthur Sherman.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Robertson of Ocean avenue were delightfully surprised Monday evening on the occasion of their twentieth wedding anniversary. Forty guests were present, a number of them coming from Olinda, which was the home of the Robertsons before coming to La Habra. The visitors entertained themselves as well as their host and hostess with impromptu amusements such as the old-fashioned "stage coach," which was happily modernized into "jitney bus." Mr. and Mrs. McDill gave a violin and piano duet, and there were vocal duets by Harold Robertson and Miss Alta Johnson of Olinda, and instrumental numbers by Miss Marjorie Robertson. A varied and tempting array of home-made cakes with ice cream appeared at the proper time, and it was a very late hour when the merrymakers gathered around the happy couple for good wishes and reluctant farewells.

Mr. and Mrs. George Beck and children motored to Seal Beach Sunday for a pleasant outing and picnic dinner.

Miss Mary Canfield has been the recipient of a number of courtesies during her ten days' vacation at home from Los Angeles, where she is a hospital nurse. She and her sister Della were dinner guests Tuesday at the home of their friend, Miss Lela Proud.

Burbank.

THE various social clubs of this city have not yet adjourned for the summer. Among these are the Fleur de Lys Club, which continues its afternoon meetings with embroidery and amusements during all the summer months. The last meeting was held at the home of Mrs. H. H. Storey.

The Five Hundred Club also continues its meetings during the hot season. The twenty members met last week at the home of Mrs. B. A. Lewis and enjoyed an afternoon of cards. They have not given up their evening entertainments, either, and a few weeks ago gave a delightful evening of five hundred.

The marriage last week of Mrs. LaRue and Mr. Frank Robbins was of special interest, since they are members of the best-known and oldest families of the city. They made a short trip to Santa Barbara by motor and have now returned to this city, where they are at home.

Garden Grove.

A CHARMING surprise birthday event was the honor given to Mr. Bradey at the Methodist Church of this city on Thursday evening. Mr. Bradey, who has reached an advanced age, is not in the habit of going out in the evening, but was induced to go to the church when one of the neighbors called for him with an automobile. He found about half a hundred of his friends present at the church to greet him after a devotional meeting had ended. The social hour spent by the company was made interesting with diversions, a post card shower, and dainty refreshments, the chief de resistance of the latter being a big white birthday cake adorned with eighty-four pink candles, which marked the milestones in his life.

A charming dinner was served at the De Vaul home recently to a large party of relatives of Mr. and Mrs. De Vaul. Covers were laid for the host and hostess and their daughter, Miss Iola De Vaul; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Winter and son, Mr. and Mrs. John Winter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shumway and daughter of Los Angeles, Mrs. Griffin and family of Santa Monica, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene De Vaul of Santa Ana, and Mr. Brown. The sumptuous dinner and a merry afternoon was followed by an automobile trip to Seal Beach in the pleasant evening hours.

Mrs. C. C. Violett was hostess over the Fourth of July at her Seal Beach cottage for a large number of friends. She was assisted by her son Malcom and daughter, Ruth, and her house guests were the Misses Muriel Arkley, Winifred Adland, Constance German and Mr. George Stidenger. Other guests motoring to the Violett cottage were Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Arkley, Kenneth, Rodney and Hilda Arkley, Mr. and Mrs. William Adland, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. German, Messrs. Irvine Germand and Albert Snyder. The automobile party was accompanied by Dr. C. C. Violett, host for the event. All the pleasures of the beach, including a bountiful picnic dinner at the cottage and an after-supper display of fireworks and lighting effects, made the house party one of the most successful imaginable.

Extraordinary

Silk Dresses Worth $29.00 and $35.00

$18.50

These dresses are—well, wonderful!

They make a task in description!

Here is a pretty blue thing of, say Taffeta, with a Priscilla frilled basque for a waist. Then comes a flounce or two and a flounce with a 'hoop (there it is!) and then three rows of ruffles, and that's the skirt.

But the hoop is only an imitation, of cords, because there is a little lack of the daring necessary to take on hoops all at once.

There. You can describe ONE. But that is not fair to the others. Each one is an individual.

You simply have to see them yourself. We certainly shall be glad to have you, whether you really are buying or not.

Come expecting a thrill!

Never—never, has even Swelldom offered such remarkable values before.

These dresses are NEW. They are the fashions of the moment and a little ahead for midsummer and Fall.

They are of Taffetas, Satins, Crepe de Chines, Georgette Crepes, Serges—all the favored materials in all the approved colors, including the new BLUES.

Careless Use of Soap Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless, and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which renses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy; it's very cheap, and a few ounces with supply every member of the family for months.

Mrs. Samuel Biddison, who is active in women's affairs in New Jersey and a cousin of one of the club members, was presented to the company and spoke entertainingly. She compared the advantages of women in New Jersey with those enjoyed by women in California, pointing out that the women of the Golden State have the advantage. Duarte.

THE coming of thirty speakers and delegates in official capacity, as well as a large number of guests, to Duarte the past week created a social situation in itself, for the homes of the southern Methodists were thrown wide open in hospitable fashion to the conference visitors. The gathering included visitors from Arizona and California and all were cordially welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lavender and their committee. Wednesday evening a moonlight party was given by the young people with English Milliken presiding. A huge bonfire was a feature of the evening, about which gathered a merry company, and, after listening to addresses of welcome, roast viands were prepared over the glowing coals for an evening repast.

For All Complexion Ills

If the skin be colorless, sallow, muddy, over-red, blotchy or freckled, nothing will so surely overcome the condition as ordinary mercolized wax. It literally takes off a bad complexion—absorbs the dead and near-dead particles of surface skin, gently, gradually, causing no inconvenience at all. A new complexion is then in evidence, clear, spotless, delicately soft and beautiful. One ounce of this wax, procurable at any drugstore, will rejuvenate even the worst complexion. It is used like cold cream.

Now is the Time To Buy Diamonds

SCREEN.

Variety.

VERSATILE FLICKERS.

LARGE RANGE OF EXPRESSION IN PLAYS THIS WEEK.

All manner of features from a film version of "La Boheme" to a Charlie Chaplin farce; from the foreign and impressive "Masque of Life" to a home-made Douglas Fairbanks comedy, adorn Motion-picture Row this week. Such well-known photoplay favorites as Dustin Farnum, Olga Petrova, Alice Brady and Virginia Pearson, will grace the screens amid new surroundings. Besides, a new film star, Mary MacLaren, will make her appearance. Whosoever may desire to give a progressive motion-picture party, will not be disappointed in finding a surplus of variety this week.

Symphony.

Mme. Olga Petrova, the famous stage and screen beauty, will appear at the Symphony, beginning tomorrow, in "The Eternal Question," a New York society drama. In the opening scenes, however, Mme. Petrova appears as an Italian street musician. The story is said to be a strongly dramatic one. There are also some thrilling incidents, including a race between an ocean liner and an aeroplane.

Tally's Broadway.

"La Boheme," done into picture form by the famous director, Albert Cappellani, is to be the attraction at Tally's Broadway, commencing tomorrow. The story is one of the Paris Latin quarter, and is too well known to need repetition here. Alice Brady plays the role of Mimi and is said to give a beautiful characterization.

Excerpts from the familiar score of Puccini's operatic version of "La Boheme," will be rendered by the pipe organ and orchestra.

Clune's Broadway.

Marked by originality and peppered with swift and stirring action, "The Good Bad-Man," which will be the attraction at Clune's Broadway, beginning today, is said to be an unusually strong attraction. Douglas Fairbanks, whose popularity as a screen star has waxed greater with each picture, is the author, as well as hero of "The Good Bad-Man" and pretty Bessie Love make a most delightful co-star.

Aside from the genuine thrills, the big situations and the strong love element that pervade the photodrama, there are many wonderful scenes and much splendid photography, especially in the desert country, in the picture. The story centers around "The Good Bad-Man," known as Passin' Through, who really is a most likable chap after all.

Majestic.

"The Masque of Life," said to be the best Italian photoplay ever produced, is the current attraction at the Majestic Theater. The picture was shown in London a short while ago, and had an attendance record equalling that of "The Birth of a Nation."

A brilliant cast takes part in the big spectacle, and there are many thrilling scenes such as the fight with a giant baboon in mid-air, the stampede of wild beasts in a circus conflagration, the spectacle of circus life, and many other sensational features. The story concerns the adventures of a prince who falls in love with and marries a circus queen.

Garrick.

Charlie Chaplain, in "The Vagabond," playing the part of a wandering musician, continues to draw big crowds to the Garrick daily. The film will be seen during the coming week, in conjunction with another big five-reel Mutual feature.

Superba.

"God's Country and the Woman" is breaking all attendance records at the Superba, and will be held over this week. The photoplay has all the appeal of a tremendously realistic, well-acted drama. In addition to this the settings have never been excelled in the history of film-making. The picture was taken in Bear Valley last winter, where several of the company shut in by the storm nearly lost their lives through hunger and exposure to cold. The big fight of the Alaska dogs, wherein they attack and tear to pieces the villain of the story, is one of the most realistic and sensational features ever shown on the screen.

Nell Shipman, one of the loveliest women in filmland, plays the feminine lead.

Woodley.

Dustin Farnum, in an elaborate film version of the famous story, "Davy Crockett," will be the attraction at the Woodley Theater beginning tomorrow. As Davy Crockett, the idol of the screen appears in a role that calls for a display of his well-known histrionic ability. Mr. Farnum also has opportunity for showing his proficiency in the art of riding a spirited horse and much other knowledge gained during his many hunting and roughing trips.

The screen story is filled with action, scenes of frontier life, among which the most interesting and tense are when Dustin rescues two persons lost in a blizzard in the mountains, and during an all-night struggle in a neglected cabin against hungry wolves.

Alhambra.

"Shoes," Lois Weber's greatest production, has been secured for the Alhambra Theater and will be shown for the first time today. This is Miss Weber's latest sensational film play and was only booked by the Alhambra management after one of the most spirited bidding contests ever held in the city. It is a dramatic story of a $5-a-week shopgirl.

Featured in the photoplay is the new screen actress, Mary MacLaren, who achieves a triumph of photoplay art by her vivid and true-to-life portrayal of the central figure in the story.

Miller's.

Virginia Pearson in "A Tortured Heart," a dramatic photoplay of a woman's struggle for happiness, will be the photoplay at Miller's Theater starting today. In this southern story, told in picture form, Virginia Pearson has a role which just fits her beauty and dramatic powers. The tale unfolded in "A Tortured Heart" is filled with all the wholesomeness of the Southland.

In the cast with Miss Pearson are Stuart Holmes, Stephen Grattan, Fuller Mellish, George Larkin and Marian Swayne.

Palace.

Dorothy Gish will make her reappearance on the screen at the Palace Theater during the coming week in "The Little School Ma'am," a strong dramatic photoplay, while Fred Mace and his tribe of fun makers in "Bathtub Perils" will be the Keystone comedy attraction.

The school ma'am is a charming little southern miss in straitened circumstances who, through whimsical fate, finds herself in a small northern village teaching young hopefuls, "readin', writin' and 'rithmetic."

Empress.

George Beban, the celebrated Italian character delineator and Myrtle Stedman, will shine in "Pasquale" on the screen at the Empress Theater, starting tomorrow. The picture shows Pasquale as a quaint honest tradesman over whose life at a very critical time the shadow of the great war casts its ominous influence.

Besides Miss Stedman and Mr. Beban, other notable photoplayers in the cast include Helen Eddy, Page Peters, Jack Nelson and Nigel de Brullier. Beautiful Myrtle Stedman appears more beautiful than ever in her daring and hazardous portrayal of "Mrs. Martinelli."

MELODY AND PICTURES.

Important Function that Music Has in Supplying the Place of Spoken Word, with a Brief Record of Some of the Unhappy Alliances of Sound and Sense that Have Occurred.

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT.

THE daring statisticians who glibly tell of the consumption of film for photoplay stories in terms of thousands of miles might well find a new occupation in attempting to figure the number of millions of notes per annum that are consumed in the process of making music to accompany the fast flying flickers. They would probably have to hire the service of an army of accountants in the process big enough to win the battle of Verdun from the combined forces of the allies and Germans, and at that their task would not be easy. For wherever we go we at least have the player piano with us, and as we progress from the lower to the higher strata of screenland, we come into contact with the more aristocratic organ and the orchestra of greater or less strength of numbers.. These all unite in contributing a symphony, more or less sweet, that furnishes "atmosphere" and takes the place of the spoken word in the ever-expanding film world.

This subject of music and the photoplay is a big one, and it is growing with a rapidity that makes one wonder just where its possibilities are to be tested next. It is attracting the interest of the foremost composers, some of whom have already succumbed to the Sirenic screen play and lent their talents to the work of adding to its atmosphere. The past few weeks witnessed the presentation here of Victor Herbert's score for "The Fall of a Nation," and there is another photoplay with music by Leoncavallo that is at present attracting attention. Both of these are original scores.

We were not so fortunate here as to enjoy the music composed and adapted for the "Birth of a Nation" by Joseph Carl Breil, who has perhaps had more experience in writing music for photoplays than any other composer in the country. He is at present working on the score of D. W. Griffith's big new feature. As early as 1912 he composed a score for the Sarah Bernhardt film, "Queen Elizabeth," containing no adapted music.

Of the other big features that have been produced here "Civilization" score was written by Victor Schertzinger, while "Ramona" had music that was largely adapted. It is only of comparatively recent date that the craze for original music for photoplays has developed to a point where it is beginning to be demanded. This is largely, no doubt, because of the trouble of fitting adapted music properly to the scenes and events represented on the screen—in its way more difficult than writing original melodies and harmonies that suit.

There have been some curious mesalliances indeed that have cropped up in the process of fitting known music to the film, which, while they might pass unnoticed by the general public, strike as unusually curious the musically-inclined. It was in "Ramona" that the "Magic Fire" motif, that is used to describe the imprisonment of Brunhilde in a circle of flame in Wagner's Die Walkuere, is realistically applied to impart the idea of the burning of haystacks and Indian huts.

This failure of the musical adapter to see the spirit of the scene and only its material aspect as expressed in the word fire, finds other exemplifications in settings improvised for pictures. In one instance where an adapter was endeavoring to suggest the idea of a miser hoarding his gorld, he chose the famous "Rheingold" theme from Wagner's trilogy of the Niberlungen ring. For the scene laid in Libby Prison in "The Heart of Maryland," I am told that a certain musician selected the "Miserere" from "Il Trovatore," seemingly because it is laid in the vicinity of a prison. What matter if it be in a foreign land and some hundreds of years ago! It was just as well suited in the adapter's mind, apparently, to one prison as another.

There are hundreds of instances of a similar character that one runs across every day in the motion-picture theaters. Themes are carelessly employed with varying degrees of significance. Naturally there are many instances where the improviser or the adapter realizes the importance of the portrayal of the mood, and not the material aspect of the picture, and how essential proper atmosphere is, and acts accordingly. In fact, the number of expert picture

BRINGS STRONG CONTRAST.

Striking Scenes of Old Pueblo Days In New Film.

No more perfect illustration of the remarkable strides that have been made in the last seventy years in The City of the Angels can be found than the visualization of "The Daughter of the Don," by Winfield Hogaboom, the ten-reel historic masterpiece of early days in California, that will have its premiere at the Majestic Theater, August 13.

Of the events of the historic and romantic period of 1846 and 1847, when the power of the Spanish dons waned with the coming of the Americans under Fremont, Stockton and Kearney, and when Los Angeles was the center of the strife that was concluded when California was ushered into the Union, the film is full, and the action bristles with thrilling climaxes. Many of the scenes are laid in and about Los Angeles.

HIGH DIVE TWICE.

Fay Tincher Repeats Difficult Stunt in Picture Production.

Fay Tincher was compelled to make a ninety-foot dive twice in the two-reel Triangle comedy, "Laundry Liz." Director Dillon took his entire company to San Diego, in order to secure the scene where Fay, in escaping from her drunken husband, plunges headlong from a cliff into the ocean, a distance of ninety feet.

The camera was placed in position and Fay, with a dummy baby in her arms, plunged into the sea. After she swam ashore it was found that the cameraman had forgotten to fasten his film correctly in the camera box, and the plunge was wasted. Although completely tired out, the pluncky comedienne agreed to perform the stunt a second time. But before she made the second leap she went over the camera carefully and made sure that the film was properly in position.

accompanists and picture music writers is ever growing and promises within a few years to attain proportions that will count for much.

Before leaving the improviser and adapter behind and coming directly to the composer for pictures, let me cite one more instance of impromptu adapting that nearly broke up a motion-picture show. It happened that there was a certain sylvan scene where some Pan-like creature was to give a brief solo on his pipe. The director of the orchestra assigned the role of pipe player to the flutist of the orchestra. Now the motion picture like the time and tide waits for no man, and the flutist's experience in this type of work having been rather limited, he became very much excited when his solo was due. The director motioned wildly for him to begin, and he at last found his breath and the Pipes of Pan found their voice, but Pan had turned Teuton for the nonce and instead of the woodland interlude arranged for his solo broke forth into a rousing rendition of "Ach der lieber Augustin." The effect to say the least was not everything that could be desired under the circumstances, and was not missed by the audience.

There are many defects in the writing of music for pictures that may be missed by the average hearer. If he is at all sensitive to sound, however, he will distinctly feel the jarring notes. He may not be able to describe the sensation which he feels, or know whence dislike for certain phases of a picture originate, but in many instances these could be traced to the improper atmosphere created in the music. To the trained ear these same passages would appear inharmonious to the last degree, and the effect detrimental in a great degree to the impression created by the picture.

The composer really is the only final solution of the problem of music for pictures. More and more of the music that will be written to accompany them will have to be original to truly suit the mood of the photoplay.

The greatest fault with motion-picture music at present is the lack of adequate time for composition and the lack of adequate familiarity on the part of the composer with the nature of the particular film play. Recently in one important instance I am told the composer knew nothing more of the phoptoplay than what he might glean from the scenario and the record of the cuts in the picture forwarded to him by mail, and some like details of production. He had not seen the essential thing, the film.

The composer should really have as much time to work upon the music for an important feature after is is completed as the director took to stage it. This is little enough if the atmosphere created is to possess anything of inspirational reality. Until this time is granted music for pictures will be nothing more than a patchwork proposition, especially where it is reputedly original.

There is nothing which will so much add to the beauty of a perfect picture as music that fits it with a suggestion of every curve and vacillation in the dramatic-emotional line of the drama. The message of beauty can be heightened and intensified many degrees over by the joining of the two arts. There is something essentially burdensome in the silence of a theater while swift action progresses on a screen. Music is the only effective substitute that can be discovered for the missing spoken word, and it needs careful cultivation in the new and important role it has assumed.

Test of Jap Makeup Brings Convincing Results.

William J. Tedmarsh, in deciding upon his make-up for the character of Satsuma, the Jap, in the American Company's serial, "The Secret of the Submarine," tried it out first on President S. S. Hutchinson.

The latter was contemplating the new hedge in the studio grounds at Santa Barbara when a withered-up little Jap, with his hat in his hand, hesitatingly approached and asked:

"You want good gardener—thirty dollar month, maybe?"

Mr. Hutchinson replied, "see the superintendent."

"No use, Honorable Hutchinson—he'd put me to work," came the Jap's answer, and Mr. Tedmarsh moved away, satisfied with his makeup.

of Hollywood and Mrs. Viola Hurst of Los Angeles.

The ladies of the Duarte Reading Circle continue their meetings throughout the summer, this creating a pleasant fashion of vacation sociability. On Tuesday about twenty-five of the members gathered at Inglenook, the home of Mrs. Eugene D. Northrup on Buena Vista avenue, for a needlework party. Readings were contributed while the ladies busied their fingers with needlework, and at 4 o'clock tea was served.

Mrs. Carrol Fowler opened her house Friday afternoon between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock in compliment to the ladies of the Methodist Church. A varied programme was a feature of the gathering, which was attended by a large company. Sociability was happily combined with industry as needlework was in evidence.

Mr. and Mrs. Park Densmore and Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Gunnison and family made up a party at Hermosa Beach last week.

Mrs. W. W. Bacon had as her week-end guests Miss R. M. Files and Mrs. M. L. Cooke of Shreveport, La., who are spending the summer in California.

Redlands.

ALL the talk about preparedness, the departure of the National Guard, and the organization of the Home Guards, has caused an upheaval among the society women of Redlands, with the result that steps have been taken for the forming of a Red Cross Society. Many of those who will become members of the society are nurses, but many of the society girls of the city are planning to offer their services. Miss Mary L. Saunders, who has been a member of the Red Cross Society and is now a member of the Southern California State Committee, is in charge of the organization here. A medical unite has been formed in the county and the Red Cross unit will be next. All those who are not qualified nurses must first join the classes in first aid and thus qualify for the practical work that would result in case of war. The society girls of the city feel that they may not be called, but they want to be ready for service in case there is any need.

Vacation time is here in all its glory and there has been a steady exodus of society folk to the beach and mountain resorts. Among those medical unit has been formed in who have gone are Mrs. A. Ashby, Misses Virginia and Sarah Ashby and R. F. Canterbury, who have established a camp in Mill Creek. The Crams and Coys of East Highland have gone to their summer camp in Mountain Home. Mrs. T. J. A CHINESE PHILOSOPHER.

Wang Yang-Ming Was as Explicitly Ideal as Socrates.

[New York Evening Post:] "Life and death are like the day and night. You are able to understand the day. Stupid, yet arising; foolish, yet eating; acting, yet not manifesting natural law; fuddled all the time—this is dreaming during the day. When one cultivates natural law at every breath, and harbors it at every glance of the eye; when the mind is intelligent and clear, then one is able to understand the day. Do you thus during the day and the night will take care of itself."

This was the answer of Wang Yang-Ming, the Chinese Plato of the fifteenth century, to a disciple who made the immemorial query: "Watchman, what of the night?" He meant it to be, not the materialist's answer, ignoring death's mystery, but the Platonist's, who studies to model this imperfect life on that of the hereafter. In Wang's works, just published, "The Philosophy of Wang Yang-Ming," by Frederick Goodrich Henke, many parallels appear between his conceptions and those of the Greek philosopher.

"The controlling power of the body," says Wang, "is the mind. The mind originates the idea, and wherever the idea is there we have the thing. Thoughts are incipient acts." Socrates could have been no more explicitly idealistic. "There is no existence of things apart from the mind," adds Wang.

"Whence, then," asks a disciple, "comes the heaven-born principle?"

"Heaven-born principles exist all about us, in the universe. Intuitive knowledge (inspiration of Plato,) heaven-sent, causes us to be conscious of heaven-born principles. Right living and diligent investigation clarify our minds, so that we become more sensitive to their operation. The sage's mind is like a bright mirror, constantly polished by meditation. . . . An ordinary man's mind is dulled by the corroding action of passion."

Naturally the fly in Wang's philosophic ointment, as in Plato's, was the problem of matter, the resistance of things material to the will of man, and, of a piece with this, the wickedness of man himself, and the existence of evil.

One of his students propounded the question. He was weeding a garden at the time, which suggested the subject.

"How difficult," said K'an, the disciple, "it is to cultivate the good in heaven and earth, and how hard it is to get rid of the evil!"

The teacher said: "You should neither cultivate the good nor expel the evil—the purpose of heaven and earth in bringing forth is even as in the instance of flowers and grass. In what way does it distinguish between good and evil? If you take delight in seeing the flowers, then you will consider flowers good and grass bad. If you desire to use the grass you will in turn consider the grass good——"

K'an made the obvious retort, "In that case there is neither good nor evil, is there?"

For a moment the discovery of pragmatism hung in the balance. But Wang shirked the issue.

WHISKY AND MONEY MAKING.

People of a Dry Indiana Town Fall to a Man's Seductive Wiles.

[Indianapolis News:] A few miles from Smithville, Monroe county, is a general store where the prominent citizens of the neighborhood meet on occasion of having nothing else to do and debate questions of public interest. Half a dozen young men were attending an afternoon session of the best informed one afternoon recently, when a stranger approached the store.

Partly because he was entirely oblivious to the circle that, having deserted its winter quarters about the stove, was perched on boxes and the hitching poles beneath the sheltering roof in front of the store and partly because of his dress—a fashion distinctive in almost any place—attention turned to the stranger to the exclusion of all other interests.

But the stranger, thoroughly imperturbable, walked into the store and bought two red onions. He chopped these into small pieces and placed them in a bottle which he drew from his pocket. Then he emptied a small package of a white powder into the bottle on top of the onion.

Having performed these things without the slightest regard of the attention they attracted, he walked out of the door and to a pump near the store, where he filled the bottle with water. He shook it vigorously for a few moments, took a drink from it, and then displayed his social instincts by joining the group in front of the store. He passed among the men a bottle of real whisky! A moment later he had sold a packet of the powder to every man in the group.

A few moments later about fifteen men were grouped about the pump, each industriously shaking a bottle containing slices of red onion, a little white powder and some water.

Fifteen minutes later, when the last man had quit in disgust, and fifteen bottles containing only water, red onion and powder were scattered about the pump, the stranger had disappeared completely. Joseph Barclay, at Bloomington, prosecuting attorney of Monroe county, heard the story the next day, but listening to the tale was the only thing he could do about it.

Wants a Castle.

Ruth Stonehouse, the clever Universal star, has recently learned that she is one of the heirs to a vast estate in England, and has this week opened negotiations with a firm of London solicitors for the recovery of her share of the property.

"I should just love a smelly old castle with a drawbridge to play with," said Miss Stonehouse, "and I understand that's a part of the estate."

To What Base Uses—.

It's not for nothing Crane Wilbur, the David Horsley star, has learned the art of making himself understood by means of gesture and facial expression. He was given an opportunity recently to demonstrate his wonderful ability in this direction. The occasion was the loss of his laundry, and the argument was with two Chinese. He succeeded in recovering his property.

Adopted One.

Fred Church of the Universal has learned that "sweet charity" has its bitter side. Recently while working in a picture, part of which was being made at the Los Angeles Orphanage, he was attracted by a bright little 16-months-old girl, and after some thought decided to adopt the child. Meantime the infant's father put in an appearance and created a scene at the Church home. However, things have been adjusted to the entire satisfaction of all concerned, and little Eleanor is happily established in her new home.

Clara will Shine.

Clara Williams, the beautiful emotional actress of the Thomas H. Ince forces, has been elevated to the rank of a full-fledged star, it was announced this week, and will hereafter be seen in the big roles in the Triangle Kay-Bee plays in which she appears. A drama is now being written expressly to suit her talents by C. Gardner Sullivan, chief of the Ince authors, and it is expected to be ready within the next two weeks for delivery into the hands of Director Reginald Barker. It is said to be an intensely dramatic story of Italian and American locale, offering Miss Williams such a part as she had in that famous Ince story, "The Italian."

Knows All about Reform.

"Two Waifs," the photoplay written by Bernard McConville for the Fine Arts, in which Tully Marshall, Bessie Love and the kid actors are featured, is nearly finished. The film story deals with the subject of reform schools, and is said to reveal some interesting facts regarding the management of such schools. Bernard McConville is said to have made an exhaustive study of his subjects.

One on Sterling.

It was at Santa Barbara, where the Keystoners were securing some thrilling pictures in connection with the recent rodeo held there. Ford Sterling was taking part, and Harry Williams and Fred Mace were watching the stunts. Suddenly, there was a mix-up and several riders clashed. When the dust cleared away, one of the actors, who proved to be Sterling, was stretched out on the ground.

Williams turned excitedly to Mace.

"Sterling was kicked in the head by one of the horses," he exclaimed.

"No, he wasn't; he just fell," retorted Mace.

"I guess I know what I am talking about," indignantly replied Williams. "Didn't I see the horse limp away!"

Humorous Shoes.

A typical, rip-roaring Mack Sennett Keystone comedy, now being made, but not yet named, depicts the thrilling experiences of an eccentric inventor, who invents a pair of shoes to be used for walking on the water. Hugh Ray, Harry McCoy and Claire Anderson play the leading roles.

WELCOME INSTITUTION.

Y.W.C.A. Povides Studio Club for Picture Girls.

The lease was signed yesterday by the Young Women's Christian Association which secured the use of the Twist place on Carlos street, near Gower, for the Hollywood Studio Club of the Y.W.C.A. Repairs are being made and the rooms retinted, that the house may be inviting throughout. It is to be a recreation center amid homelike turroundings with provision for rest, study, social life and gymnastic training for young women employed at the motion picture studios.

This is the first enterprise of the sort in the United States. Additional furniture must be provided and a maintenance fund, and is is hoped that means may be found to erect an outdoor gymnasium. With the co-operation of the motion picture companies and others, it is expected that this will be made possible, the Y.W.C.A. to furnish experienced workers. The Hollywood Business Men's Club has already shown its approval of the plan by the contribution, as individual members, of $1500, the amount of the first year's work.

Mrs. Charles H. Richmond of Hollywood is the member of the board of managers of the Y.W.C.A. in charge of the enterprise.

Non-Com.

[London Chronicle:] A burly-looking sergeant had just left the bus when two girls who had sat opposite him began to discuss him. "He's not a private, is he?" queried one. "No, dear," was the reply. "He's a nom-com., you know" "A non-com.?" was the innocent's comment; and then, after a pause, during which she was apparently trying to discover a clew to the meaning of the abbreviation and found it in what she had read of the proceedings before the tribunals, she added, "Well, I think it perfectly shameful that a strong, well built man like that should be allowed to be a nom-combatant!" Mercifully the sergeant was out of hearing, so there was no fit of apoplexy to deal with.

Find Gold in Corpse.

[Seattle Post-Intelligencer:] Before the estate of Albert Halien, 85, could be settled, a post-mortem operation was necessary to remove from his stomach a $10 gold piece which Halien had included in his will bequeathing $250. Investigation showed the sum bequeathed $10 over the sum at hand. The coin had been swallowed several days before by Halien in excitement, apparently in making his will.

The Evils of Justice.

"The Red Robe" is a great piece of literature, though not particularly a great drama. Its structural design is broad and solid. It gathers action from its own momentum as the play develops and the final curtain falls just as a most pleasing and satisfying murder is committed. As a drama it is a bit tedious; overloaded with "purpose"—but if one reads Brieux one must expect to have morals catch like burs on to his attention. Brieux is a man with a mission—and he is big enough not to be ridiculous, though he may be disagreeable, in expounding his mission. Only lawyers, however, will find this drama disagreeable.

"The Red Robe" is an attack upon the mechanism of justice. It is less artistic than Galsworthy's "Justice" or "The Silver Box;" but it is more convincing—that is, it appeals to the sense of logic, while "Justice," for instance, arouses the emotion of pity and indignation.

The Game of Law.

Behind the bare plot of "The Red Robe" is the portrayal of the wire-pulling of the judges, the politics of the attorneys, the indifference to justice and worship of technicality on the part of the whole legal organization—and how an honest official is both embarrassed and futile when following his conscience.

Briefly: A murder has been committed. Somebody must be guilty. Etchepare and his wife, Yanette, are arrested. In the course of investigation it is found that Yanette, though a model wife for ten years, was, when a girl, in a disgraceful episode. This fact is bared in court. Etchepare is acquitted; but being a Basque, he will have nothing more to do with his wife and takes the children from her. While he has been in prison his farm has gone to ruin, his cattle have been killed; he comes out impoverished.

Who Is Responsible?

Yanette, her happiness irreparably destroyed, asks the investigator who pried her secrets out and bared them in court, what chance she has for redress. He says that there is none, that the law is not responsible. She cries out:

> "You are not responsible! So you can arrest people just as you like, just when you fancy, on a suspicion or even without a suspicion; you can bring shame and dishonor on their families; you can torture the unhappy, ferret into their past lives, expose their misfortunes, dig up forgotten offenses, offenses which have been atoned for and which go back to ten years ago; you can make use of your skill, your tricks and lies, and your cruelty to send a man to the foot of the scaffold, and worse still, you can drive people into taking a mother's children away from her—and after that you say, like Pontius Pilate, that you aren't responsible!"

With that she stabs him.

As a usual thing, we don't approve of murders, particularly by outraged women; and we know very well that Yanette was not morally justified—and good, solid dramaturgical art wouldn't have her stab the lawyer as she does, anyway—but nevertheless, and with all those things considered, it is a very appealing and satisfying bit of butchery.

FAR EASTERN CLOUDS.

PRESENT-DAY CHINA. By Gardner L. Harding. The Century Company, New York.

The Chinese know well they have been robbed of flesh to pay the Shylock bankers of Europe, drugged with opium for the greater prosperity of British tradesmen, surrendered their choicest harbors for fortifications of distant powers, given up the choicest mining concessions to foreign exploiters and that was largely why they reached out in a revolutionary spirit and sought to make for themselves a republic, the peer of any.

The country, Mr. Harding found, really went through a remarkable intellectual revolution, as well as political; especially strong was the women's movement, and social reforms were instituted—then Yuan Shi Kai seized the republic's power and it became overnight a monarchy.

At about that hour came the war in Europe, and with their arms busy, the nations of Europe were no longer able to watch each other in the Orient.

Japan, long schooled by an observance of Europeans in China, taught to dissemble, and to deny the act even while committing it, has imposed demands "that strike at the heart of China's sovereignty." Japan tells us that this is not so; but the world has not forgotten that Japan said precisely the same thing in the Korean business. We are coming to learn only slowly in America that it is not necessary to be a jingoist to suspect Japanese foreign policy of utter unscrupulousness. From the start the negotiations with China which ended with the ultimatum of May 1915 (when Japan threatened war on China if the demands were not granted,) were marked with a lack of good faith which led many an American in the Far East to a total change of mind about Japan."

Mr. Harding says that unquestionably the political future of China is conditioned by Japan, with such restraints as the European powers may be able to put on her.

He thinks China is the richest country in the world in resources, and the key to those resources are the railroads, most of which are under foreign control.

In conclusion Mr. Harding says: "China's future is not yet merely a Japanese question, but we can prevent its becoming a Japanese question by making it a world question. What has followed the partition of Turkey has shown clearly what would in even greater degree follow either the partition of China, its absorption or control by one power, or any other eventuality permanently disturbing the balance of power in the Far East . . . The upbuilding of China is vital to the peace of the world."

"PIERRE NOZIERE."

Anatole France unfailingly is stimulating and entertaining; and his interest is chiefly in ideas, in what people think, and scarcely a chapter is without the imprint of his perspicacious insight into the minds of various kinds and conditions of people.

"Pierre Noziere" has more than its inherent merits to make it valuable, for it is largely autobiographical and sketches M. France's childhood and youth. His earliest impressions were derived from an illustrated Bible.

"I had seen the Garden of Eden in my Bible, and my mother had described it to me. 'The Garden of Eden,' she told me, 'was a very pleasant place, with beautiful trees and all the animals of creation in it.' Now the Zoological Gardens tallied exactly with the Garden of Eden as depicted in my Bible, and as my mother described it to me, save that the animals had been confined behind iron bars as a result of the progress of civilization and the loss of innocence. And the angel who guarded the entrance with flaming sword had given place to a soldier in red breeches."

He wandered on walks along the streets and quays clinging to the hand of his nurse, Madame Mathias, and met many strange people and learned much that is not got from books—though as a child and as a youth he rejoiced continually to linger amid the bookstalls and talk with dealers, and with one in particular, Monsieur Debas, who, "though he never sold books, occasionally read them."

"For my part, I have never lighted upon an original edition of Moliere or Racine on the quays; but I have gained there something of greater worth than Tartufe before the plates or an Athalie in quarto; I have found wisdom there. All those piles of paper begrimed with printer's ink have taught me the vanity of triumphs that fade, of glory which blossoms but to die. Never do I turn over the contents of the penny box but a calm and gentle melancholy steals into my heart, and I say: 'What avails it to add yet a few more pages to this mass of ink-stained paper?'"

One chapter is frankly amusing, "Monsieur Planchonnet," which relates how, when a young man with the manuscript of a historical novel, "in which I had unburdened my soul and all my ideas of love and art," he found in Monsieur Planchonnet an editor, a big burly, hairy editor, who agreed to publish it. He was invited to dinner by Monsieur Planchonnet, and being a very young man with high ideas of love and art he drank so much wine as to fall in love with Madame Planchonnet—and between the wine and the love had difficulty in finding his way to his own home.

The last part of the book is made up of letters under the heading of "Pierre Noziere's Travels in France," and they may be in all moderation called brilliant letters—fairly scintillate—and he has woven legends and history into descriptive matter so cunningly as to keep the attention alert. "Britanny" is easily the best of these good chapters under Part III, with passages like this:

"It is here that the ocean is terrible, here that it shows its might. The countless rocks, over which its billows foam and seethe, appear like the ruined remnants of a shore that lies engulfed, with its antique cities and all their folk beneath the waves. . . . The old god, reclining drowsily upon the corpse of many a fair Atlantis, is in a good humor today, and waxes merry as he basks in the golden light of the sun. Yet even in repose he gives some hint of strength. The waves which break upon the rocks forty feet below us shroud the cliff in mist and scatter their salt spray upon our faces. After each onslaught of the billows the rocks emerge again, and down every one of their sparkling facets the salt sea tinkles in little silver cascades."

"Pierre Noziere," translated by J. Lewis May, is uniform in the series of translations, edited by Frederic Chapman (John Lane Company.)

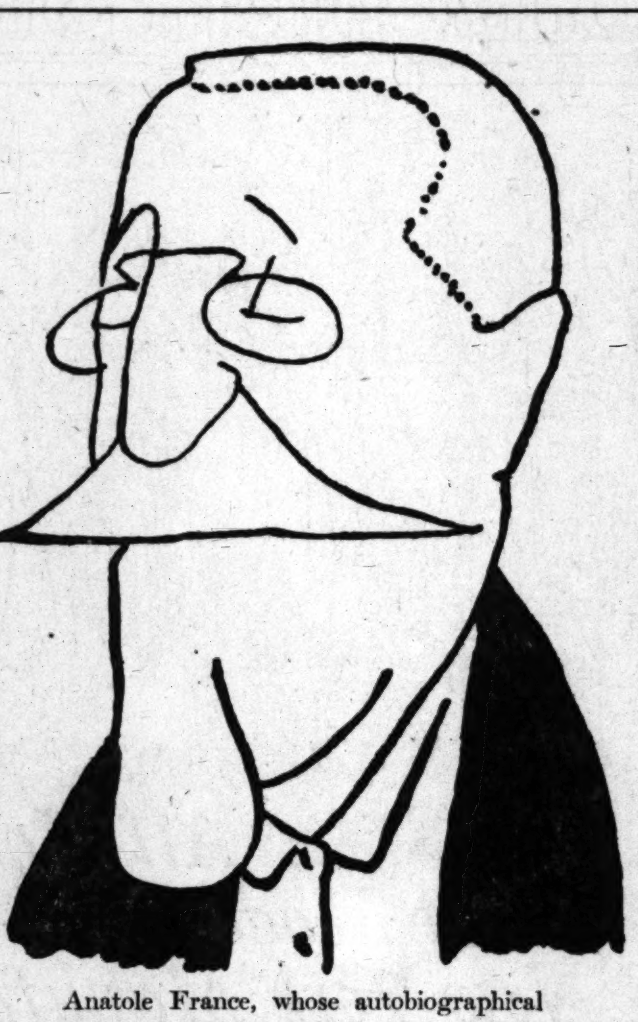
DISCIPLE OF WALTON.

THE DETERMINED ANGLER AND THE BROOK TROUT. By Charles Bradford. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

Mr. Bradford emphasizes the "noblesse oblige" of sportsmanship, the skill and art of fishing, and will not have it that the angler is a mere catcher of finny game, a fellow who gets the limit day in and day out.

The angler, he says, is a man who loves the art of the sport, who plays the game like a gentleman and would rather catch few trout, or none at all, and know his rigging was correct, his casts were perfect, his flies were true to the best ideals. Anglers are men who love nature, who get their pleasure from the scenic pools, who study the tricks of the cunning trout, grumble not at poor luck and whose very best catch never exceeds what he can dispose of humanly.

Very bitter is the author toward the commercialism that has denuded the forest, flooded the streams with refuse, and ruined the best of game fishing. He classifies varieties of trout, comments on the aesthetic features of the sport, and the spirit of his little book is wholly disclosed in the remark that "anybody can catch a trout with a worm. This is the bait of the boy and the boatman. The angler gives the trout a fair battle with the artificial fly. Comparing live-bait fishing to artificial fly angling is like comparing jewel working to blacksmithery."



Anatole France, whose autobiographical sketches are reviewed on this page under the heading of "Pierre Noziere."

THE OPEN PLACES.

A Choice Collection of Poems that Sing of Nature's Many Moods—Remarkable Verse.

WIND AND WEATHER. By L. H. Bailey. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

It is explained that "these poems, not written with a direct view to publication or for occasion, but purely free personal expressions, are clear songs of simple emotion with rhythm and melody, not diadactic or academic nor burdened with social sorrow. They are the author's selection from the author's accumulation of a quarter of a century, now published for the first time."

Few men have ever shown in way more practical their love of nature, of the things that grow and earth itself, than Mr. Bailey, whose knowledge of horticulture has overflowed a long shelf of books; and in "The Holy Earth" and "Wind and Weather" he discloses another phase of his love for nature.

Such a poem as "Summons," for instance, finds a response, we dare say, in every man who's ever "hit the trail:"

"Have you flung your arms and shouted till the forests answered back,
Seen the footprints of the cougar or the black bear's shambling track?
Have you ridden mountain horses as they follow up the trails,
Seen the court'sying water-ouzel and the scudding of the quails?

Have you smelled the pitch-knots burning as they snapple in the breeze,
Have you seen the camp-smoke rising till it billows in the trees?
Have you stretched full length and slumbered on the needles for a bed
With the sun-flecks dancing on you thro' the tree-tops overhead?
Then we'll go to find the rivers
Where they open to the sky
Wade the oozy turbid rivers
Where the water-bushes lie,
Feel the salmon in the rivers
As it rises to the fly."

A calmness is in these poems, a sweet serenity that is restful; for particularly in these days it seems that poets think to write verse they must talk in a loud voice. The charm, both in phrasing and conception of "The Great Voice" is readily perceived from the following lines:

"The greatest voice in nature
Is the blowing of the wind.

. . . . .

I hear its high rehearsals
When the midnight epochs run,
With message universal
And the world in unison.

. . . . .

Roll the rhythm instrumental
Bugle blown and violined,
Strikes the stave accidental
Timbrel-toned and siren-spinned—
Mortal hears and makes them his
When the soul is disciplined.
All the world a poem is
To them that hearken to the wind."

These are "conventional" poems; they have meter, melody and rhyme—the three blasting faults in the eyes of the young people who edit new poetry reviews and magazines. But nothing so mechanical as meter, melody and rhyme—no, nor the typographic acrobatics and belabored contrasts of "vers libre," "imagism," "vorticism," "spectralism"—makes poetry. It is the pulse of the thinker, the surge of mental emotion, the stimulation of ideas pleasing to the poetic sense, that differentiates those bards who are widely loved from those who seldom have, or deserve, even a brief hour of recognition. And the simplest of themes may have lines like these—from one who knows nature and rejoices in the infinity of her moods:

"I passed by this way in the lush of the spring
When bluebells and robins were free on the wing,
When cowslips were bursting, and fresh spears of grass
Were mirrored through pondlets as deep as a glass,
When tadpoles were hatching, and roadsides were clean
With freshness of showers and riot of green."

He sings the open air, the out-of-doors, the winter snows, the rainy days, the deserts, the swamps, the stars, the forests, the dusty roads, and never a complaining note, never a plaintive whisper of melancholy.

And though for the most part his muse is gentle and pipes a reed flute as it were, in "Process," the cymbals are clashed and the poet cries out:

"Blow down ye gales from our mountain heights,
Roll out ye thunders from our gates ajar,
Fall lightning strokes and the besom of blights
And the Polar flashfire and the shooting star—
The world builds large on the bridge of nights
And the way is open and fresh and far!

"I hear the sweep of the rolling looms
As the globe is hurled through the shuttle-jaw
Forth and back from its infinite dooms;
The whelming surge of the ocean's maw
Avalanche crash and the glacier-booms,
River's rank wash and the yawning flaw,
And earthquake blast and the crater flumes,
The radium might of the crusted scraw
Of the earth, labor of countless blooms
The man-insect's work and polyp's law
Loss and decay in unheard-of tombs,
And ever the sun and wind and thaw
And a million shores of birthing spumes
Are wrought on a world that's young and raw.

"All in the making is; never done
Is the process of the old creation-let—
Escape or delay there is for none;
All worths and shames are in the melting-pot
And the vivid stuff of life is run
In shades protean and through molds white-hot.

"Blow down ye gales from your mountain heights
And let me drive on your breeding flights!"

Few people may be interested to know it, but there are so few ways of really conveying a relative sense of merit that we do not hesitate to say no book of verse this year has appealed to us as has Mr. Bailey's "Wind and Weather."

AN HONEST DOCTOR.

THE MEMOIRS OF A PHYSICIAN. By Vikenty Veressayev. Alfred A. Knopf, New York.

Dr. Veressayev has disclosed an inordinate conscientiousness; and though much of what he has to say of the practice of medicine is pessimistic, on the whole it is an intelligent and impressive defense, or rather exculpation, of the doctors' fumbling, their errors and often deadly experimentation.

Nothing is to be gained by the wise medicoes of this land sneering at the book and saying, "all that may be true in Russia." Dr. Veressayev has told much of the truth about the practice of medicine from Hippocrates to the last June graduate who barely squeezed through his "exams" and now parades his new bedside manner and pill bag.

Dr. Henry Pleasants, Jr., in his introduction, says, "Nearly every physician has at one time or other seen a patient succumb under a course of treatment that did positive harm."

Dr. Veressayev relates how doctors can learn only by experiments—and that many of these must do positive harm before physicians learn which treatments to avoid; that it is brutal and heartless to experiment in matters of life and death, but that it would be more brutal and more heartless for medicine to make no effort to better its curative potency by such experiments.

He finds there is something of general ignorance among the profession, and says a mathematician or historian, at any point in his career, has not lost touch with his subject and could take his scholastic degree at any moment. "If, however, you were to subject, after the lapse of five years, a fully-fledged doctor of medicine to the same ordeal, without previous warning, he would fail ignominiously. I make bold to assert that not a single eminent physician living would be able to pass his examination a second time without laborious preparation."

The most pessimistic chapter is on "Medicine; Natural Selection and the Survival of the Unfit," in which he speculates on "the specter of universal degeneration" because the whole science of medicine and surgery is bent toward the perpetuation of the weaklings in the race—whereas nature, left to her course, would soon kill off the unfit and leave only the sturdy and strong.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

As It Appeared.

Like many literary men, Samuel Hopkins Adams, whose latest novel, "The Unspeakable Perk," will be published soon, is not noted for legible penmanship. Not long ago he was asked to speak at a meeting near Boston, and the chairman of the programme committee wrote asking the subject of his address. Mr. Adams, whose typewriter at the time was out of order, wrote to the man in long hand that he would speak on "The Facts Behind the News." The man who was arranging the programme wrote back in great perplexity to ask Mr. Adams if he would please explain a little more about his curious subject, "The Face Behind the Nose."

Literary Patriotism Suggested.

Stephen Whitman, whose "Children of Hope" appeared recently, believes that American novelists ought to be American, in spite of the insistence of certain critics that they ought to be French or Russian or English with an Oxford accent. "I wish it could be driven into the heads of people who talk that way," Mr. Whitman said in a recent interview, "that the United States is an independent nation, with a civilization, manner, and mentality of its own. In spite of its youth, it has traditions of its own. American novelists should write American novels, and that's what most of them are trying to do. But they are doing it not with encouragement of those critics, but in spite of them. We need a literary declaration of independence. We ought to say that the United States separated itself from England some time ago, that it is no longer a British colony, and that therefore the misunderstood-baby, amorous-graduate type of novel, however great pleasure it provides in England, must not be considered the inevitable form for every work of fiction. The writer who does the most important work is not the writer who keeps most closely in touch with the literary fashions of Europe, but the writer who expresses the national mind."

Hagenbeck's Camel Brigade.

Among the facts brought out this week by Northcliffe's scout-writer in his "My Secret Service" (George H. Doran Company,) is a description of the elaborate preparations the Germans have been making for their possible invasion of Egypt. "I wish," writes the anonymous author, "I were able to persuade the public of the seriousness of the Egyptian situation. I am convinced that the Turks are serious in their intended invasion of Egypt and India and as the whole affair would be under German management it will be done thoroughly. Four thousand Germans have already been trained to ride camels at Hagenbeck's Menagerie in Hamburg. Aleppo is to be the starting point and I shall be greatly surprised if within the next few months something is not heard of Captain Djamil Pasha, who is in command there."

War Affecting Book Prices.

The John C. Winston Company has issued a statement in Trade Notes calling attention to the increased cost of paper, and pointing out that, "printing costs have also increased; on inks alone the advances run anywhere from 25 to 40 per cent. The same increases have also been made in the cost of binding materials, binders' boards have risen in price more than 50 per cent., different grades of cloth from 10 to 30 per cent., and corresponding advances have also been made in thread, glue, and in fact everything else that enters into the binding of a book.

"These figures can very easily be verified by consulting anyone who has a knowledge of costs on these materials, and it must therefore be apparent to everyone that present conditions can bring but one result, namely, an increase in the price of the finished product that will at least correspond with the actual increased cost of the raw materials."

The Blind to Read Essays.

A number of essays from the works of Miss Agnes Repplier are to be printed in raised type by the American Printing House for the Blind, at Louisville, Ky. About twelve essays have been selected, including such well-known titles as, "A Question of Politeness," "Children of Fiction," "Books That Hindered Me," "Fiction in the Pulpit" and "Pharisees of Fiction."

"The Antique Greek Dance."

"The Antique Greek Dance," by Maurice Emmanuel, has been translated by Harriet Jean Beauley (John Lane Company.) In order to obtain a copy of this authoritative work, written many years ago by an eminent French Doctor of Letters, the translator was obliged to search the old book shops of Paris. Mrs. Beauley believes that the world-wide reawakened interest in the dance renders imperative the publication of this remarkable book in a form and language that will make it available to students and artists in this country. A great part of the volume treats of the ballet steps and tempos, giving minute descriptions of them and from them reconstructing the Greek steps. There are over 600 drawings after painted and sculptured figures, by A. Collombar and the author.

Short Story Anthology.

The New York Sun calls Edward J. O'Brien a "hero," but does not say why. Is it because he had the courage to attempt the arduous task of reading and criticising 2200 short stories in a year? In a 365-day year this amounts to something like six stories a day, rather more than most of us would care to undertake. The result of Mr. O'Brien's short story Marathon is contained in a 400-page volume just published, "The Best Short Stories of 1915 and the Yearbook of the American Short Story" (Small, Maynard & Co.) Among the authors whose stories are estimated in this anthology are the Countess Barcynska, author of "The Little Mother Who Sits at Home;" Barry Benefield, of the Century Company; Berton Braley, the newly-wedded ubiquitous newspaper poet, who, by the way, is reputed to earn over $5000 a year by his poems alone; Guido Bruno, the man who lives in a garret in Greenwich Village, where he edits one of the most curious magazines peddled by Uncle Sam; Dorothy Canfield, author of "Hilltop Folks;" Lincoln Colcord, the poet, who is a running mate with Masefield in popularity at the moment; Padric Colum, who, in collaboration with Edward J. O'Brien, has edited the "Poems of the Irish Revolutionary Brotherhood;" Louis Dutton, author of "The Goddess Girl;" Mrs. Havelock Ellis, Larry Evans, of the New York Herald staff; John Galsworthy, Dana Gatlin, of the New York Sun; Montague Glass, Maxim Gorky, Cora Harris, James Huneker, Elizabeth Jordan, of Harper's; Ruth Kauffman, wife of Reginald Wright Kauffman; Ethel M. Kelley, Stephen Leacock, Joseph C. Lincoln, William J. Locke, Jack London, Don Marquis, of the New York Sun; William Hamilton Osborne, the lawyer-novelist; Eden Phillpotts, John Reed, George Van Schaick, Lincoln Steffens, Julian Street, Simeon Strunsky, Booth Tarkington, Freeman Tilden, Anna Strunsky Walling, Hugh Walpole, William Allen White, Brand Whitlock, our efficient Minister to Belgium; Margaret Widdemer, author of "The Rose Garden Husband;" and many others "too numerous to mention."

Bad as a Woman.

Novelists change their minds as frequently as anybody. Reginald Wright Kauffman has changed his—and made a good deal of trouble for publishers and booksellers while he was about it. All the plans had been laid for the publication of his novel, "The Silver Spoon," a narrative of New York life from 1850 to 1915. The cover had been made, the "dummy" manufactured, "the trade" canvassed, hundreds of orders placed and the writing of the story all but completed. Then Mr. Kauffman, returned from the European war, thought he saw here at home a vital American problem to be met and a terrible evil, such as he treated of in "The House of Bondage," to be brought to Americans' attention. He dropped "The Silver Spoon" for that. Deaf to all appeals, he set about writing "The Mark of The Beast," which the Macaulay Company, of New York, will shortly publish. It is more startling than ever "Bondage."

"The Magazine in America."

In "The Magazine in America" (Dodd, Mead & Co.) Prof. Tassin discusses the odd beginning of the magazine idea in this country; the curious form that the magazine assumed in the first half of the eighteenth century; the brilliant group of editors in the fifties; the numbers of now forgotten publications, which contain lists of famous American men of letters; the evolution of the magazine in the seventies and eighties; the rise of the popular magazines and the reasons; and the changes which are taking place today. His account is an informal history seeking merely to arrange our magazines and their tendencies in order, and to assemble such published opinions about both as the author in his reading has found interesting either in themselves or in their disagreement.

For the first time this running account of "The Magazine in America" has arranged the widely-scattered and submerged material which it presents, and sought to make a continuous picture of the intellectual and literary movements of our country as expressed in its periodicals for a good hundred and fifty years. The author has drawn his material from reminiscences of the many authors living and dead who have made our magazines possible, and has been interested rather in hearing what people have thought of themselves and of each other rather than in the absolute facts at the bottom of their opinions, and in this method he has achieved a clear idea as well as a more colorful one of the fundamental truth.

What's in a Name?

What makes one good book sell and another good book languish on the dealer's shelves? Hardly a meeting of authors, publishers or booksellers takes place without this question being discussed. Nearly all are agreed that the title plays an all-important part in the success of a book. The booksellers are the most pronounced in this opinion, although they agree that even the best title on a poor book will not carry it very far. If they are right about the importance of a good title on a good book, the experiment now being tried by Small, Maynard & Company of Boston should show interesting results. Instead of the author or themselves deciding on a title they have selected one of the most important of their fall books—a novel of New York life by Arthur Hodges—and have invited the booksellers to name it, offering the tempting bait of $100 for the title which a jury of the literary editors of three Boston newspapers will select from all those submitted.

OUR LATEST HOLIDAY.

Only two years ago our latest national holiday was born. A joint resolution of Congress, approved and signed by the President, designated the second Sunday in May to be known and to be celebrated as Mother's Day. Today it is a fixture in our national life. The fervor with which the people from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Alaska to the gulf have responded to the President's call is the most significant testimonial to American sentiment. It is an answer to Europe's indictment of American materialism.

When mother worship is so deeply rooted in the consciousness of American men and women as to blossom within two short years into a strong and beautiful flower in the stone canyons of our cities and in the quiet nooks of our countrysides, then there remains no room for the contention that dollar worship has sapped the strength of American idealism.

A timely and helpful book on the subject of this, our latest national holiday, is "Mothers' Day," compiled by Susan Tracy Rice, edited by Robert Haven Schauffler, and coming from the press of Moffat, Yard & Co. It is a comprehensive and interesting presentation of the history, origin, celebration, spirit and significance of mother worship as related in prose and verse. And it is helpful, too, giving a very large number of practical suggestions to churches, schools and social organizations for interesting their members in the observance of the day and for focussing individual sentiment in a centralized celebration.

—there are no early fall styles in this collection—though this woman to whom we showed these suits that are to be sold on Monday at $7.95 (a woman who is in a position to know style — quality and value — very well) was warranted in her incredulity—almost warranted in believing that the suit to which she referred, and some others, were early fall styles—the fashions are of such a standard—the materials and linings and colors are excellent—

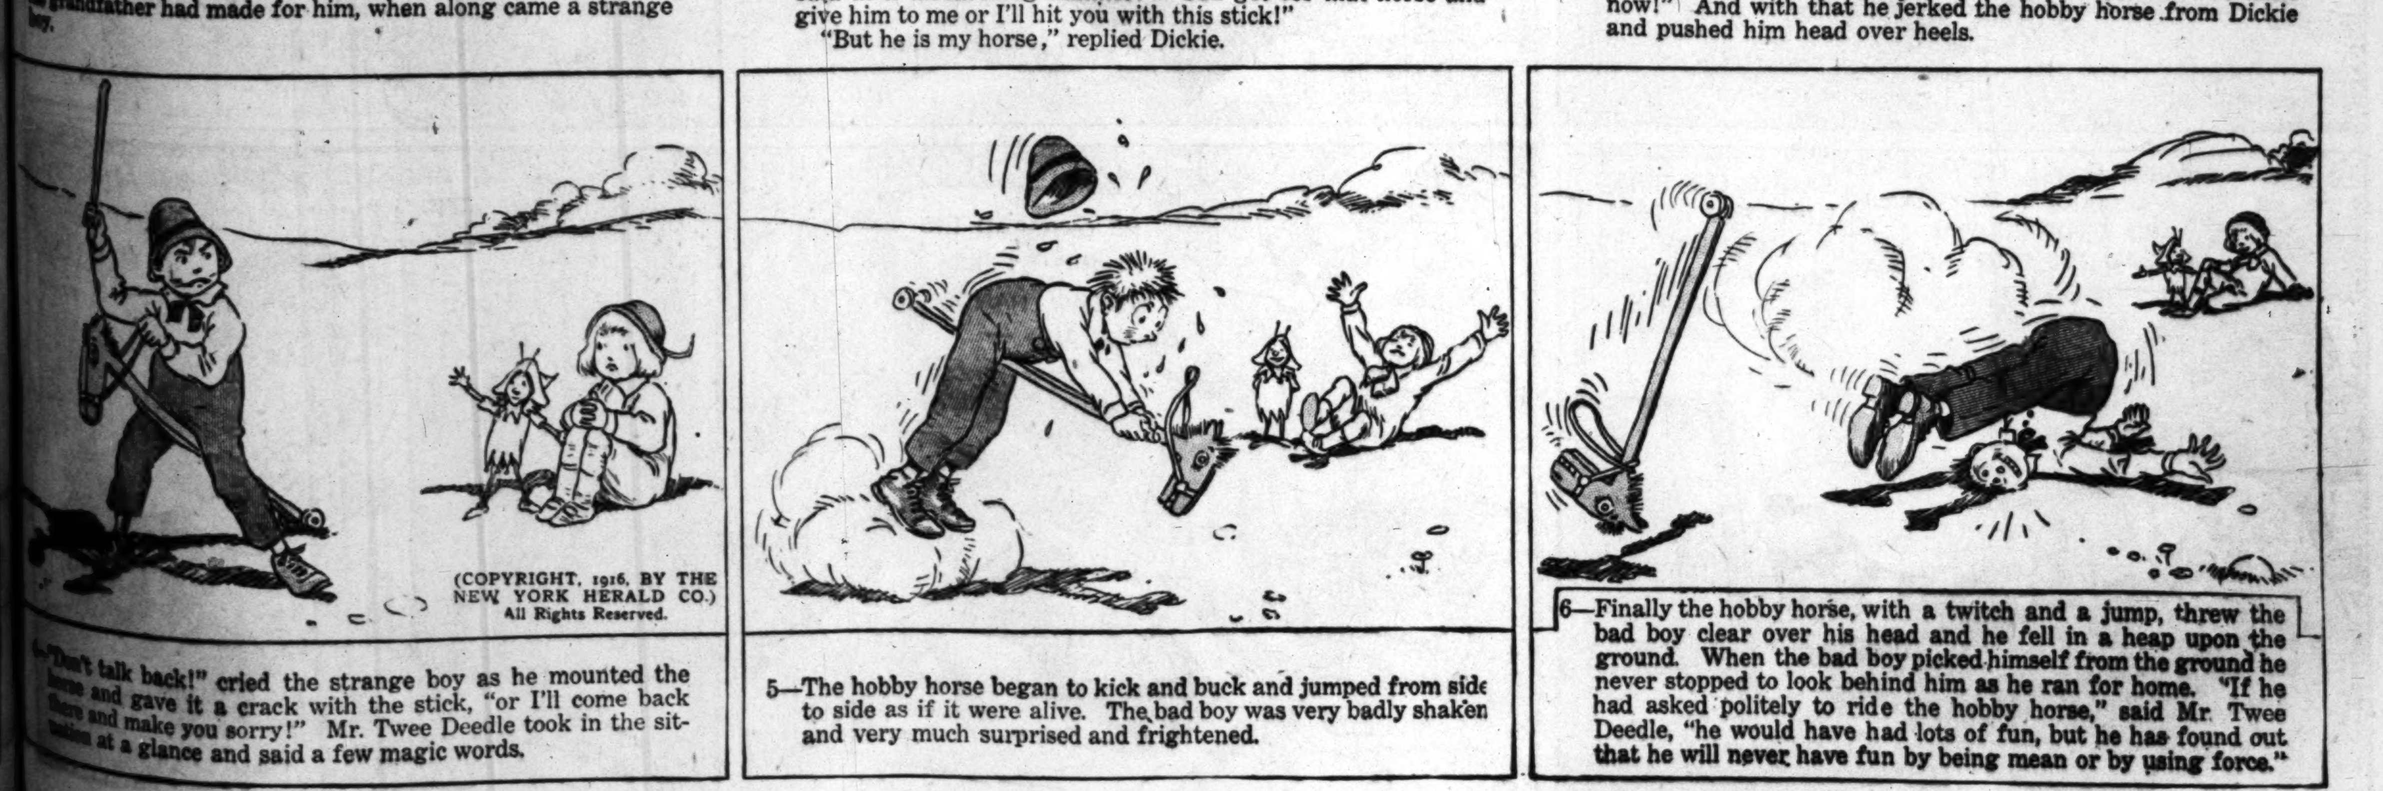
MR. TWEE DEEDLE.

1—One day Dickie was out in the field riding on the hobby horse his grandfather had made for him, when along came a strange boy.

2—He had a stick in his hand and, walking up close to Dickie, he said in a threatening manner:—"You get off that horse and give him to me or I'll hit you with this stick!"
"But he is my horse," replied Dickie.

3—"He may have been yours once," said the boy, "but he's mine now!" And with that he jerked the hobby horse from Dickie and pushed him head over heels.



(COPYRIGHT, 1916, BY THE NEW YORK HERALD CO.) All Rights Reserved.

4—"Don't talk back!" cried the strange boy as he mounted the horse and gave it a crack with the stick, "or I'll come back there and make you sorry!" Mr. Twee Deedle took in the situation at a glance and said a few magic words.

5—The hobby horse began to kick and buck and jumped from side to side as if it were alive. The bad boy was very badly shaken and very much surprised and frightened.

6—Finally the hobby horse, with a twitch and a jump, threw the bad boy clear over his head and he fell in a heap upon the ground. When the bad boy picked himself from the ground he never stopped to look behind him as he ran for home. "If he had asked politely to ride the hobby horse," said Mr. Twee Deedle, "he would have had lots of fun, but he has found out that he will never have fun by being mean or by using force."

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

WARM WEATHER PESTS.

THE time of the swarming of bugs is come and the track of the insect vermin is seen in the land! The same warmth which coaxes vegetation into vigorous efflorescence and promotes the growth of all other living things makes itself felt in the energies of the pests who render life burdensome to the housekeeper. If she relaxes her vigilance for even a little her home will be overrun and the only safe course is for her to be on the alert for the first signs of the many plagues that beset her possessions.

Principal among these, not only in their present power to pester, but also in the danger of infection and contamination, comes the domestic fly. I hope that most housekeepers know the danger of this creature sufficiently well to take steps to fight him on his earliest appearance. With the pioneer spring day there usually arrives a forerunner of the mighty host of flies, which, if not checked, will infest the entire house in which they once gain a foothold. Only one fly! It doesn't seem anything, but the women who have learned to dread flies descend upon each one they see with a "swatter" and sweep him out of existence. Sometimes more vigor than discretion is displayed in the onslaught.

"Mother, how can you?" I heard a son protest when his mother pounced down upon a wandering fly and dispatched him with a folded newspaper. "It makes me sick to have you go for flies like that when we are at the table!"

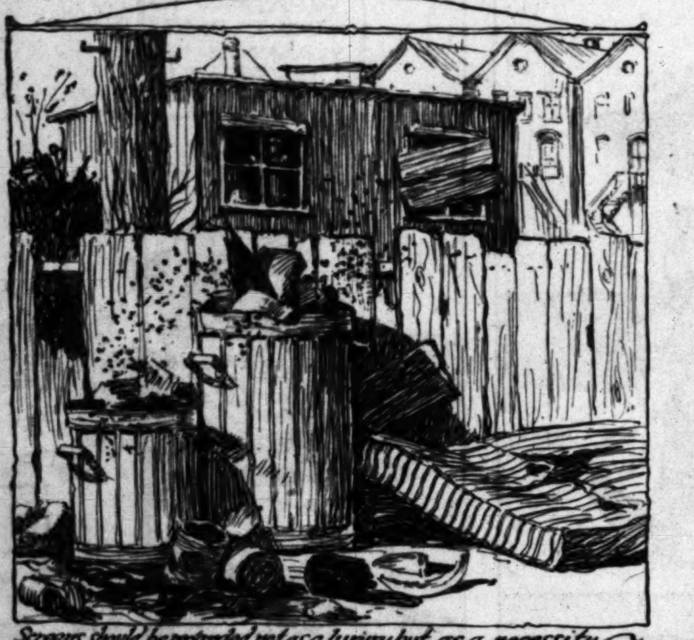
"It makes me a good deal more sick to have them live and come crawling over the food," retorted the parent briskly.

I don't like the slaughter of flies at the table any better than the young man in question, but I own I have even more sympathy with the point of view of his mother. When I reflect on where that fly may have alighted before he perches on my bread or bathes his feet in my tea I am moved with a fierce desire to put him out of the way right then and there. The sooner the first fly is slain the less likelihood there is of hordes of them during the rest of the season.

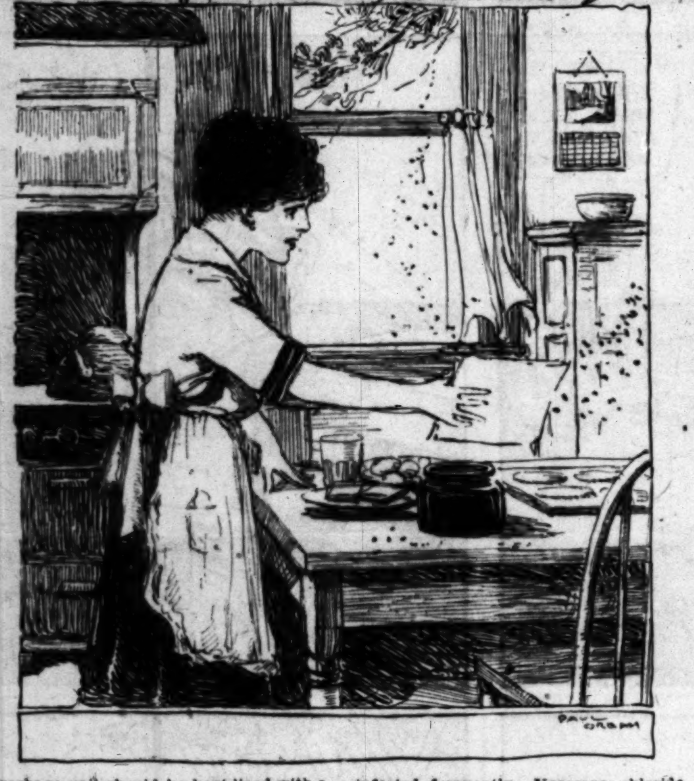
Screens should be regarded not as a luxury, but as a necessity. A wire safe or wire dish covers should be provided for the protection of food that is left out in the kitchen for even a few minutes. Measures of destruction as well as of prevention should be waged against the flies. Sticky flypaper should be spread where it will not be a risk to human beings—and never in the dining room during meals or anywhere else where people eat. The disgusting spectacle it presents is as de-appetizing as the live flies in all their power.

After the kitchen is shut up for the night, the doors and windows closed, insect powder should be scattered about from a blowgun, the air filled with it and the room left closed until early morning. Then, before the air is admitted, the housekeeper should sweep up the flies that will be found lying stupefied—but not dead—about the floor, and burn them before they revive. If this course is followed three or four times a week and the windows kept carefully screened between times, the number of flies will be reduced to a wonderful degree.

Guard against attracting the flies in any way. The garbage pail should be kept closely covered; no peelings or scraps of food should be scattered about; no sticky or dirty dishes left standing around. The garbage pail should be kept lined with a newspaper and this can be taken out every day with the refuse it contains and sent away or destroyed and the can scalded out with boiling water and washing soda. If necessary other disinfectants may be employed and when there are manure or refuse heaps which cannot be covered or guarded they should be disinfected frequently. Kerosene, chloride of lime, borax, or any of the good disinfectants now on the market may be used with a free hand; best of all, however, avoid such accumulations.



Screens should be regarded not as a luxury but as a necessity



Mosquitoes may also be fought, although, with all their unpleasant qualities, they are less of a menace to the health than flies, unless they belong to the deadly disease carrying variety. Even when harmless they are sufficiently disagreeable companions to encourage every effort to keep them out of the way. With them as with the flies, and, indeed, all other vermin prevention is worth a great deal more than curative treatment after they have arrived.

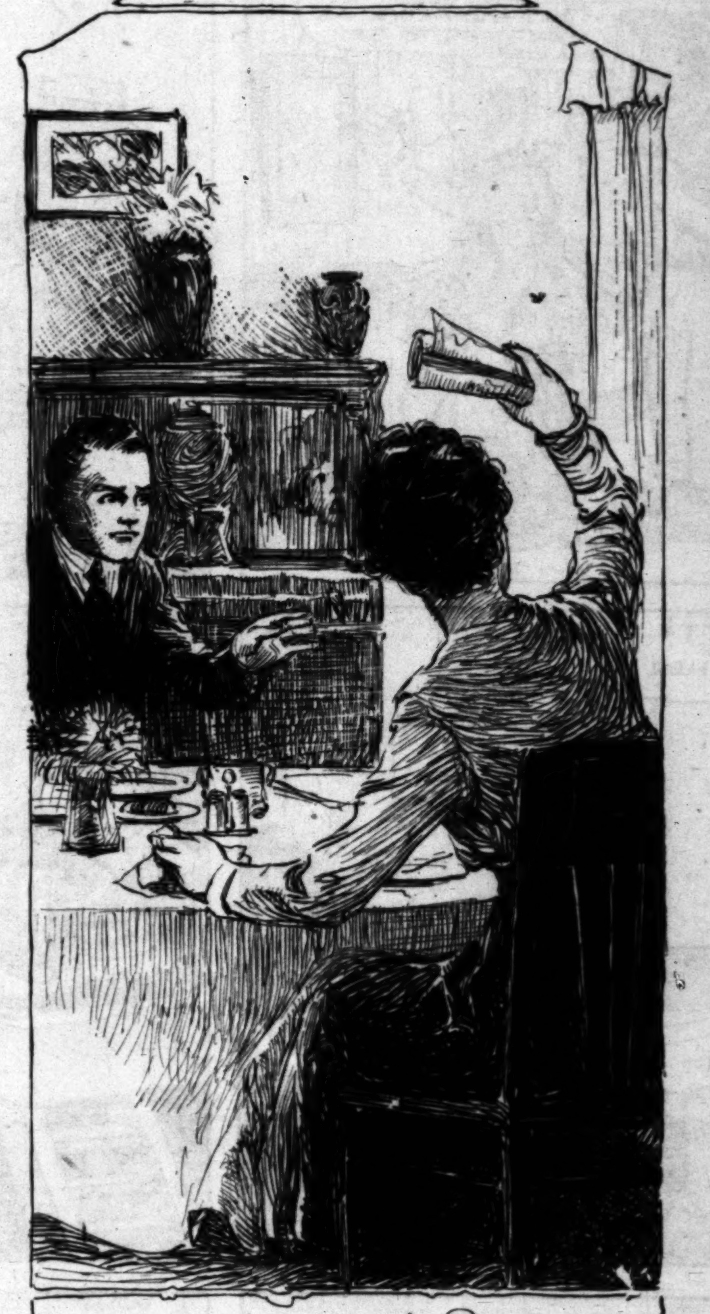
They breed in damp places, in cisterns, even in small uncovered vessels of water and these should not be permitted to exist. A stopped up roof gutter, a tin pan, or cup that has been filled by a shower, a barrel holding rain water, all furnish breeding places. The small vessels can be watched and emptied—or better still, not left where they will gather water—damp spots should have kerosene sprinkled on them. If these measures are taken faithfully the number of mosquitos will be perceptibly lessened. Small ponds and pools are also refuges for these plagues, who likewise breed in long grass. When these facts are thoroughly understood and a visitation of mosquitoes viewed as a result of man's carelessness or ignorance and not as a providential interposition, the comfort of the dwellers in rural districts will be greatly increased and land values will go up.

Probably the indoor plague most fought against at this season of the year, with the possible exception of the fly, is the moth. He is really one of the easiest to dispose of, for certain measures are bound to protect from his ravages. Closets should be cleaned out from top to bottom, the shelves wiped off with a cloth moistened in kerosene, or gasoline sprayed into the cracks and crevices, taking pains to do this without a light of any sort in the room. Garments must be taken out, hung on the line in the sun, and beaten to free them from dust and possible larvæ. They should be well aired before they are brought into the house and put up securely in papers or cotton cloth or cheesecloth wrappings.

Mothproof bags come for the purpose of preserving woolens, and tar paper is sold for the same purpose. Effective as either of these may be, the odor of tar and similar preparations is unpleasant to some people, and for them it is better to have a cedar chest or to cleanse the garments as already directed and stow them away with mothballs, camphor, cedar chips, or anything else of the sort which is least offensive to the family nostrils. The main point is the removal of dust and moth eggs by the beating and sunning and then securing the garments against the chance of the moths making their way through breaks in the paper or the cloth used in infolding them.

Coats and other garments which should not be crushed by rolling up tightly may be laid in boxes which are lined with paper, moth antidotes scattered between the folds of the clothing, the papers tucked in closely about them, the covers put on the boxes, and these then wrapped in paper. The only advantage of the cloth over the paper in wrapping articles which are not boxed is that the paper may possibly break or tear and thus make an opening to admit the moth.

Rugs may be brushed and sunned and sprinkled with gasoline, dipping a whisk broom in a bowl of gasoline and scattering the drops on the fabric. The rugs may then be rolled up and wrapped securely in heavy paper or in coarse cotton cloth, tying or pinning the folds so that there are no cracks or rifts in them.



"Mother, how can you?" I heard a son protest —

So many remedies for bedbugs have been given in the Corner of late that it seems as though no more were needed. I must emphasize here, as with regard to other vermin, the need of being constantly on the lookout for the traces of this most disgusting of creeping things. Beds must be taken down in the weather and again every few days the season if there is the least suspicion that bedbugs are about seems more of a melancholy truth just that one bug will populate an establishment if left unmolested.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

Magazines and Music Records.

"I HAVE twelve phonograph records that I will gladly give to M. S. I also have worlds of new and good magazines that V. C. may have or that can go to some one else if she has been supplied. I have a Third Reader which is old, but in excellent conditions, that Mrs. S. C. C. can have if it is what she wants. You may also offer the following through the Corner: A phonograph that is old but in good condition with the exception of a cracked sound box and a broken spring, both of which could be replaced for almost nothing; books and music. I cannot pay transportation on any of the things I have offered. Now, may I make a request? I want profit sharing coupons. If possible I want to get enough to obtain a trunk. I expect to go in training at a hospital at an early day and I will have to get so many new underclothes that I can ill afford to purchase a trunk. My father has recently failed in business, so I cannot look to him for things when I know that to give them to me he would have to deny himself and the rest of the family. My mother would like to exchange rooted double red geraniums for cuttings of begonias and coleuses.

"C. L. C."

The offer of the phonograph records, the magazines and the Third Reader could not be utilized for the benefit of the persons who had requested these articles because of the distance of their homes from that of C. L. C., who lives in the southwest. I print her statement of her possession of these things in the hope that some one nearer may wish them and be willing to send postage for them and for the other articles she offers. I shall hope to have letters from some one who can help her to what she wants and will also make the floral exchange her mother desires. Requests for addresses must be accompanied by a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Plea for Worthy Couple.

"I am much interested in a young couple who have moved to this place. Although I am rooming and am myself in poor circumstances I could not resist writing to you on their account. They are nice, honest, young people. The wife is sick and is under treatment by the doctor. The husband is a good, hard working man, but they have to pay all he earns to the doctor and for medicine. For a long time they have been trying to get enough together to get a horse and wagon, so that they can camp out. This would save their paying room rent. The doctor says the wife will have to leave here to get well. If they had an outfit they could travel in the fresh air. She does not know I am writing this letter or she would object, for they are the sort of people who would starve before they would ask for aid. I often carry in soup or some such little thing to her and she appreciates it very much. They are always wishing they had some traveling outfit, so that they could go back home. I have a nice little watch that I don't need, and I am going to trade it off for a cow for them to take along with them for their own fresh milk and butter. They are no relation whatever to me, but I feel sorry for them! If I only had the money myself I would be glad to help them with it. The initials of the wife are Mrs. A. P. J. Mrs. M. A. C."

If it seems absurd for me to ask for such a valuable thing as a horse and wagon I can only refer to the time before when I made a somewhat similar appeal and received a favorable response. What has happened before may happen again and I would be glad if it could occur on behalf of these young people in behalf of whom their neighbor pleads so convincingly.

Deaf and Poor.

"I wish to thank you for putting my letter in the paper and to tell you of some trouble I have had. A member of my family who is opposed to me went to the door when some women called to see me one day and would not let them in. They had some magazines in their hands and as I had asked for such things I am sure they were meant for me. I did not know of it until afterward, and I hope and pray they did not think it was I who came to the door and was so rude to them. I ask you to print this in the hope that they may see it and know how sorry I am. It is such a pleasure to me to get letters from the friends who have written to me, for my deafness interferes with all my enjoyment. I am too poor to pay for anything that would help my hearing. A woman who wrote to me spoke of an ear phone, but I have no money to pay for anything of that kind. Of course I know there are things to help the deaf if I could only afford to get them. Please pardon my writing so much. I don't see the Corner except when some one gives me a copy of the paper with it in, but it is well named the Helping Hand, for it helps so many unhappy people. I don't want you to print all of this, but I do want those women who came to me to know it was not my fault they did not get in.

"Mrs. A. M. H."

There is a good deal more of this letter and it tells a pitiful tale of unhappiness caused by a step-relative. It is not desirable to put more of it into print, but I could not refuse the appeal to publish the part of it relating to the women who the writer thought called on her. I am sure some one would like to send a letter of cheer to this woman, and I even hope something may be given her to help her defective hearing. Her lot is hard.

A Few Recipes.

"I noticed in the Helping Hand that a widow asked for some umbrella trees. I have the trees and also the seed of the real umbrella China berry tree. I will be glad to send the seed to her, and will also give her a little bush if she will pay the express on it. Kindly give me her address.

"I should also be glad to get the address of the woman who has the little velvet coat to give, and of the woman with the electric belt. I have a dear friend, who is an invalid, whom the belt might help, and three little girls—one is 2, one 5, and one 8 years old. I am sure one of them could wear the little coat, and I would pay postage on that and on the belt. I am sorry I have no silk scraps to give, but I can send a few magazines in return for the electric belt. I should be so glad to get these two articles, and also a baby buggy, if one has such a thing to give away.

"Here are a few recipes which may help the Cornerites. The first is for a one egg cake. It is especially fine if milk is used, but is good with water. One egg, one cup of milk or water, one cup of sugar, three level cups of flour, half a cup of butter or lard, two teaspoons of baking powder, any kind of flavoring you wish. Bake either in a loaf or in jelly cake tins. It is really a splendid cake.

"Here is a way to make a good floor or furniture oil: Take equal parts of turpentine, vinegar, and boiled linseed oil; shake together well and let it stand a few hours before using. When we use it on furniture we go over the woodwork with a rag dipped in it and then go over the furniture again with a dry cloth to polish. The mixture keeps the life in fine furniture and keeps hardwood floors looking like new. Use the polish sparingly; don't saturate the cloth with it.

"For a good stove polish grease a piece of woolen cloth well with mutton suet and then saturate it with turpentine; when the stove is cold go over it with this cloth, and you will have a stove that looks like new. I go over my stove with this every day and it looks as it did on the day I bought it.

"To flavor peaches when canning them, cut the rind off of an orange and drop it into the peaches when you are cooking them. When filling the cans put in some little pieces of the rind. It gives them a most delicious flavor which you could not obtain otherwise. I save all my orange peels and when dry I keep them in a jar with the lid on. When cooking I grate in the orange peel for flavoring; in custards it is excellent.

"The following biscuit pudding is good: Take about two or three cold biscuits, one cup of sugar and one egg. Grate in half a teaspoon of orange peel, add a pinch of salt. Make a thin batter, put the biscuits with it, first crumbing them and getting the mixture the right thinness by using either milk or water; the former is better. Grease a pan well and bake the pudding in it. To make a meat dressing out of cold bread use equal parts of corn muffins and biscuit with a little butter, a pinch of celery seed, a little chopped onion, black pepper, and salt. Moisten with sweet milk poured over the dressing just before taking it out of the pan. This is a fine dressing to use with meat of any kind.

"Mrs. C. M."

I hesitate about using this letter for two or three reasons. In the first place it has no signature except the initials given above, and I do not like to put a letter in print unless I have the name of the writer, not for publication, but so that I can be sure how to give the address in case it is requested. In the second place the writer does not supply the signature to the letter offering the belt or the coat, or that of the Cornerite asking for the umbrella trees, and it is therefore impossible for me to give her any information about these correspondents—even had a stamp been inclosed. Still, I hope the writers of the communications to which she refers may see the letter and reply to it, and that anything sent to her at the address and the initials she gives may reach her. I am glad to give the furniture and stove polish formulas she sends, and I have no doubt the cake for which she sends a recipe will be good, although I am not at all sure that the biscuit pudding will rise with no baking powder in it and only one egg. By the way, I would like to ask the Cornerite housekeepers what their opinion is as to blacking stoves. I have known some excellent managers who never do it, claiming that the blacking comes off on the bottom of kettle and saucepans and that these in turn make black rims on the table when they are set there after they have been on the stove. Instead of blacking the stove they wash it off with soap and water and then wipe it with a dry cloth and declare that the stove looks about as well treated by this method and is far cleaner.

English Everton Taffy.

"I have on file directions for English Everton taffy and I send them in the hope that this may be the recipe for English toffee requested by J. V. R.: Allow one pound of butter to one of sugar. Put the butter in the pan first and let it melt a little. Add the sugar and let the mixture boil until a little of it hardens when dropped in cold water. Various kinds of candy can be made with this foundation. You can add grated cocoanut, almonds, peanuts, or walnuts just before taking it off the fire. Another idea is to cut open figs and then pour over them the boiling mixture. The name of Everton taffy is given to it because it was made first at Everton, England. When properly made it is one of the most delicious of candies and wholesome. D. L. S."

Not only J. V. R. but any lover of good home made candy must be glad to get this recipe. We are grateful for it.

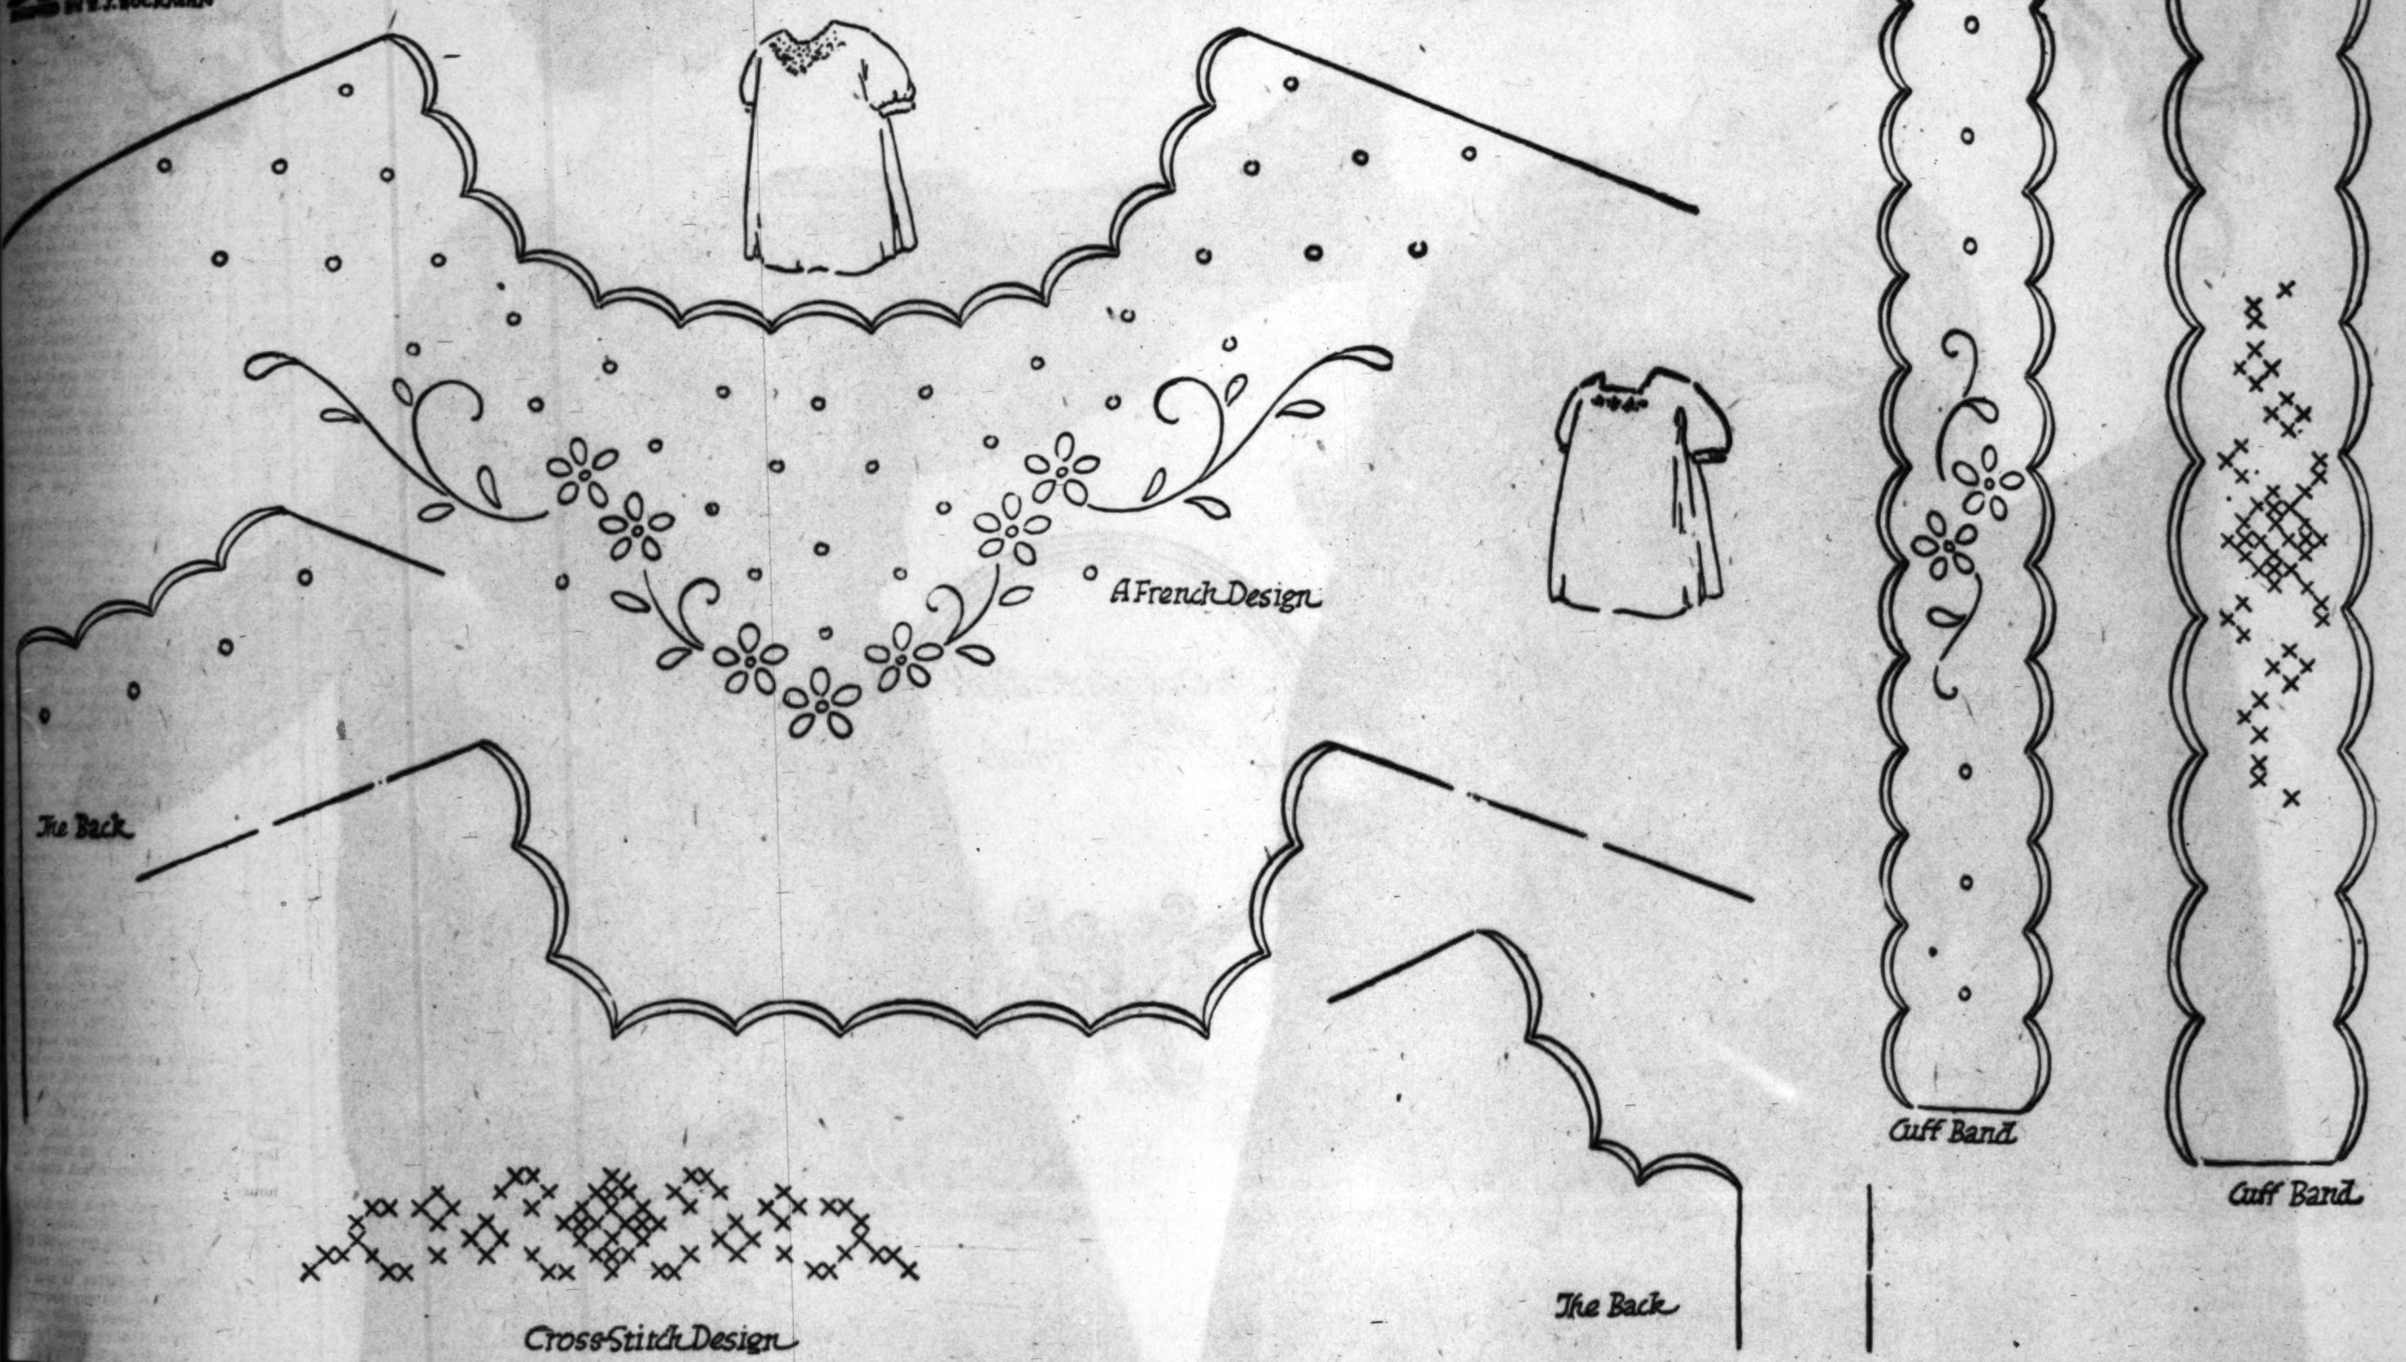
FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

BY ADELAIDE BYRD

DAINTY DESIGNS for BABY YOKES

DESIGNED BY E. J. BUCKMAN



MOTHERS are always grateful for designs made especially for their children. They will not fail to appreciate the choice of designs offered today for the yokes of little dresses. Both of them are so simple that it will not take a very great amount of time to embroider either one.

There are any number of materials on which each design can be stamped. Handkerchief linen, lawn, barred muslin, pongee or poplin are all suitable. Whichever fabric is chosen it is quite important that it be of a good quality. Handwork put on cheap material is labor lost.

The floral design can be embroidered in eyelets or in solid stitches. The former give a very lacy effect, but as there are many people who object to making eyelets, the satin stitches may have more appeal. The stems call for outline stitches. I think the little circles should be done in eyelet work whether the flowers are treated that way or not. Or, a quick treatment would be to cover each one with a stitch, this is similar to a French knot except that it is larger in size. A portion of the design has been provided for the narrow cuffband. When embroidering the scalloped portion of the neck and the bands, pad the space between the scallops and then place the buttonhole stitches very close together. It is advisable to use very fine thread for the purpose. Of course this will take longer time, but the work will be daintier.

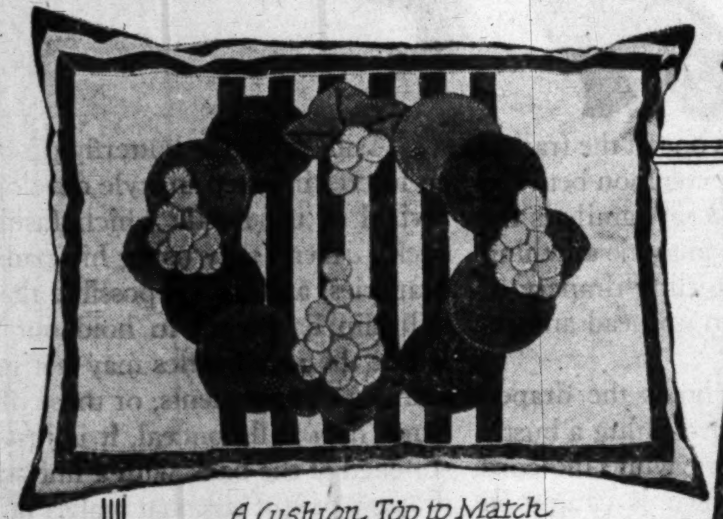
When joining the shoulder and underarm seams you can use the French-seam method, or you can join the different portions with seam beading. The latter is very effective and acts as a trimming as well as a joining.

The cross-stitch design is the simplest thing you could find. Think of the few minutes it will take to apply the stitches to the yoke and the cuffbands and at the same time picture how decorative the few stitches will be. This design is small enough to be traced without any trouble. If you do not care to trace it, however, I suggest that you purchase open-mesh canvas and baste it to the material. Thru the meshes the needle can be woven as you follow the design with your eyes. Do not let the needle pick up any threads as it passes thru the meshes, for when the work is finished each thread of the canvas is to be pulled away. You will find the task of pulling the threads made much easier if you will use a strawberry huller to pull the threads out of the canvas. The use of the little instrument will save time, strain on the eyes and fingers.

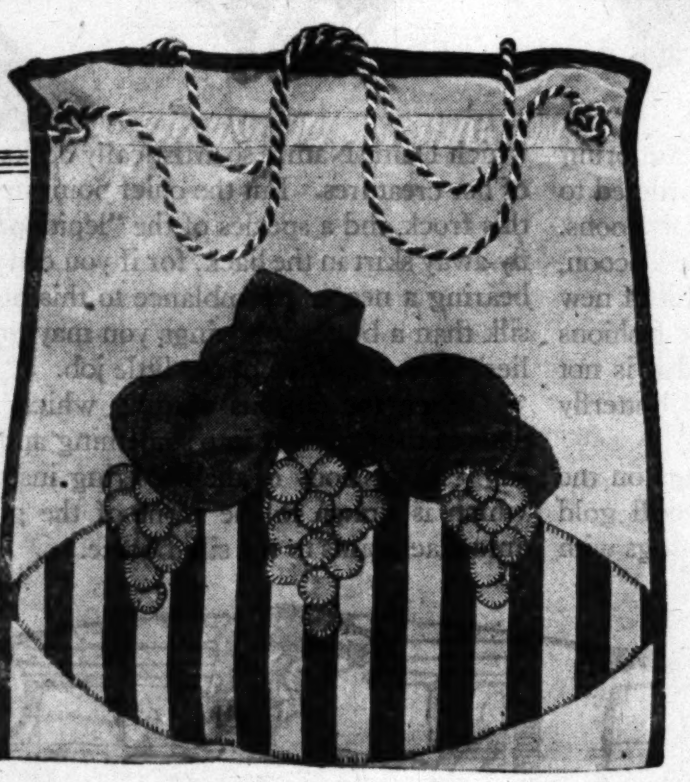
The suggestion for joining the seams of the first frock described can be carried out in this frock. The patterns are exactly the same. The only difference in the two dresses is in the cut of the neck line.

Many mothers who are pressed for time frequently buy plain dresses already made up and transfer embroidery patterns to them. This is a scheme worth remembering whether the frocks are for one's own children or for some one else's children.

FRUIT APPLIQUE ON A PORCH SET



A Cushion Top to Match



A Bag for the Sewing

THE vogue for bold effects in needlework has brought forth from the hands of designers many applique patterns calling for bright bits of cotton cloth and stitching that is meant to be seen. Colonial applique was the forerunner of this work, and now futurist effects come in for their share of the applique work. Moreover, there has been a revival of the use of fruit instead of flowers in needlework designs. This porch set, therefore, is a combination of these three tendencies, for it is a futurist conception of fruit appliqued to a heavy crash.

It is hardly possible that you have let the summer slip by this far without attempting to make or purchase a set of some kind, whether for garden, porch or beach. Even if you have a set on hand you will appreciate this set of bag and pillow, which can be used for porch or beach, the bag to hold the needlework and the cushion to add a bit of color to the porch swing, the porch rail or steps, or to tuck behind one's back for an afternoon nap on the sands.

The set is made of heavy crash, a plain white variety. The black stripes are all appliqued from a striped material. In the case of the bag, the black stripe is used as a binding for the side seam and the top edges. A casing is made and the black-and-white cord run thru this.

Now for the applique. You will see that a background motif of the black-and-white stripe is first machine stitched on and then blanket stitched with black cotton. This blanket stitching is the same as buttonholing, except that there is no attempt to bring it closely together and the stitches are noticeably large. On top of this are next imposed the lavender grape circles cut from a thin chambray.

The fruit is cut from a sateen, bright red and yellow for the apples and oranges. The leaves from a dark green sateen have their veins delineated with darker green cotton. The same cotton with French knots and a few solid stitches suggests stem ends in the colored fruit.

The pillow follows the same general directions of the bag. The band around the edge is cut from the striped material, using two black stripes and one white. It is merely stitched on after the striped panel, for the background has been stitched down the center of the pillow front. The fruit is imposed afterward. While the back of this pillow may be left perfectly plain, it is a good plan to continue the black-and-white striped material around the edge and down the center back in the panel. The applique should be omitted.

FOR THE BABY

YOU can't neglect the baby. You know you want everybody to admire her; therefore, it's your duty to put the most appropriate clothes on her. Her little frocks will be doubly attractive if you make them with embroidered yokes.

Cover and Bag Combined

THE girl who is practical in all her doings cannot think of going on her vacation without a cover to fit over the top of the clothes packed in her trunk. Maybe she has one, but if not, all the better, for a new one can be made which combines a cover and a bag. These two-in-one affairs always have strong appeal.

The cover is made on the square or oblong, according to the shape of the trunk. In a circle, at an even distance from the edges of the cover, little ivory rings should be attached. Thru these a narrow ribbon should be run, so that when the trunk has reached its destination the cover can be taken out, the ribbon pulled, with the result that one has a convenient laundry bag. The ivory rings are but one suggestion of a means to convert the cover into a bag. Crocheted slots can be used for the same purpose.

Let the bag be cheerful in color. Use silkoline, pongee or sateen for it.

Tips for Sewers

MAKE your piece bags of mosquito netting. You can find the location of any piece without dumping out the whole bag.

Keep your crochet needles in old fountain pen cases.

Two pasteboard tubes around which waxed paper is wrapped may be gummed together to form the foundation of a centerpiece roll.

A centerpiece which is stamped too close to the edge should have a bit of muslin basted to the edge so that it may be caught in the embroidery hoops.

Patching and darning can be done in a much more artistic and neater manner when embroidery hoops are used.

How to Transfer

HERE are suggestions for transferring the design before you to any material.

Perhaps the easiest way is the "window-pane" method. This is successful when the material is thin, like linen, batiste, etc. Pin the sheet of paper and the material together and hold them up against the glass of a window. With a sharp pencil draw on the material the design, which can be easily seen thru the goods. If one-half of the design only be given, unpin the paper and turn the other side to the fabric.

If you have carbon paper you should place the sheet between the fabric and the newspaper. The latter is on top. With a sharp pencil go over the outline of the design. The impression will be left in fine lines and will last until worked.

Substantial Lettering

HAS it occurred to you what attractive letters substantial tapes or braids of almost any kind will make on household linens? This is really as easy a way of marking as any. It is necessary, of course, first to mark off your letters; a script is usually best for braidwork, and the marking can be done with a stout card upon which the letter has been drawn and the outline perforated with pins. This card will last for many stampings with a soft lead pencil thru the perforations.

Cotton soutache, very fine rickrack, coronation, cotton rat-tail or any braid may be worked into these letters. The heavier braids, of course, should be reserved for turkish towels and heavier linen. If using a braid which has a decided edge, like rickrack, turn the braid in following the loops, so that the edge points outward from the letter always.

Bearers of Perfume

DO YOU know those little crystal pottery bulldogs, so-called "lucky dogs," which are provided with brilliants for eyes and are supposed to bring good luck to the owner as they repose as a weight on the desk? Well, you can use them for another purpose. Make a tiny bag of silk and fill it with a pungent sachet; tie it about the dog's neck, and you will have a most attractive custodian of the bit of elusive perfume for the dressing table or desk. In the latter case, the perfume should be less dainty and more of the sandalwood or oriental character.

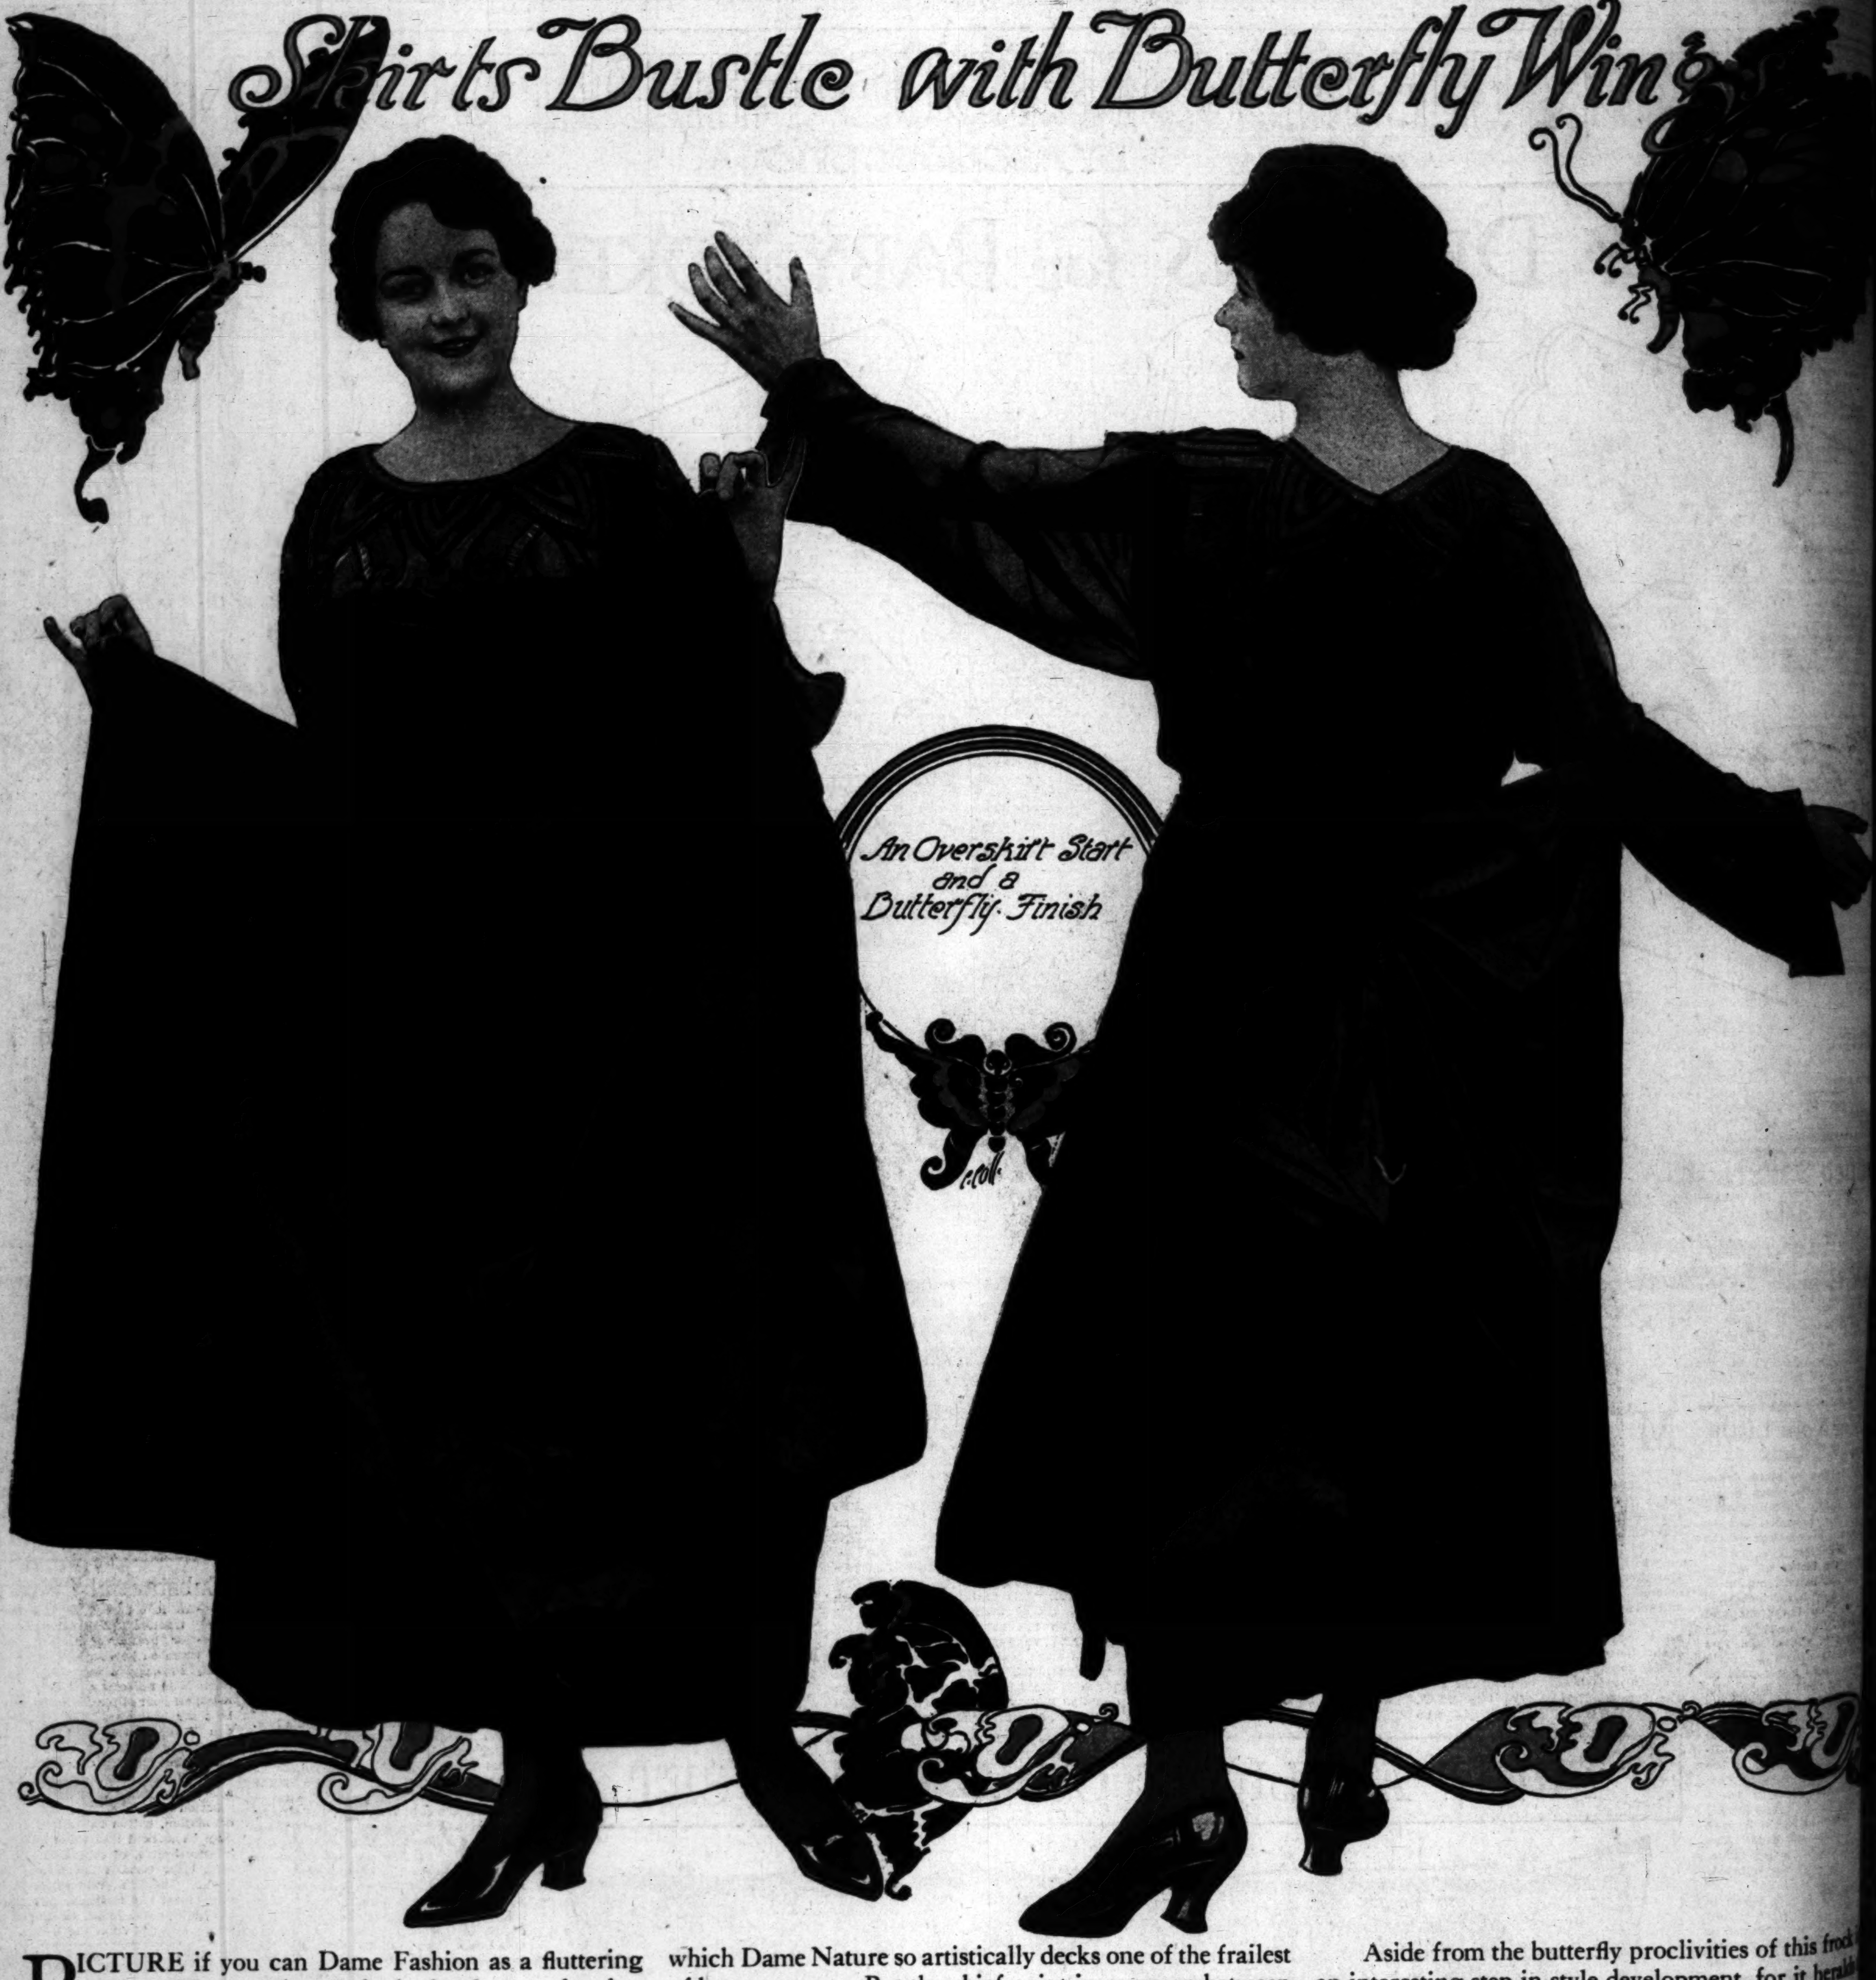
Elephants in the same solid crystal have huge burdens of silk-covered sachet on their backs. Both these animals make cunning favors for parties, and with cards attached may be used a place cards as well.

To Cap It All!

SUCH a pretty little hat it is, and just the thing for the baby girl when she begins to grow up. It is easy enough to make. It has a white pique crown, to which is attached a crown of white organdie over a facing of lace ruffle. The organdie crown is nothing but a very full length of material, scalloped in white on the edge and smocked at the top. When it is placed on the hat the smocking forms a pink band. At intervals, embroidery is scattered over the ruffle. It is very pretty, but consists of nothing but a circle of pink French knots about an inch and a half in diameter, inclosing a daisy with white petals and pink center.

A blue linen hat has a floppy brim and a full crown. The edge is scalloped in white, with an outline stitch in black at the top. The crown is slit at intervals to allow white ribbon to run thru. Both crown and brim are further adorned with white dots outlined in black.

Skirts Bustle with Butterfly Wing



An Overskirt Start and a Butterfly Finish

PICTURE if you can Dame Fashion as a fluttering fairy with a magic wand who has been ordered to watch a constantly increasing crop of cocoons. Each day the fairy touches with her wand one cocoon, which immediately bursts forth into a glorious bit of new style. Of so instantaneous an origin are most fashions today. With such a mythical situation in mind it is not surprising, now is it, to find a frock with real butterfly characteristics?

First of all, you have the butterfly markings on the blouse. They are put on with red silks and dull gold threads, but they do resemble the delicate patternings with which Dame Nature so artistically decks one of the frailest of her creatures. But the chief point in common between this frock and a species of the "lepidoptera" family is the fly-away skirt in the back, for if you can imagine anything bearing a nearer resemblance to this bustling drapery of silk than a butterfly's wings you may go up head and relieve Dame Fashion of her little job.

Even the curious cording which holds the draped ends of the overskirt into something approaching a bustle suggests the body of the fluttering insect, while the cord which is drawn to the front of the gown is caught in antennae points to the silk bodice.

Aside from the butterfly proclivities of this frock an interesting step in style development, for it herald revival of the bustle which fashion seers say will back. Aren't they using hip-pads to extend the wi draperies, and isn't it possible that the same arrang will slip backward to hold out back panniers of While the new bustles may not go as far as the wi strainer arrangements, or those of springs which th trunk may still conceal, it is just such frocks as th stiffened at the back with a fine hair braid or with drapery of stiff silk that makes fair woman stop an der, "Will the old bustles really come back?"

MRS. MASSON,

the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 322 SOUTH SPRING ST., by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell your name, but it WILL give you information of considerable greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry. WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

MINING—

TO MINE OWNERS—
Greene-Cananea properties are now rated at one hundred twenty-five million.
The underlying Cobre Grande Copper Company, with a capital of only half a million, was losing money on these properties until
I took charge of its affairs as its managing director and changed it to a wonderfully profitable corporation.
If your property is unprofitable—though meritorious—perhaps I can help you put it on a paying basis.
J. HENRY WOOD, 710 Grosse Bldg. Main 5518.

"IF THE ORE ONLY GOES DOWN," HOW MANY times have you heard this remark? You can find out what is at 500 feet in about three weeks by using our core drill, 5-in. dia. core, weighing 25 to 35 pounds to the foot; no diamonds or chilled shot used; average cost of work $1 per foot. Let us show you sample of work. Write for particulars.

ACT AND COMMENT.

assessments are justified, for special assessments have been worked to death in this city. Another thing is equally true, however, and that is that the type of obstructionist who protests against every improvement just to be protesting is entirely too numerous hereabouts. The opponents of the Broadway opening plan may not come under this classification, but there are others constantly bobbing up who do. Among the most familiar faces in the City Council chamber are certain men and women of this type, fossils who would keep Los Angeles in the backwoods class until the end of time if they were allowed to have their way.

For years thoughtful persons have been aware of the preposterousness of the traffic situation in Los Angeles. Broadway has until the recent completion of the North Broadway tunnel been closed at both ends and downtown Los Angeles is still shut off from direct access to the entire northwest part of the city by Bunker Hill. The whole question would have been sensibly settled years ago and Los Angles would have been infinitely better off but for the kinds of obstructionists referred to. Every time a plan has come up for solving the problem there have been bickerings and protests enough to delay it.

Downtown and Northwest Los Angeles are holding their breath while the Second-street tunnel advocates fight their battle with the blind ones in their own midst. The other day a legal petition bearing the names of the owners of a majority of the frontage on West First street and asking for the regrading and paving of that street from Lake Shore to Vermont was presented to the Council. Already the obstructionists are moving heaven and earth to make trouble. After everyone else has decided upon a width of ninety feet, they want all the way from sixty to eighty feet. Common sense would indicate that a lot 140 feet in depth on a wide, serviceable thoroughfare would be worth more than a lot 150 feet depth on an ordinary street, but these obstructionists cannot see it and fight to keep the extra ten feet, even knowing that they will receive damages in full compensation for it. The instance is typical of what has gone on in every public improvement ever undertaken in Los Angeles.

The older part of Los Angeles would do well to take a leaf from the experience of the people of the outer harbor section. San Pedro has in the past few years carried out a volume of regrading work that, taken with the work now under way and projected, greatly exceeds that which would be necessary for the permanent solution of all the troubles presented by Bunker Hill. All the people of San Pedro have wanted to know when starting in to cut down hills and dig cuts for new streets has been whether the work was needed. Everything they have done in this line has been on a big scale and the obstructionists have been few and far between. It seems almost inconceivable, but is a fact that what Los Angeles has been talking about doing for a decade and half San Pedro has actually done by gouging out the streets that now link all parts of its territory with its modern and growing downtown district.

BIG SUM FOR BUSINESS LOT.

Buyer of Los Angeles-street Site Plans to Erect a Large Building.

One of the largest real estate transactions of recent months is reported by the W. Ross Campbell Company, which has just sold for H. D. Lombard to an unnamed local investor the northeast corner of Eighth and Los Angeles streets. The consideration is given at $175,000.

The site has a frontage of 110 feet on Los Angeles and adjoins the Grayco Building on the south. It is stated on good authority that the owner contemplates the early erection of a fireproof building covering the entire corner and to be five or more stories in height.

The property is situated in a block in which are located many leading wholesale and manufacturing concerns putting out men's and women's apparel, dry goods, millinery, footwear, rugs and other wearing and furnishing products, and it is declared that a modern structure to be devoted to one or more of these lines will be constructed. The sale was handled for Mr. Lombard by Charles H. Wise of the sales and lease department of the Campbell company.

TO AUTO FIRM.

The McCoy Motor Supply Company, wholesalers of automobile accessories, and one of the largest concerns of its kind on the coast, has secured a ten-year lease on a two-story brick building to be erected at Nos. 1020 to 1024 South Los Angeles street. The structure will cover a ground area of 70x150 feet to an alley and will be faced with tile brick of a golden hue. The lease, which is declared to involve a total rental consideration of $60,000, was handled by Wilfred Simpson of the realty firm of Price & Simpson.

TAKING BIDS FOR HOSTELRY.

BIG SIXTH-STREET PROJECT TO START SOON.

Fine Improvement to be Built by Local Architect will be of Fireproof Construction and Ten Stories High—Money to Come from East.

Bids for the construction of the $250,000 hotel projected on West Sixth street by John M. Cooper, the first announcement of which was published exclusively in The Times of last Friday, are now being secured from various Los Angeles contractors. Mr. Cooper and W. Douglas Lee, his associate in architecture, put the finishing touches to the plans for the fine structure several days ago and yesterday distributed sets of blue prints and specifications to a dozen construction concerns. Excavations for the foundation work will, it is stated, be started within a month.

The hotel, as previously reported, will be ten stories high and of reinforced concrete construction, containing 261 rooms and 150 baths. It will follow Gothic lines and will be faced with ruffled brick and terra cotta. The lobby will be in mahogany, marble and tile and will also have a Gothic treatment. A beautiful feature will be the inner court, which will be carried out in a Moorish effect suggestive of the court of the famous Granada of Spain. The structure will occupy a ground area of 75x115 feet.

The site was purchased recently from S. E. Grettenberg for a reported consideration of $100,000, and is situated on the north side of Sixth street, ninety-two feet east of Flower. Edwin J. Bowes, Jr., president of the Bowes Realty Company, acted as agent in this deal. The Bowes Realty Company has also handled the financing of the building project, having arranged in the East to place a bond issue of $200,000 at 6 per cent., to be repaid in serial form and running for a term of ten years.

NEW RAMONA ACRES.

The Janss Investment Company reports sales of improved and unimproved home sites at New Ramona in the past few days to the following: To H. Cooley, half-acre and house, $1325; to W. Bonnell, acre, $1150; to G. E. Kincaid, house and half-acre, $1650, and to M. E. Miller, seven-room house and small plot, $2750. The streets in New Ramona Acres have just been regraded and oiled, and the immediate construction of four new three and four-room houses in the San Gabriel Valley subdivision is announced by the Janss Investment Company.

BEAN LAND SOLD.

The Patterson Ranch Company reports the sale of sixty acres of lima bean land in the Patterson Ranch tract near Oxnard to Ignatz Fredrich. The consideration is given at $30,000.

Sightly Location.

WILL OVERLOOK ARROYO SECO.

PASADENA MANSION TO HAVE FINE SETTING.

New Home of Crown City Woman will be Patterned After Early Chateau of France—Five-acre Site will be Elaboratly Laid Out by Owner.

One of the most notable of the fine residences under way at the present time in Pasadena is the beautiful place of Mrs. J. C. Daniels, work on which has just been started by a Crown City contractor. The house, which was planned by the architectural firm of Allison & Allison of this city, is to occupy a commanding site overlooking the Arroyo Seco at the intersection of Lester avenue, one of the main boulevards leading to Brookside Park.

The dwelling will be in a style of architecture slightly suggestive of the early minor chateaux of France, according to a description of the place given yesterday by its planners, and will be 144 feet in length by an average depth of thirty-six feet, being irregular in ground layout. The first story will contain a large living-room, dining-room, hall, den and morning-room, besides a kitchen, butler's pantry, and rooms for servants. On the second floor will be six bed-rooms and four baths, together with four rooms for servants.

Oak and mahogany will be used in the trim of the first story, paneled walls in the main rooms being a feature. Plaster ceiling cornices and tile mantels will also play an important part in the scheme of interior finishing.

The garage and gate lodge have been worked out as a single building. The automobile room will be underground, about ten feet below the level of the main yard, being reached by an incline from the house. There will be space for three machines. Above will be apartments for the chauffeur and caretaker.

The site comprises about five acres and is of irregular shape and contour, the whole lending to the landscaping possibilities, which are to be worked out with great care. The exterior of the buildings will be of white cement finish, the roofs being of green slate. The total investment, it is understood, will be in the neighborhood of $65,000.

IN ANTELOPE VALLEY.

Edwin J. Bowes, Jr., president of the Bowes Realty Company, reports the following sales in the Antelope Valley: Eighty acres near the Roosevelt schoolhouse, to Ole O. and John O. Eggen, both ranchers from Hemet, at $50 an acre; to E. H. Davis, a Chicago investor, 160 acres at Five Points, $8000; to William Petzold, sixty acres just east of Palmdale, $3000; to Harvey M. Stoner of Ontario, eighty acres one mile west of the Southern Pacific Railroad main line tracks and near the new county boulevard, $4000; to Miss Azile M. Stoner, eighty acres adjoining, $4300; to the Antelope Valley Farm Lands Company, of which Mr. Bowes is president, from P. L. Budinger, 160 acres east of the Southern Pacific Railroad, betwen Palmdale and Lancaster, $9600; to E. H. Davis, eighty acres one and one-half miles northeast of Palmdale, $4000. Mr. Bowes states that the transactions named were for cash and that the different buyers plan early improvement and planting operations.

10-ROOM BEAUTIFULLY PLANNED BUNGALOW.

LIVE OAK TREES—MANY FINE PALMS.

LARGE CORNER—SWEEPING LAWNS.

The beautiful corner lot, which is 117x200 feet, is wonderfully attractive with its sweeping lawns, grand live oak trees, expensive palms, its gardens of varied flowers, winding walks and sun dial.

The house, a 10-room bungalow, expresses harmony and beauty in every line. Across the front of the house is the large living room, library and den. These rooms, all opening together, are well adapted for entertaining. These main rooms, as well as the dining room, are all finished in hardwood. The four lovely bedrooms are in white enamel with exquisitely dainty paper hangings on the walls. The breakfast room is a little jewel, circular and practically all windows. Buffet in ivory, center light in silver and chintz.

The indirect lighting system, some of the fixtures being of Italian alabaster, gives a wonderfully beautiful effect at night. Three bathrooms, two of them tiled and fitted with the most expensive plumbing, pedestal bowls, massive roll tubs.

There is a large cement basement with a furnace and hot water heater. The entire house has been planned with the idea of quiet, dignified beauty, and, most of all, to be comfortable. The 2-story garage has room for two machines, and above are servants' quarters with bathroom, sink, built-in closets and all conveniences. Bowser underground gasoline tank.

Water plentiful at from 50 to 100 feet, where wells have been bored. Half the place in growing crops, balance being prepared for seed. I am too old to run this place. Would it interest you to step in to this fine producing property. That is grinding out dollars every day. On a cash deal part down, terms. In trade, an apartment building furnished, or row of cottages, furnished, modern, and in good condition. Or any good city or beach or something north, or what have you to offer that is located right and producing, and not incumbered more than 25 per cent.

KUMAGAE WALLOPS PECK, GRIFFIN FOR NET TITLE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

UTICA (N. Y.) July 15.—As the last point was scored this afternoon in the match of the New York singles championship on the grounds of the Yahnundasis Golf Club the national anthem of Japan sounded across the courts in honor of a swarthy son of Nippon, Ichiya Kumagae, who had vanquished Clarence K. Griffin, one of the representative California players, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-1, 8-6.

NO SURPRISE.

It was a notable achievement and though the result couldn't be called a surprise, the comparatively easy manner in which the little visitor from abroad gained the victory caused astonishment among many enthusiasts. It was only in the last set that the Pacific Coast star could force his oriental rival to a close contest, and even then, when Griffin was having better success with his strokes than in the first two sets, the indefatigable Kumagae had the reserve force to cut short the Californian's rally.

Griffin has twice before played Kumagae, and each time met with defeat; once in Manila in the championship tournament of the Far East, and again in Tokio in an exhibition contest. It was to be expected, therefore, that Griffin would be well acquainted with the elusive nature of Kumagae's game, but in today's match he was as much at sea as if the two had never been matched. The Californian had no plan of attack which was not an open book to the Japanese, and his defense was shattered to bits before his adversary's assault.

ON DEFENSIVE.

For three-quarters of the contest Griffin was on the defensive rather than assuming the aggressive. The Japanese, cool and steady, was driving deep and Griffin dared not try for his favorite position at the net. It was agreed by many of the experts present that the most promising way to attack the oriental was at the net, and there was some criticism of Griffin's position in the back court. In the first set he didn't try to run in, preferring to drive back from deep court. This was undoubtedly strategy, Griffin evidently hoping that the Japanese would try to play at the net, which would have been exhausting in the heat.

The dusky easterner didn't fall into the trap, and in the second set Griffin attempted some net play in sheer desperation. He went in close for smashing strokes several times, but effected few kills. Kumagae had neat passing strokes at his command and he shot them over as the Californian came to the net, the ball scooting down the lines for aces.

LAST STAND.

It was in the third set that Griffin had his greatest success at the net and it showed conclusively that the Japanese, fast court coverer though he is, is vulnerable once a player does reach the barrier. When Griffin was able to refrain from making errors he made many a point on a smashing stroke at the net, but getting to the coveted position was a trail of peril. The summaries:

Singles, finals—Kumagae defeated Griffin, 6-2, 6-1, 8-5.

Doubles, semi-finals—W. S. McEllroy and Charles S. Garland of Pittsburgh defeated Ichiya Kumagae and Haschisiro Mikami of Japan, 7-5, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3.

Clarence J. Griffin and Roland Roberts of the Pacific Coast defeated Francis I. Hunter of Cornell and James O'Neale of New York, 6-4, 10-8.

Doubles, finals—Griffin and Roberts defeated McEllroy and Garland, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2.

Homer Toberman Mexican Mission is Placed Under Direct Control of Trinity Auditorium and Successful Business Man Starts it off with Liberal Contribution.

Plans for refinancing and extending the work of the clinic, dispensary and religious and educational departments of the Homer Toberman Mexican Mission at No. 2027 East Seventh street were adopted by the Board of Governors when it met at the mission yesterday afternoon. The mission has been placed under the direct control of Trinity Auditorium by the General Board of Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Nashville, Tenn.

R. T. Burge, an experienced and successful business man and president of the Trinity Men's Brotherhood, is chairman of the Mission Board of Governors. He spent a number of years in Mexico, where he owns a plantation, he speaks Spanish and is thoroughly familiar with the characteristics of the Mexican peiple. He began his administration at the mission by making a liberal contribution of money to the work.

The heads of the different departments at Trinity Auditorium were invited to meet the board yesterday afternoon. The visitors were entertained at luncheon at the mission previous to the business meeting. Among the Trinity folk who met with the board were Dr. C. C. Selecman, the pastor; R. C. Mitchell, resident of the board of stewards; Dr. C. C. Stephenson, president of the Trinity Building Company; Verne Dyson, superintendent of the Sunday-school; Rev. L. J. Millikan, director of religious education; Mrs. Q. J. Rowley, president of the Women's Missionary Society, and Mrs. C. A. Beck, president of the Wesley Women's Bible class.

"I am happy to announce that our work here is in encouraging condition," Mr. Burge said. "We are prepared now to take care of at least 500 patients a month. Ten physicians are here this afternoon. Our finances are in good condition. This fall we will remodel the building and paint it. Here we have a fine little bit of missionary work close to home."

Miss Ellen Alfter, a graduate of the Scarritt Bible and Training School of Kansas City, is the resident deaconess in charge of the mission. She has the co-operation of Miss Emma Burton, Trinity deaconess, and other members of the working staff at Trinity.

AIRLESS TIRE IS A FAVORITE.

The exceptionally good service received from Dayton pneumatic tires has been the big factor in the wide distribution of this tire over the entire State by the B. F. Wade Tire and Rubber Company, who have the State agency for this tire, as well as the Dayton airless tire.

"Our wholesale business has been increasing very rapidly during the past few months," says Mr. Wade, "and we have had calls from many different parts of the State about the tire, inquiring into the details of securing the agency for this tire in their section.

"We have shipped more tires during the past two months to out-of-town dealers than went out in several months previous and we now have several large orders which will go out just as quickly as our shipping department can handle them."

TENNESSEE COPPER FALLS THREE POINTS.

Brief Session of the New York Stock Exchange a Hollow and Superficial Affair — Among the High-priced Specialties Bethlehem Steel is Conspicuous for its Gain of Nine and a Half Points.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 15.—Today's brief session was hollow and superficial in character.

Tennessee Copper fell 3 points to lowest price of recent years, be[illegible] supporting orders and short [illegible] effected complete recovery. [illegible] and Motors, with other [illegible] and minor specialties re[illegible] slightly but these, too, came [illegible] later, losses proving only [illegible] or nominal.

Among the high-priced specialties [illegible] Steel was conspicuous for [illegible] of 9½ points and Sears-Roe[illegible] was unusually active on its rise [illegible]. Rails were steady to [illegible] and United States Steel tra[illegible] a narrow radius with some [illegible] in United States Industrial [illegible].

Total sales of stocks amounted to [illegible] shares.

The bank statement bore out its [illegible] of a large cash gain.

In the main the general trade sit[illegible] was regarded as more whole[illegible].

Gold to the amount of $2,000,000 [illegible] received from Canada, making [illegible] fourth installment of the week. [illegible] was virtually no market for [illegible] exchange, rates to leading [illegible] showing no change.

Trading in bonds was restricted to [illegible] special issues at quotations un[illegible] from the preceding day. [illegible] sales, par value, $1,015,000. United States bonds were un[illegible] on call during the week.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL.

Cumulative evidence that the finan[illegible] markets of this country are re[illegible] in anticipation of peace [illegible] was presented this week in further liquidation of war issues and an increased foreign inquiry for various finished products to be used in the reconstruction of Europe's devastated areas. It was regarded as significant that few if any war orders for 1917 are being awarded. There were persistent reports that other plants in addition to those recently named were preparing to dismantle on a peace basis.

Arrival of the German submarine merchantman occasioned considerable discussion. The vessel's cargo of chemicals and dyestuffs suggested possibilities pointed to the rehabilitations of Teutonic credits in this market. Completion of the details connected with the new French loan of $100,000,000 was followed by a fair anticipatory demand, but the old Anglo-English were steadily offered, occasionally in large individual lots.

Imports of British gold from Canada were resumed, bringing the total inflow of the precious metal on the present movement to approximately $170,000,000. During the same period further consignments of British-owned American securities were received from London, presumably in connection with mobilization plans of the British treasury.

Prices of copper and related metals are undergoing further downward revision abroad with consequent depreciation of quoted values of stocks.

IVANHOE ADVANCES ON LOCAL EXCHANGE.

BETTER PRICES PAID FOR THE MINING FAVORITE.

Tom Reed and Big Jim Show Improvement—Gilt Edge Weaker. Union and Amalgamated Divide Activity in Oil List—Olinda Passes Dividend.

Ivanhoe was the big feature at Saturday morning's session of the Los Angeles Stock Exchange. Opening a trifle lower at 4½, a rush of buying orders, occasioned, no doubt, by a feeling on the part of the public that the bottom had been reached in the late downward movement, advanced the quotation for the stock with each sale to a high of 6, closing ¼ of a point below that figure. A total of over 20,000 shares changed hands and from the showing made yesterday it looks like a turn for the better was due in the mining market. Tom Reed was also in good demand and quite a large quantity was transferred at slightly stronger prices. Scattered sales were recorded in United Eastern at 3.40 and Arizona Tom Reed at 20, but Gilt Edge slipped down to 1¼, and there was considerable stock sold at that price. Big Jim sold at 70 and brokers look for an upward movement in this stock as well as in Ivanhoe. In the oil list both Union and Amalgamated were active, the former security at 78.50 and the latter at 87.00. Ten shares of Home Telephone common brought 40.00 and closing bids for the stock were a full point higher than the day before. Los Angeles Investment was quiet and but 478 shares sold during the meeting.

The Olinda Land Company has notified the local exchange that at a recent meeting of the board of directors of the company it was decided to pass payment of the regular quarterly dividend on July 25.

COMMERCIAL.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

With the addition yesterday of 50 cents a box to all grades of lemons the citrus fruit is selling today for practically twice what it did on the same day last year. Thus the present price of packed lemons is $3.75 to $4 a box, whereas on July 16, 1915, dealers were willing to accept $2.25. In the case of loose and juice lemons the price today is exactly double that of the previous year. These higher values are due primarily to a very heavy demand which has been in force for the past two months. The East is calling on California for all the lemons that she can ship, and as the demand in this State is exceptionally strong at present, the supply here is rapidly dwindling. In an effort to stock up, eastern dealers are bidding higher and higher for the California product and for this reason the price has been advanced sharply by holders. The unusually heavy demand for lemons from the East is attributed to the fact that the Florida crop of the same fruit was rather small this season and Italy is so busy with her own troubles abroad that shipments from that country have been curtailed materially. Again, the excessively hot weather that is being experienced at present throughout almost all parts of the East has greatly stimulated the demand for lemons.

Nectarines were cut again yesterday in an attempt on the part of the leading wholesalers to create a demand for the fruit, which has been lacking so far this season. Other fruit prices were unchanged but peaches give indications of going lower. In the vegetable list new crop onions were reduced somewhat, brown onions now selling for $2.50 a sack and white onions for $2.75. Potatoes were again boosted and the trade is now forced to pay $2 to $2.15 a sack for locals and $2.25 to $2.35 for northern stock. This advance was unexpected and caused considerable comment on the market.

There was no session of the Produce Exchange Saturday and as a result prices for the main staples remained the same as the day before. Receipts were 893 cases of eggs, 51,800 pounds of butter, 3650 pounds of cheese, 28 sacks of potatoes, 830 sacks of onions, 34 sacks of beans, 59 sacks of sweet potatoes, 755 boxes of apples, 10 crates of casabas, 16 crates of cantaloupes, 1 car of watermelons, 374 boxes of grapes, 95 boxes of pears and 960 boxes of peaches.

There Are Four Oatman Stocks
on which we have late first hand information that are now selling at such remarkably low figures—that the word "Bargain" does not justly convey their unusual speculative values at present unquestioned bottom prices. The old adage—"Well bought, half sold" is surely apropos of present market opportunities. Purchasers now are almost certain of profits on some of the better Oatmans. We should like to offer our suggestions. Latest News Letter may be had on request.

RAPID BUYING IN THE WHEAT PIT.

REPORTS OF BLACK RUST DAMAGE THE CAUSE OF IT.

Sharp Advances are Scored in the Official Quotations of the Cereal and the Finish was Strong at Gains of from Three and an Eighth to Three and One-quarter.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, July 15.—Likelihood of extensive damage from black rust led to aggressive buying today in the wheat market here. As a result sharp advances were scored and the finish was strong at gains of 3⅛ to 3¼, with July 1.11⅝ and September 1.13⅛. Corn closed 1⅛ to 2⅛@2⅝ up and oats up 1 to 1⅛. In provisions the outcome ranged from 2½ decline to a rise of 5. Wheat advanced to the highest quotations of the week and held nearly all the gain. Corn prices were lifted by work that the crop was firing in Illinois, Missouri and Kansas. Temperatures above 100 were reported in the Southwest and there was serious complaint of the absence of rain. In oats, as in other cereals, crop damage reports acted as a handicap on the bears. Provisions rallied on account of the strength of grain. At first the market had been depressed owing to a decline in the value of hogs.

OUTSIDE BUYING MORE SPIRITED.

SHORT COVERINGS ALSO HELP ADVANCE PRICES.

Improved Demand for the Staple is Said to Spring from the News of Torrential Rains in Some Sections of the Eastern Belt and Advices that Storm was Severe.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 15.—Outside buying today was a little more spirited, and combined with a moderate amount of short covering in the absence of significant selling, advanced prices slightly. The improved demand was induced by reports of torrential rains in some sections of the eastern belt, and advices from South Carolina that the wind and rain storm in some sections of that State is the worst in many years and still is raging. Some parts of Texas received beneficial rains but this was overshadowed by the unfavorable climatic conditions existing in the region east of the Mississippi River. The trade is beginning to realize that this latter territory is in immediate need of more good weather, and a long spell of the same is necessary to overcome the damage already inflicted. There are too many bad spots in the eastern and central sections and they cannot be much longer ignored. Southern holders show no disposition to offer large amounts of their holdings at concessions and the spot situation continues one of strength.

Liverpool cables due ⅛ higher to unchanged, came 2 lower than due on July, 1 lower on October and January. There was little demand for spot cotton; prices quiet; sales, 3000 bales; speculation and export, 300 bales; middlings, 8.03; futures opened quiet and closed so.

New York spot quiet; middling uplands, 12.95. No sales.

STARVATION OF CIVILIANS.

Not a New Horror of War, but One of the Usual Results.

[Washington Star:] To starve or attempt to starve civilian populations in time of war is not one of the new horrors of war. The noncombatants who have suffered death from starvation because of such military operations as blockade and siege are legion. The victims have been of both sexes and of all ages.

In the German reply to the American note threatening severance of diplomatic relations if the destruction of merchant ships without visit and search were persisted in, was this paragraph:

"As matters stand, the German government cannot but reiterate regret that the sentiments of humanity which the government of the United States extends with such fervor to the unhappy victims of submarine warfare are not extended with the same warmth of feeling to many millions of women and children who, according to the avowed intention of the British government, shall be starved, and who, by sufferings, shall force the victorious armies of the central powers into ignominious capitulation."

The rigors of the blockade of the South by the Northern States during the American Civil War constitute one of the terrible but interesting chapters of that great conflict. Medical stores were contraband, and, of course, these stores included quinine.

The horrors of the siege of Paris are among the facts of history. It is written that "in 1870 the average weekly death rate in Paris was below 800. During the last week of the siege—that is, during the fourth week of January, 1871—the number of deaths in the civilian population rose to nearly 5000. This means that more than 4000 people in one week died, if not actually from starvation, at least because, weakened as they were by insufficient nourishment, they had become unable to withstand the onslaught of disease."

One strong reminder of the mighty tragedy of the siege of Paris is that it is difficult, if not impossible, to find in France any person that was born in Paris during that siege—that is, between September 17, 1870, and January 27, 1871. And it is said that the reason for this is that the babies born during that period came to life so weak and received such poor sustenance that nearly every one of them died in infancy.

LAWYERS' BIG FEES.

A Hundred Thousand Dollars Allowed a Philadelphian.

[Philadelphia Ledger:] This is indeed a big age. A few days ago it was announced that a fee of $100,000 has been allowed to A. H. Wintersteen, one of Philadelphia's ablest lawyers. That was for his services to the Harrah estate.

Other lawyers tell me that, large as that fee appears to a layman, it is quite moderate considering the value of the estate involved.

Nearly a century ago Daniel Webster made upward of $75,000 out of one case which ran over a number of years. For his day Webster was a heavy charger.

Alexander Hamilton was surely one of New York's leading lawyers during the last half-dozen years of his life, but he never made more than $14,000 in a year, and his average was about $12,000.

I had the word of the late W. U. Hensel of Lancaster for it that James Buchanan, after practicing a few years in that small town—as it was in his day—earned $8000 a year.

Thomas Jefferson himself put it on record that he earned about $3000 a year shortly after being admitted to the bar.

Tradition has it that Roscoe Conkling was the first American lawyer to make $100,000 in a year. He did that after his quarrel with the President and his retirement from the United States Senate. Unless reports are all awry a Philadelphia lawyer has made several times that much in a year.

A century ago men apparently did not expect a great monetary reward for even valuable services.

Bushrod Washington engaged Chief Justice John Marshall to write the life of his uncle, George Washington. Two decades after that biography appeared Bushrod Washington, then a Justice of the United States Supreme Court, made a formal statement to this effect:

He and Chief Justice Marshall together had received $11,000 for that book, and they divided the money equally.

Changing a Capital's Name.

[London Chronicle:] If the suggestion is adopted of naming Australia's new capital Anzac instead of Canberra it will not be the first time that an empire's capital has changed names. St. Petersburg to Petrograd was merely a changed form of the same word, but Tokio, Japan's capital, has been known by that name for less than fifty years. It was originally Yeddo (meaning estuary gate) but when the Mikado took up his residence there in 1868 he rechristened the town Tokio, meaning eastern capital, distinguishing it from Saikyo (meaning western capital) which town it practically superseded.

SILENTLY WILL BE ELOQUENT.

Moving Picture Play to Tell of Clara Barton's Life.

Man Chosen to Write Scenario is in Los Angeles.

Film will be Produced in Aid of Memorial Fund.

Charles S. Young of No. 1782 West Twenty-fourth street, former State Superintendent of Schools of Nevada, has been chosen by the Clara Barton Memorial Association to write a scenario of the life of the great Civil War nurse and first president of the American Red Cross Association. F. W. Hornby, who will be director of the play, is in Los Angeles consulting with Mr. Young.

Mr. Young was asked to write the scenario because he was a great friend of the famous American woman and has much interesting material concerning her useful life. The career of this great woman, so full of incident, self-denial and courage, and glorious in results, will, it is believed by the Clara Barton Memorial Association, be woven into a moving-picture play by Mr. Young which will interest thousands of Americans.

By means of this moving picture it is hoped to swell the fund which is being raised to establish a memorial to Clara Barton at Washington, D. C. Mr. Young and Director Hornby expect to leave for Washington in a few days.

The Clara Barton Memorial Association, of which Mrs. John A. Logan is president, is conducting an active campaign to raise not less than $200,000. It is proposed to devote one-half of this sum for a memorial to Miss Barton, in marble or bronze, to be set up at the national capital. The other half will be used to establish a fund from which each year a prize will be award to the American woman doing the greatest work for humanity during the year. This will be known as the Clara Barton prize.

An appeal has been made to the people of the United States for subscriptions and a number of other plans are being made to assist in raising the fund. The most interesting of these is that which provides for the moving-picture play for which Mr. Young will write the scenario. It will be a labor of love with him, for besides enjoying the personal friendship of the heroic woman, he has had placed at his disposal letters and other documents giving an insight into her life and work otherwise unobtainable.

INCOMPARABLE SERVICES.

Clara Barton rendered incomparable services as a humanitarian, not only to America, but to the world. Emperors, kings and princes delighted to honor her, and the Clara Barton Memorial Association believes that the people of her own land will gladly avail themselves of the opportunity which is now theirs to share in raising a lasting memorial.

The Times will receive subscriptions toward the national fund and will scrupulously account for all money sent in its care. This money will be forwarded either to the president of the association, Mrs. John A. Logan, No. 2523 Thirteenth street, N.W., Washington, D. C., or to the treasurer, Hon. John Joy Edson, Loan and Trust Building, Washington, D. C. Those who prefer to do so may send their subscriptions direct to Washington, while those who wish to subscribe through The Times may clip and fill out the following form and send it, with their subscription, to this office:

THOSE MILLION VOLUNTEERS.

Much More Than Men is Necessary for Preparedness.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat:] Mr. Taft continues to poke fun at Mr. Bryan's assertion that in case of a real war a million volunteers would respond to a call for service, between sunset and sunrise. The statement is slightly exaggerated as to time, but it is true in effect. Over a million men volunteered for the Spanish-American War, although only 225,000 were used. There were 100,000 former Union and Confederate soldiers who offered their services. There were 25,000 applicants for the 1000 general officers the President had to commission. Yet 77 per cent. of the applicants for enlistment in the expanded regular army had to be rejected. The regular army was doubled in membership, but one-fifth of the officers had to be transferred to volunteer regiments.

But this was only one feature of the utter unpreparedness of this country. There was not a single transport or troop ship. Not a cent of the $50,000,000 appropriated "for the national defense" had been available for offensive preparations. Congress thirteen years before had adopted a paper plan for coast defenses, that was to cost $100,000,000. But it appropriated only one-fourth that sum, all told. There were to be 2362 pieces of ordnance, but there were, in March, 1898, only 151 in place.

The Quartermaster's Department had only fifty-seven officers. There were only twenty-two trained officers in the commissary. There were but 723 men in the Hospital Corps. There were only 179 of the 192 authorized officers in the Medical Corps. There was reserve equipment on hand for only 10,000 of the new army. No smokeless powder was available for the field artillery or the Springfield 45-caliber rifles, with which all the volunteers, except three cavalry regiments, had to be equipped, for lack of more modern weapons. Every tentmaker in the country was busy, but still there was long delay. There was not a yard of khaki made in the United States and nobody knew how to make it.

Few of the volunteers from the National Guard had ordinary equipment. The army had not been mobilized for thirty-three years and many men in high command had never seen a large body of troops. The War Department, in addition to attending to countless details of preparation, was harried by the friends of applicants for position. A million volunteers do not mean preparedness.

Would Rotate Mental Crops.

[New York Times:] Dr. Jesse White, professor of psychology at the University of Pittsburgh, in a lecture before the Twentieth Century Club of that city, on "The Glory of Being Different," said recently:

"One good way to keep broad-minded is to dress differently. Perhaps it would be a good thing for the banker to be a farmer for six months, the farmer to be a policeman, the policeman a miner, and so forth; and I believe I would be a better psychologist if I could take a year off every few years and be something else."

Rotation of mental crops. Viewing this scheme of things from various angles. The rolling stone and jack-of-all-trades have their psychological or sociological sufficient defense.

When the War is Over.

[Kansas City Star:] When the war is over, if the nations of the world give up and say: "War is inevitable; it can't be helped," then the chances are that there will be other wars. But if they take the other position, if they assume that it will be possible to prevent war, there is at least a chance that they will succeed.

That is why the discussion of the League to Enforce Peace is to be welcomed. It is a sign that the problem isn't simply to be given up. It means that thoughtful men and women are going to work on a plan to make impossible a repetition of the present tragedy.

The United States ought to have a hand in the discussion that will come at the end of the war. It will have if people generally take an interest in the matter and recognize its tremendous importance to the future of this country, as well as of Europe.

Last Sedan Chair in England.

[London Chronicle:] Lord Rosebery's gift of a sedan chair to the corporation of the ancient city of Bath reminds one that, while most specimens are today in museums, there has been at least one "chair" in use in this country until quite recently. It was an old specimen, and very faded, and its owner had placed it upon wheels, so that one man could deal with it instead of two. In this guise, in the Old-World town of Bury St. Edmunds, it was hired out to carry an old lady to church every fine Sabbath morning, and to do other odd jobs, such as taking young ladies to dinners at the Atheneum and the like.

About three years ago its owner ailed and gave up business, and the chair was sold to an Ipswich dealer, instead of going into the local museum at Moyses Hall, where there is already another and better specimen. What has eventually happened to this old sedan chair—probably the last to carry fares in England—is not known. But just before the outbreak of war it was lying behind a shop in the butter market at Bury, waiting to be fetched by its new owner.

Street Names in England.

[London Chronicle:] Oxford has undergone a sweeping change of cacophonous street names to a far greater extent than can be found in London. Until 1838 Merton street was called Coach and Horse lane, Grove street was Magpie lane, Oriel street was Skimmery Hall lane, Queen street was Butcher row, Castle street was Tithouse lane, St. Aldates was Fish street and Pembroke street was Penny-farthing lane. Logic lane, now profanely abridged by University College, has alone retained the ancient name unchanged. Curiously enough, this revolution in street nomenclature seems to have escaped the notice of all the numerous historians or topographers of Oxford, and the above information is derived from an old resident.

Traveling by Parcel Post.

[Popular Science Monthly:] Though our parcel post is a wonderful system, enabling us to send all kinds of strange things by mail, the English system can do one thing which we have as yet not attempted.

An Englishman who was in a hurry to reach a part of London with which he was unfamiliar, called at the general postoffice to consult a directory. Upon explaining his case, the clerk gave him the startling information that he could go by parcel post for the payment of three pence a mile.

He was accordingly placed in charge of a messenger boy who took him to his destination. The boy carried a printed slip on which was written "Article required to be delivered" with a description of the parcel following.

Funny Errors in Advertisements.

[Wall Street Journal:] Laughable errors in illustrated advertisements are often apparent to the thinking man. It makes one wonder why the designers of the ads don't get their information first hand from someone who really knows. Accuracy, even in advertisements, has the same attraction it has anywhere else.

For instance, when the seltzer bottle in an electrical sign on Broadway is filling the empty glass, the level descends as fast in the bottle as it rises in the glass; yet the bottle is five times as big. It couldn't possibly be, according to physics.

Still worse is a picture of a piano with a pair of hands striking certain keys. Fortunate it is indeed that that piano can't sound, for the particular keys struck would be a jangling discord. Why couldn't the artist have gone to a musician for a pleasing chord among the infinite offerings of music? If advertising cannot be commercially artistic, may it not at least be artistically commercial?

Arizona.

LIMIT ON SPEED OF MOTOR LINES

Arizona Adopts New Rule for Carriers in State.

Apache Highway is Placed in Good Condition.

Bootlegging in Cochise has Become Big Problem.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) July 13.—The State Corporation Commission, after consideration of the traffic between Douglas and Bisbee, has issued an order that will affect all motor car lines within Arizona. Such lines must run on an observed schedule, with speed not over twenty-five miles an hour. Bonds must be filed with the State in the sum of $2500 for the first and $1000 for all extra cars of the same line. A novel point is that accident and death policies must be provided for every passenger. Light cars, weighing under 2000 pounds, must not carry more than 130 pounds excess baggage and heavy cars 350 pounds, so stowed as not to extend beyond running boards. Drivers must be at least 21 years of age.

APACHE HIGHWAY.

Favored by an appropriation secured from the Bankhead Good Roads bill, the Apach Highway between Phoenix and Roosevelt is to be surfaced and placed in good shape, under the direction of the Forest Supervisor. The Reclamation Service abandoned the road after completion of the Roosevelt dam and the State and the counties have been doing nothing in the hope of Federal action. Several stretches along the river and in the rocks of the mountains will need much work. From Roosevelt to Globe the highway is in excellent shape. Beyond Globe, several bridges are missing, but are to be rebuilt before fall, in time for the diversion southward from Springerville of the transcontinental tourist travel.

AS TO RECRUITING.

Adjt.-Gen. Harris has received word that the work of recruiting in Arizona for the forces on the border will be taken over by the War Department. Heretofore it has been done by unassigned officers of the National Guard of Arizona. Demand was made that the Arizona regiment be filled up to full war strength of 1800, from its present enrollment of about 1100. This increase seems beyond local capabilities, under the present order of things, with no war imminent, and there even is a prospect that a considerable number will be discharged from the regiment under provisions of a new War Department order that will release all men with dependent families. The adjutant-general is rather of the opinion that the regiment hereafter will be filled up with men from any State.

The Arizona regiment has been split into three fractions. The First Battalion remains in Douglas, under Maj. Grinstead, the second has been divided between Ajo, Casa Grand and the Roosevelt Dam and the third, under Maj. Coykendall, has just been ordered to station at Fort Huachuca. This disposition of the force is hardly gratifying to the pride of the Arizonans, who, called first of all the National Guardsmen, had expected to remain a concrete organization, closely following the regulars in any field work there might be to do.

BOOTLEGGING PROBLEM.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BISBEE (Ariz.) July 12.—Bootlegging in Cochise county has come to such a stage that it appears set above the law and the District Attorney, in face of an adverse and law-breaking public sentiment, is in despair of convictions. A case in point was that of Jack Frame, captured in an automobile in which he was bringing from New Mexico four cases of whisky and 480 pint bottles of beer. Frame admdited bringing in the liquor, but claimed it was for personal use. The prosecution brought out the fact that defendant was in possession of a retail liquor dealer's license and that he had made affidavit of his intention to carry on a retail liquor dealer's business. After all of this, the jury acquitted.

County Attorney Ross will try again, however, in the hope of actually demonstrating the sale of booze. He has filed 300 bootlegging cases already, and says he expects to make the number 500, giving the Superior Court work till along in the winter. Most of the accused have furnished bail and seem to consider their arrests rather in the way of a joke. Despite all efforts of the Sheriff intoxicated men are commonly on the streets and liquor seems to be as free as in Territorial days, when about every other business house on the main streets was a saloon. Prohibition advocates claim that the courts have been much to blame, in that the sentences inflicted in the few cases of conviction have been absurdly light. There is indignation also over the sale of intoxicants during the disturbed border conditions now prevailing. The Mexican authorities appear to have much better success in putting down the liquor traffic than is the case on this side of the line.

AT TOMBSTONE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TOMBSTONE (Ariz.) July 13.—C. L. Brinkley, captured in Los Angeles and returned for trial here, has pleaded guilty and has been sentence to serve not less than three nor more than ten years in the Florence penitentiary. The charge was embezzlement from his former employers, the Norton-Morgan Commercial Company of Willcox. His case was the more pitiable in that he had been married only lately and the trip to Los Angeles had been announced as a wedding tour.

THE METRIC SYSTEM.

Advisable to Use it in Connection with Foreign Trade.

[Philadelphia Bulletin:] United States manufacturers and dealers bidding for foreign trade are advised to make use of the metric system in their proposals detailing dimensions and measurements, and it will be well if the acceptance of this advice finally shall lead to the more general use of the system in domestic business.

Brazil, Chile, Peru and nearly all the South American countries have formally adopted the metric system, and it is in general use in all the European nations, except Russia and [illegible] of the report that [illegible] had been consummated was [illegible] from President Herrmann. The Red chief announced in [illegible] York that the story printed in [illegible] of the country this [illegible] was "absolutely true." [illegible] Herrmann will be home [illegible] and it is expected he will [illegible] place the matter of the [illegible]-Mathewson deal before the [illegible] club directorate on Monday. Just who will come to Cincinnati along with Mathewson is yet a matter of guesswork. Fletcher is prominently mentioned in all the reports and there is no one who doubts that he will not come here.

When Herzog was apprised of Mr. Herrman's statement today he said that his transfer to the Giants has been all fixed up. He began to make preliminary preparations for his departure, indicating that his stay with the local club is a matter of only a few days. "Looks as if it was all completed," said Buck just before the game was finished this afternoon. "Under my contract I must give my consent to any transfer where there is more than one club after my services. I have given my consent to the New York transfer, so it's all settled that I go there. I really believe that Mathewson will be the Reds' new manager, and I wish him the best of luck. I have tried all the time I was here—too bad I could not have been more fortunate."

CALIFORNIA TEAM LEADS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DEL MONTE (Cal.) July 15.—At the end of the first eighteen holes of the thirty-six hole play for the Olympic cup, the State of California Association golf team led five other teams with an aggregate of 305 strokes. The Northern California team was second with 315 strokes, and the Western Association third with a score of 317.

The stroke score of the Southwestern Association team was 330; the Southern California Association, 332 and the intercollegiate team, 334.

The final eighteen holes will be played this afternoon.

Douglas Grant and Heinrich Schmidt, with the leading team, turned in cards of 74, while E. Hoover Bankard, with the Western Association, took only 72 to make the eighteen holes.

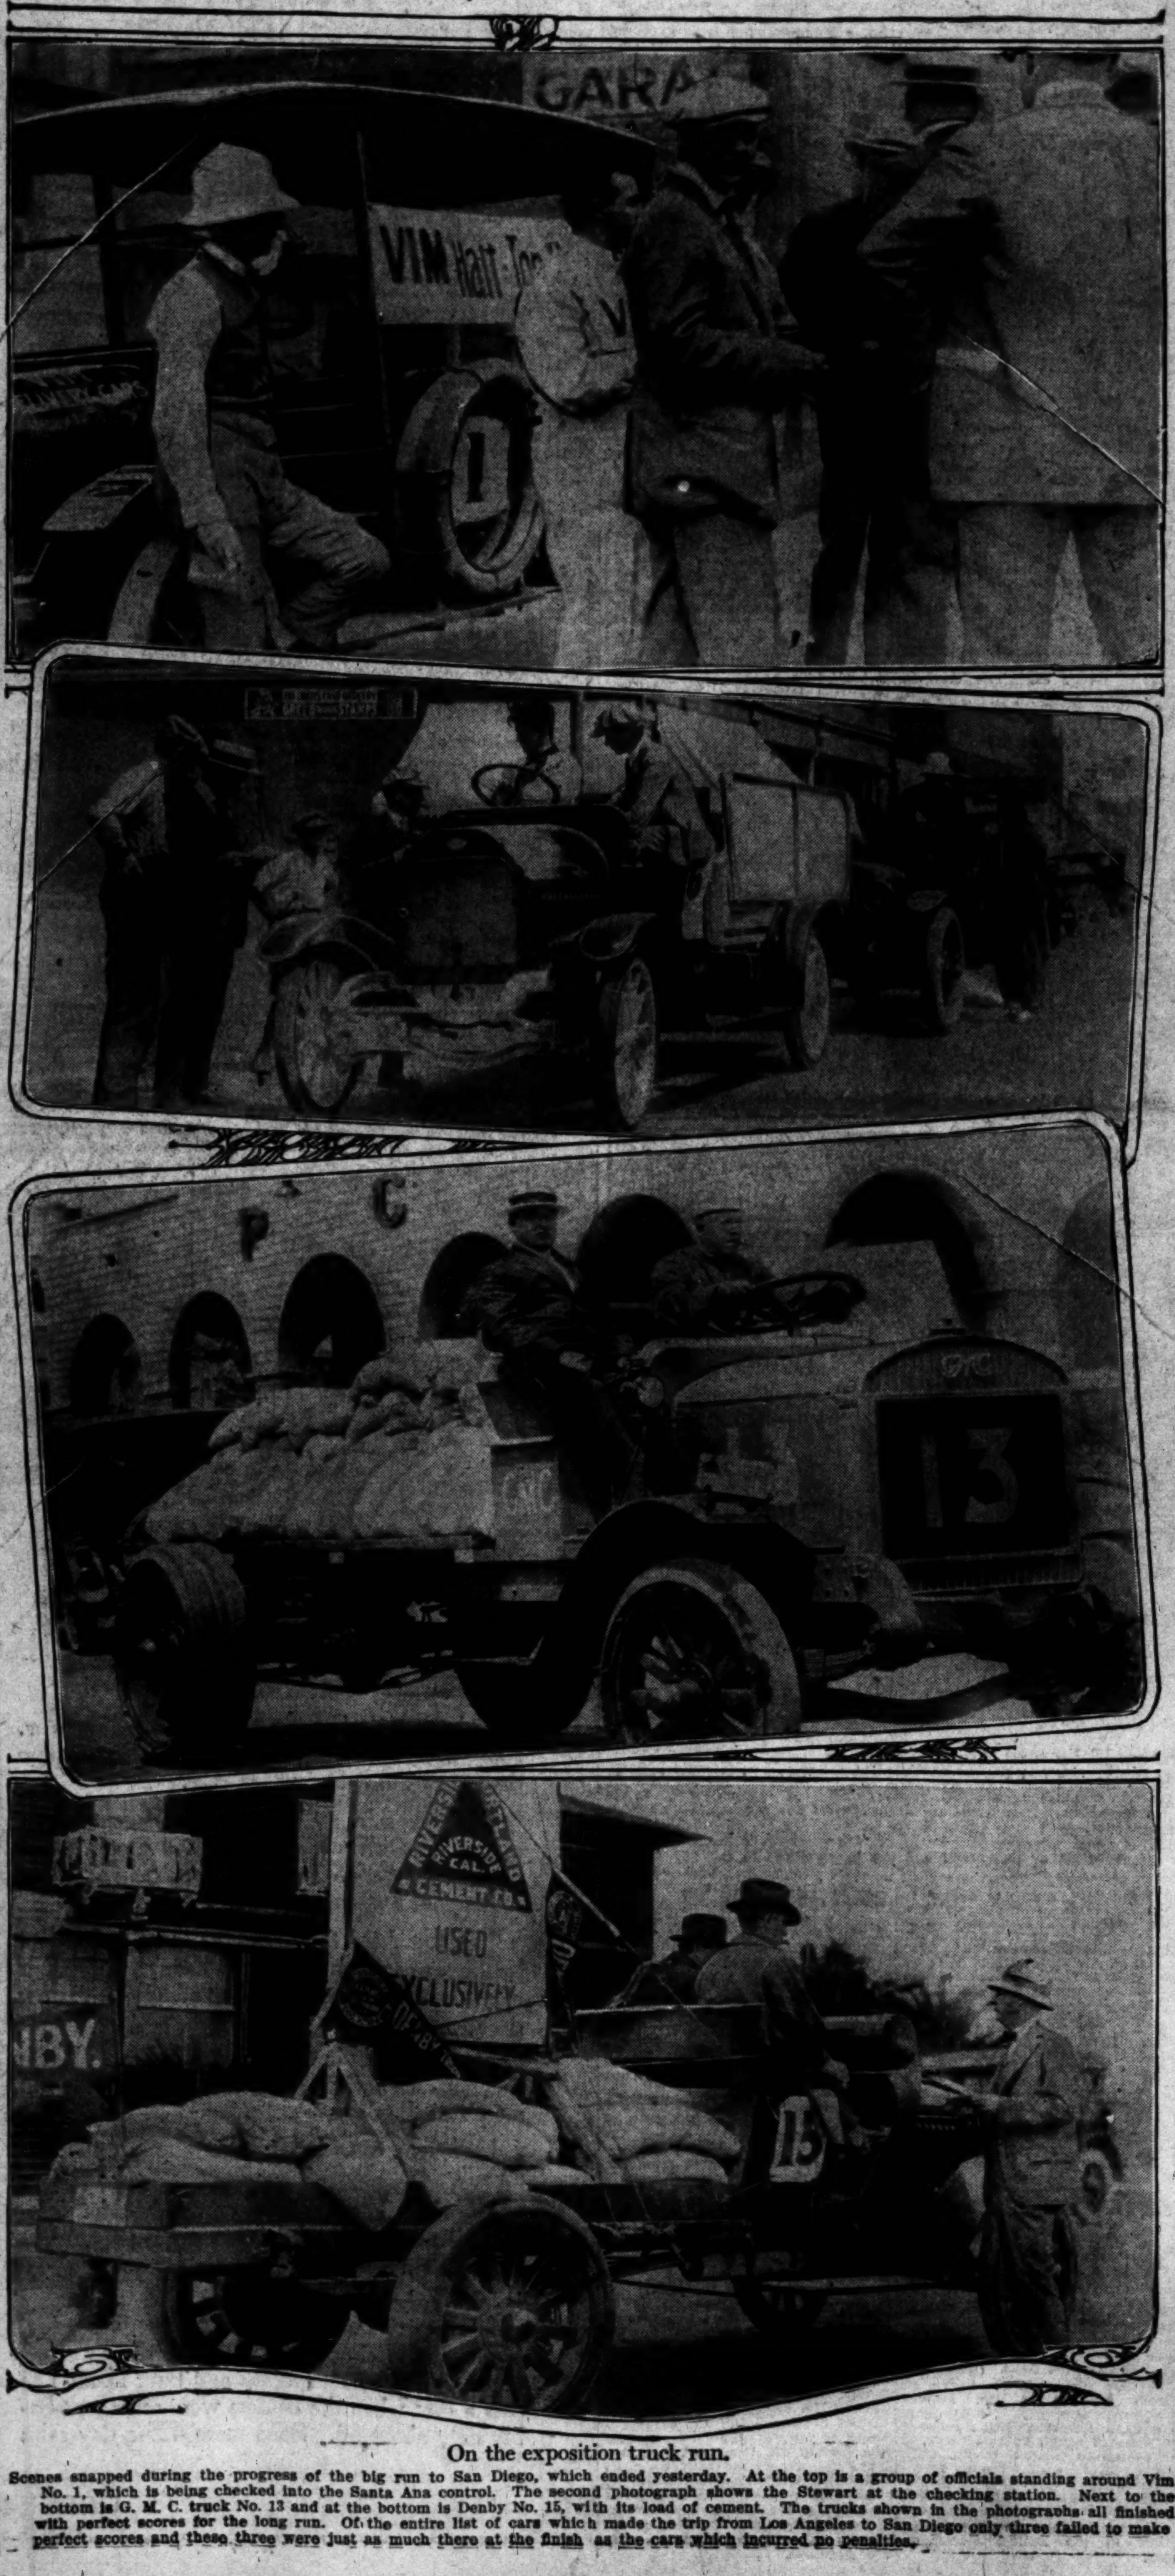
A Real Test for the Commercial Cars.



On the exposition truck run.

Scenes snapped during the progress of the big run to San Diego, which ended yesterday. At the top is a group of officials standing around Vim No. 1, which is being checked into the Santa Ana control. The second photograph shows the Stewart at the checking station. Next to the bottom is G. M. C. truck No. 13 and at the bottom is Denby No. 15, with its load of cement. The trucks shown in the photographs all finished with perfect scores for the long run. Of the entire list of cars which made the trip from Los Angeles to San Diego only three failed to make perfect scores and these three were just as much there at the finish as the cars which incurred no penalties.

DODGE TAKES THE BIG RACE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, July 15.—Dodge, owned by Weber and Ward and ridden by F. Murphy, won the American Derby, the $10,000 race with which thoroughbred horse racing was today revived in Chicago. R. J. Mackenzie's Fauxcol was second and Franklin, Dodge's stable mate, third. The time for the mile and a quarter was 2:04⅘.

Churchill of the Foxhall P. Keene stable was the only other starter.

A crowd that overflowed the grand stand at the Hawthorne track and filled the disused betting shed watched the horses. It was the first time since 1904 that local followers of the sport had had opportunity to see a regulation card of six races.

BABY RACING CAR TURNS OVER AT ASCOT

A baby racing car owned by Lucille Hutton of the L.K.O. Comedy Company, turned turtle on the Ascot speedway yesterday, seriously injuring Howl Boggs who was driving it. The boy was rushed to the Receiving Hospital where his wounds were treated. The car, itself a shattered wreck, was piled on one side of the track.

Howl Boggs was tuning the car up for today when Brent Harding was to make an effort to set a new 100-mile record. Boggs was Harding's mechanician. The injuring of Boggs and the wrecking of the car, of course, forces an indefinite postponement of the speed trials.

ABE ROTH TO PLAY BRANDY HANDBALL.

Abe Roth, the captain of the now famous Irish basketball team of the L.A.A.C., has challenged Carl Brandstetner for his position as champion of class D in handball. The game will be played at the club this morning.

"This Brandstetner guy has been winning," said Roth at the club yesterday, "but I can't figure him. As far as I can see he has nothing. I don't know whether I will win or not, but I sure ought to slip the hooks to him."

Del Mar Detour Fails to Worry Cars.

BY W. W. FOWLER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, July 15.—Perfect scores were the order of the day in the Panama-California International Exposition commercial vehicle run completed here this afternoon. Eleven of the fourteen competing trucks finished the Los Angeles-San Diego jaunt with a full thousand points to their credit.

ALL ON TIME.

All of the entries checked in at the final control at the exposition grounds on time to the second. Such remarkable performances placed this demonstration in a class by itself. It has been a howling success from every standpoint. The trucks, large and small came over the hills, grades and detours with never a pause and the gasoline and oil consumption was surprisingly small.

The last stage of the trip was officially started at 8:30 this morning. The machines had been lined up in front of the hotel at Oceanside, where a night watchman was on hand to see that no work was done. Exactly on the minute the first car was checked out with instructions to check in at La Jolla and continue direct to the exposition. Soon the whole fourteen were in motion, the heavyweight Doane leading by several minutes.

EASY MONEY.

The well advertised detour near Del Mar which was supposed to be in such terrible shape that about half the trucks could not get over it at all, turned out far below expectations. It was a pretty rough detour but it couldn't stop one of the trucks for a single second. In some places the road was exceedingly narrow and the Doane, with its broad tread, had some tight shaves. Otherwise not even a thrill in the unpaved stretch.

Two little pistons—two new little pistons—now weigh less than one old one—and they do more work.

Big jars and big noises are made with big hammers.

Little hammers cause much less disturbance.

By reducing the size of the pistons, and increasing their number, we have not only lessened the vibrations of the motor, but we have increased its power and responsiveness.

The new Packard is quieter, smoother, safer, and much more powerful.

Six pistons—made twelve! Light, agile, quick pistons! We have cut their size in half—multiplied their number by two—and the result has been the most marked improvement ever made in the Packard car.

A big idea—hard tested by six thousand delighted users. A record-breaking success!

The twelve cylinders do more work—do it quicker—with less fuss—than six ever did.

That's why the Packard is more to be desired today than ever before. And that means something.

SIGN POSTERS STILL AT IT.

Auto Club Continues to Find Roads to Mark Out.

Work Going on in Kern and Tulare Counties.

Imperial Valley is Next Place on the Programme.

Sign posting the highways is going merrily along by the crews of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Hundreds of posts and signs have just been placed to the north of Los Angeles, according to a report issued yesterday by Secretary S. L. Mitchell.

The crew working in Tulare county yesterday set the last of 275 posts and put in position the last of the 550 signs required to efficiently guide motorists over the county and State highways there. The main routes of Tulare were completely signed first and the attention of the trucks was turned to the highways criss-crossing the main roads.

TO SEQUOIA.

Of particular importance is the posting of the highway into the Sequoia National Park, which is receiving a great deal of travel at this time, and is due for a great deal more. The route to the Gen. Grant Park has been posted as far as the county line. This is really divided into two routes, one going via the Sand Creek and Old Mill roads.

Tomorrow the sign-posting crew will direct its activities to Kern county, where several hundred posts will be set and hundreds of signs. These signs, as were those in Tulare county, will be of enamelled metal, erected on metal posts, and will last for a long time.

After Kern county has been signed work will start immediately in the Imperial Valley. The automobile club will work into the valley from three directions—from San Diego, from Mecca and from Yuma, to the east. In the valley proper, every road will receive a complete set of the important posts and markers.

YOSEMITE.

At the same time, the club has charted all routes in and out of Yosemite, to Huntington Lake, and in and out of the Sequoia and Gen. Grant National parks, the data secured to be used for new road maps. Routes have also been charted from San Francisco via Colma and Half Moon Bay to San Gregorio and Redwood City, in the north.

An important map to be made from recent chart notes will be that showing the territory from the State highway at Sunnyvale to Cupertino and through the Big Basin and Big Trees to the summer resorts of Ben Lomond and Brookdale and thence to Santa Cruz. From Santa Cruz the charting has been completed over the new road to Los Gatos, and completing the loop back to Saratoga.

FOREST HOME.

The route to Forest Home has now been recharted, in order to issue a new map over the recently completed highway up Mill Creek Canyon. A map showing the crest route and the Big Bear region is also under course of construction at the club headquarters, which has been brought down to date since the storms.

There is only way to keep the plug cool and that is by proper water-jacketing. At the same time the wall supporting the screwed connection of the plug must be firm enough to endure the edge action necessary in tightening the plug.

ANOTHER MACHINE CROSSES CONTINENT.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EAST HIGHLANDS, July 15.—Miss Jacqueline Grepe, prominent in society circles here and in Redlands, and Miss Catherine Fletcher of Victorville left East Highlands on Wednesday morning in their Buick roadster for a little trip across the continent—alone. They expect to visit all the big cities of the East and will be gone most of the summer.

Everything that a motorist would need is compactly stored away in the automobile. The two girls are outdoor girls in every way and are as capable of handling the automobile as men. They can repair a puncture or a blow-out much quicker than most men. They have equipment for comfort in case they should be forced to spend the night on the road although they expect to stay at hotels most of the time.

Big League.

PIKE'S PEAK HILL CLIMB LOOKS LIKE REAL STUFF.

A TRIO of Hudson "Super Sixes" is being prepared for the Pike's Peak hill-climbing contest, and two of them have been officially entered. One of these is to be driven by Ralph Mulford, who holds the world's twenty-four-hour record, with a Hudson, and numerous other records. Mulford's team mate probably will be the western driver, F. A. Patterson, who hails from Stockton, Cal.

FIRST TIME.

The first running of this annual contest over the highest highway in the world will be August 10, 11 and 12, the first day being for motorcycles and the other two for the automobile events, which include a class E, 230 cubic inches and under; a class C, 231 to 300 cubic inches, and a class D free-for-all. The latter event is for the Penrose challenge trophy given by Spencer Penrose, valued at $1200, and $3000 to be divided between the winner and second place.

The course measures twelve miles and 2200 feet, and in order to negotiate this climb to the summit of the famous mountain, cars will have to conquer a rise of 6686 feet. With a maximum grade of 10.5 per cent. and an average of 7 per cent., with numerous turns, an exciting contest is assured. Furthermore, it is a contest in which driving skill will play a big part.

FREE-FOR-ALL.

Each of the two Hudsons now entered is nominated for the 231-to-300-cubic-inch class and the free-for-all. In addition to the Hudson cars, the entries to date include three Cadillacs, a Studebaker Special, a Peugeot, and it is expected that three Chalmers cars and several Kings now in course of construction will be entered shortly, also a number of other specials from Detroit and Indianapolis factories which the makers are not ready to announce as yet. For the motorcycle curtain-raiser event some of the fleetest machines in the country will face the starter.

Motorists and travelers who contemplate attending the speed event at Pike's Peak are urged to make reservations at once, for the event promises to draw the biggest crowd that ever visited Colorado Springs. Automobile clubs within a radius of several hundred miles are planning special tours, and the railroads are arranging numerous special excursions.

PEERLESS CHOSEN TO CROSS CONTINENT.

Charles Victor Hall and Mrs. Hall are motoring from Los Angeles to the Atlantic Coast. They are making one of the most elaborate transcontinental camping tours ever undertaken by western motorists. The car they are driving is a new Peerless 56, which Mr. Hall has selected from his several valuable automobiles as the most worthy for this strenuous trek across the continent.

His choice of the Peerless, as he stated to C. R. Teaboldt, sales manager of Smith Bros., Peerless distributors, was not only for the beauty and remarkably easy-riding qualities of the car, but for the well-known surplus power which he considers makes the Peerless the ideal car for desert touring and mountaineering.

Their outfit includes everything required for comfortable camping on a leisurely tour. They are carrying on the machine folding cots, tents, emergency outfits of provisions and "canned heat" for quickly-prepared meals. A gasoline stove fed by a pipe from the gasoline tank in the machine can be set up in more elaborate camps.

The 100-yard Sackett cup race one of the feature races of the Philadelphia Swimming Club's outdoor season at Lafayette on the Schuylkill will be contested August 19.

LINCOLN HIGHWAY TO BE REMARKED.

Due to the co-operation of the Willys-Overland Company, the Lincoln Highway Association will be able to undertake this year a plan which will be of the greatest interest to transcontinental tourists.

This plan includes the standardized marking of the Lincoln Highway from coast to coast—a marking system which is by far the greatest ever undertaken in this country.

While the Lincoln highway is now more or less thoroughly marked from San Francisco to New York, the work has been done in sections by the local communities, each to the best of its ability and to the extent which its finances would allow.

The Lincoln Highway Association now plans to send a crew of four men in two Willys-Overland delivery cars, specially decorated by that company for the purpose, across the Lincoln highway, painting the poles in a standard and uniform fashion, eight feet from the ground, about six signs to the mile, and four signs at the turns. A stencil reading "right" and "left" will also be used to indicate the direction of the turns.

CALIFORNIA TIRES ARE SHIPPED EAST.

Only a few weeks ago it was announced a car of tires and tubes was just ready to start from the Savage warehouse in San Diego, Cal., for the Middle West. It was the first car of tires and tubes ever shipped eastward over the "backbone of the continent," so was well worthy of note. There is nothing unusual about eastern shipments from the Savage plant now, however. Since the initial shipment to Chicago, fifteen cars of tires and tubes have been sent to eastern and middle western points, and other cars are now being made ready for shipment almost daily.

A Few Ensign Advantages

1—Simplicity of construction.
2—Efficiency of action. Increasing power or fuel consumption.
3—Foolproof; fewer parts and adjustments.
4—Handles all fuels.
5—Permanent adjustment. Once set to the motor, no further adjustments are necessary for variations of temperature or fuel gravities.

THE

CADILLAC EIGHT

Where is there another such motor car?

Almost every motor car advertisement reads alike in these days of "claim everything in sight."

Every car is the best in the world—to read the advertising.

Most cars do ride alike on demonstrations. But the minute you step into the eight-cylinder Cadillac you note a difference. There is an air of quality, a feeling of stability.

The beautiful finish, the upholstery, the attention to small details. As the car is started you observe how easily the gears are shifted, how softly the clutch engages; how the car glides away with the ease and swiftness of a wind-driven cloud.

If you have never ridden in an eight-cylinder Cadillac your first ride will be one series of pleasing thrills and surprises.

BUT BEWARE—it will spoil you forevermore for any other motor car. There is no other car like it. The universal ambition is to equal the Cadillac Eight, but today this car stands alone.

It will be a pleasure to demonstrate.

Stepping over the Hollywood Mountain grade.

Bert Dingley at the wheel of the New Series Mitchell "Six" demonstrating the flexibility of the machine on mountain grades. This road is a close-in scenic boulevard about seven miles in length and it is practically unknown to the majority of motorists. It is made up of numerous sharp turns, stiff grades and long pulls. It is similar, in many respects, to the Ridge Route to Bakersfield. The highway was finished in November, 1915, and required about three years to construct. It was built in order to provide an entrance into Griffith Park for the residents of Hollywood and the beach cities in the bay district.

Quick Response.

NEW MOON CAR PROVES POPULAR.

LARGE NUMBERS SIGN UP FOR EARLY DEMONSTRATIONS.

The "Ultra-six" Develops Great Power and Yet is a Car of Very Moderate Weight—Club Roadster has been Booked Several Weeks in Advance Already.

With the secret up his sleeve regarding the new Moon models, G. W. Reilly of the Reilly Motor Car Company, local distributors for the Moon line, anticipating a quick response to his announcement and a resulting large demand for the car, was nevertheless swamped the past week in spite of all his preparations because of the large numbers who wanted to get a look at and a ride in this new car.

RUSHING.

"The retail business off the salesroom floor was away beyond what we expected and the inquiries received, both by mail and in person from outside dealers who wished to handle the Moon line this year has been very gratifying, indeed," said Mr. Reilly, "and we expect to close up in the next few days for a large part of the outlying territory as we now have several deals pending.

"This 'Ultra Six' as we have termed the Moon 6-66, seems to appeal to so many because of the extreme power which it has as it develops an actually sixty-six brake horse power while the car weighs less than 3000 pounds. The demand has been so great that we have had to telegraph for three additional carloads of this model to be shipped at once."

A FAVORITE.

The Riverside, four-passenger, club roadser, of this 6-66 type has been especially sought after and orders have been booked in advance for delivery whenever possible, but the factory has assured Mr. Reilly that after August 1 they will be caught up with orders for this car and will then be able to deliver them to him in any quantities he may desire.

SPEEDER ANNEXES ANOTHER RECORD.

Following up its recent coast-to-coast record and its record from Los Angeles to San Francisco, as well as numerous other road achievements, the Cadillac recently annexed another.

In competition with twenty-one other cars, the Cadillac driven by Harold Brinker in the Denver News-Times race of 132 miles from Denver to Laramie, Wyo., covered the route of rough going—including one mountain range—in 2h. 55m. 10s., an average of close to forty-four miles per hour.

This lowered the best previous record by 33 minutes and was 18 minutes faster than its nearest competitor in the Denver-to-Laramie event.

WHITTAKER BUYS FINAL "LITTLE SIX."

When R. J. Whittaker bought a six-cylinder Oakland touring car, a few days ago, he obtained the last car of this model that Hawley, King and Company had in stock. The demand for these cars has been so incessant that the one taken by Mr. Whittaker had been in use as a demonstrator and was the only one available to the salesmen. This fact was explained to the owner and he consented to loan it to the firm for about ten days or pending the arrival of another shipment from the factory at Pontiac, Mich.

The popularity of the model 32 Oakland, known generally as the "little six," has been one of the sensations of the 1916 season.

HAMLIN CONSIDERS HIMSELF LUCKY.

Inasmuch as he has the only eight-cylinder Scripps-Booth car on the Pacific Coast, and one of the three now in the hands of dealers in the United States, Ralph C. Hamlin is being envied by other western representatives of this popular car. Hamlin has received requests from dealers at northern coast points to "loan" them the new eight for a few days in order that they may put it on display. However, he is unable to comply owing to his own immediate demands.

We Have a 3400 r.p.m. Ready This Minute for You

This certainly is a great year for selling cars. Most everybody has had success. Some more than others, as is always the case.

Chalmers sales are running 900 per cent. ahead of last year all over the United States. Mr. Chalmers' foresight in doubly providing against a shortage of materials has won a great contest.

It has enabled the Chalmers plant to keep on building cars when one or two have shut down or others have had to cut down on allotments to their dealers.

Here it is July and the great Chalmers plant is running day and night, three shifts, turning out more cars than ever before.

How long can Chalmers keep filling the demand?

We don't know. We know only this: The plant is turning out about 125 a day; Chalmers dealers are selling about 425 a day.

The only reason we or any other dealer can supply a car now is because during December, January and February the Chalmers plant worked day and night like Trojans and built about 125 cars a day when the dealers were selling probably only about 80. Soon these 425-a-day sales are going to eat up the surplus made during the Winter months.

We got a letter a few days ago from the Chalmers plant which simply said: "We have on hand orders asking for immediate shipment of cars whose value is in excess of $8,000,000."

We need not narrate the rest of the note, which was so obviously subtle that we got the tele operators on the job right off.

We're making our promises on delivery day to day. We've got cars or can now. This may not hold good tomorrow.

Next week we shall cut our promises still more. Remember, there are only two that we concern ourselves with these days. is to get you to take one ride in a 3400 Chalmers if you have not done so already. all we want. The car speaks in a language understand.

The other thing is simply one of math If the Chalmers factory can turn out 125 day and Chalmers dealers all over the U States are selling 425 a day, how long supply last?

COMPETITION.

and Taft has felt the competition of the auto stages so seriously that a train has been taken off. To cover the fifty miles between Bakersfield and the oil town, the train took a leisurely four hours and a half. The auto stages cover the distance today in an hour and three-quarters for practically half the railroad's fare. When the new Kern county highway is completed between Bakersfield and Taft the running time of the stages will be reduced to an hour and a quarter.

Due to the directness of the new State Highway via the Ridge Route, the auto stages between Los Angeles and Bakersfield have a decided advantage over the railroad service. The Southern Pacific local trains to Bakersfield from Los Angeles take seven hours to make the distance. The Packard Twin Sixes of the Western Auto Company travel on a six-hour schedule that includes a half-hour stop for lunch at Lebec or Sandbergs. The stages that do not make the lunch stop, beat the railroad's time an hour and a half.

SEVERE TESTS.

It is service of the severest sort on the automobiles themselves, however. The road from Castaic to Baileys is unpaved as yet and rough in many places. The Packard Twin-Sixes carry a load of nine passengers and luggage over the 3000-foot climb, and often make the round trip in a day, covering over 260 miles with loads of over three-quarters of a ton. At the end of two months' service, one of the Packards showed 9000 miles on the odometer.

The men who drive the cars know every inch of the road and, without ever looking at a watch, can drive the 126 miles within five minutes of their schedule time.

It is easy to see how these stages appeal to the tourist in California. The trip to San Francisco occupies two days, with a night's stop at Fresno, with a fare some three dollars less than the railroad. An infinitely better opportunity to see the country is afforded by the auto stage. For the busy man, the railroad to San Francisco will continue to be the only way to travel, but it is hard to see how it can compete with the stage for the person who is traveling for pleasure.

At any rate, the beginning of a very interesting struggle is on, and it would be a bold man who would dare to predict just what the eventual outcome will be.

Automobile stages—de luxe.

Gates is jubilant over the receipt of a partial shipment of attachment parts, including a heavy allotment of Firestone equipped wheels. In conversation with Mr. Hobgood, local salesman for the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., Mr. Gates said:

"The partial shipment of parts you see here will last a day or two at the most. It takes from three to five carloads a week to handle our local orders alone, and as you know we are the assembling branch for the whole Pacific Coast, so we are a pretty busy lot of people around here.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB ISSUES NEW MAP.

ROADS NEAR PASADENA ARE LISTED NOW.

Griffith Park Routes Shown in Detail and Mt. Wilson Hill Climb Also Given—Many Other Outlying Tours and Highways are Mapped Out.

A new map of unusual importance to motorists has just been issued by the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Heretofore the territory surrounding Pasadena and between that city and Los Angeles has been shown by the club in a series of strips, but the new map is entirely different.

This map has been produced to show the main automobile routes to Pasadena, and the radiating highways from that place. It embraces a series of tours which have helped to make Southern California famous as a touring paradise, and by scanning it the motorist is provided at once with a bird's-eye view of the Pasadena territory.

It includes the entire route through Griffith Park, the road to the summit of Mt. Wilson and the complete trip from Pasadena through the La Canada districts and Verdugo Canyon. Elysian Park and its drives, Alhambra, Monrovia and Sierra Madre are also shown.

The map has been prepared in folder form and is now ready for distribution at the Automobile Club and its branch offices.

WHY
WE CALL IT THE "ULTRA SIX"

BECAUSE of its extreme power. An actual brake horse power of 66 on a car that weighs less than 3000 pounds.

BECAUSE it has Kelly-Springfield tires all around—plain tread front, Kant-Slip rear.

BECAUSE of the excellence of its body finish.

BECAUSE it has a counter-balanced crankshaft. The reason it is so much more powerful and speedier than other sixes.

BECAUSE it has all the luxuries and refinements of the big, high-priced cars, without that tremendous upkeep.

"LENA" TRAVELS ON OLD TIRES.

REFUSES NEW EQUIPMENT FOR CROSS-COUNTRY RUN.

Norwalk Tires, Already Used for 8000 Miles, are Still Holding up and Giving Satisfaction—New Long-distance Record may be Stacked up on this Trip.

When the veteran Pathfinder "Lena" left San Diego last month piloting the Pathfinder twelve to New York City, the driver, C. L. Maynard, failed to equip her with a new set of tires, being content with the four Norwalk tires he has used for the past six months.

NEARLY GONE?

These tires had given 8251 miles of service before beginning the long run and Maynard intends to establish a mileage record with them.

"Lena" left Chicago yesterday and from last reports the tires were still making good and in fine shape. Before starting on the trip Maynard said: "During the last six months I have driven "Lena" over 8000 miles on these tires, negotiating all kinds of roads, which is a severe test on tires, and yet during all that time I have been entirely free of tire trouble, so I intend to let this good luck continue and shall endeavor to reach New York on the same tires.

MANY OF 'EM.

"Scores of automobiles make this transcontinental trip on a new set of tires, but to accomplish it on a set that has given over 8000 miles will be some record. I have every reason to believe that Norwalk tires will be the first to make this record, judging from the fact that countless owners are getting from 10,000 to 15,000 miles of service from them."

Record-breaker.

"SEE AMERICA FIRST" IS LOCALIZED HERE.

THE biggest year in the history of the Yosemite Valley is the confident prediction of those who have been in close touch with the valley this season. The great slogan of Americans, "See America first," has been localized by Californians to "See California first," and they certainly have been carrying out the slogan.

Every record for transportation into the valley has been broken already this season. The motor travel is 150 per cent. greater than it was to this date last year, which formerly was the best motor year. The railroads report that they are far ahead of all former marks for transportation, and that they expect their business to be nearly double that of last year.

GOOD SHAPE.

The motor roads into the valley have been put into the best possible condition, and the rails are in excellent shape. During the four days from July first to fourth all population records for the valley were broken. Thirty-five hundred persons, exclusive of guides and employees, made up the average population of the valley during those days.

"This will be the best year in the history of the valley," declares David A. Curry, Stentor of the Yosemite, and the man who has seen vacationers come and go for nearly thirty years. "The old-time visitors all are returning this year, while thousands of men and women who have not yet seen the wonders of the valley will make the trip this year.

"The better condition of the motor roads and the less stringent regulations governing the operation of motor cars in the valley have aided us to achieve new records, but the biggest factor is that the vacationers want to get into the mountains this season, and are bending every effort to do so."

ARMON INCLOSED LINE ATTRACTS ATTENTION.

1916 Marmon "34" will be continued without change for another season. This information contained in a letter from Faulkner, Southern California for Marmon cars, who is factory, having driven across continent from Los Angeles. He in Indianapolis June 11.

HANDSOME.

Marmon inclosed line, which includes three stock models in to the special built-to-order which are being turned out, are handsomest closed cars yet produced declares Mr. Faulkner. who have seen the new cars enthusiastic over them, Mr. Faulkner writes, and it is the low center of gravity and thoroughbred appearance of the long, rakish lines that have impressed them most.

Another feature of the new inclosed cars, and one which has been a great feature of the touring and roadster models, is the light weight. The wheel base of the Marmon is 136 inches and the motor develops seventy-four horse power at 2450 r.p.m., but despite the large, roomy body, the weight of the inclosed models ranges from 3800 to 4000 pounds, fully 25 per cent. lighter than other cars of the same class.

The bodies of the inclosed models, like those of the open cars, are of aluminum throughout, the main casting including the entire body but the cowl, which is cast in a separate piece. The lightweight body requires only a very small sill, and here another saving is effected.

MUCH CLASS.

The fittings and trimmings are of the highest possible class. Silk curtains, velvet rugs and rich upholstery add elegance to the excellence of the design. The windows are operated by improved regulators and made sound proof by rubber slots into which they fit and in which they operate.

INDIVIDUALITY IS A BIG FEATURE.

Individuality in body design has a remarkable influence on motor car sales, according to Jay Hall, general sales manager of the Olds Motor Works of Lansing, Mich.

As proof of this statement Hall cites the rapid increase in Oldsmobile sales during the past two years.

In 1914 Oldsmobile production was 6000 cars. This year it will run approximately 12,000, and for next year a production of more than 20,000 cars is contemplated.

"Men and women of discriminating choice insist upon something individual, different from the ordinary run. They wish to be admired for their taste, complimented upon their purchases.

"In view of this fact special effort has been made to surround the Oldsmobile with that atmosphere of elegance and distinction which is the essence of refined motor-car appeal.

Cornell oarsmen tried out a contrivance on the oar handles to indicate the direction of the blade and at the same time enable the oarsman to turn his oars with greater accuracy, but abandoned the device in the intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie. It was found to be a hindrance rather than a benefit to experienced oarsmen, but will work out for raw material to better advantage.

REPUBLIC DEMONSTRATES REAL TRUCK ENDURANCE.

ESTABLISHING a new record for truck endurance which will no doubt stand for a long time, the Republic internal gear drive truck donated by the D. F. Poyer Truck Company for service at the Monterey encampment arrived in Monterey, having made the trip over the coast road.

The distance recorded by the Stewart speedometer was 385 miles from this city to the camp; and several steep grades, most notable among which is the Gaviota, were negotiated with ease on this trip.

PASSENGERS.

Fourteen men, including the driver, were passengers on this one-ton capacity truck; and attached to it a Los Angeles trailer of the same capacity carried the baggage and equipment.

The start was made at 10:45 a.m. Saturday and the truck was headed for Monterey; the route being via Ventura, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo and Paso Robles. An average speed of twenty miles per hour was maintained for the actual running time. The overnight stop was made at Santa Maria. Next morning the truck continued on its way, and the destination was reached that same evening.

The worst roads encountered were just north of Santa Barbara in the region of San Luis Obispo county.

DISTILLATE USED.

Distillate fuel was used on the entire run as the Republic trucks are now regularly equipped with Master carburetors, and although the truck was new and stiff, hauling a capacity load at a fairly fast peace, an average consumption of nine and one-half gallons per mile was obtained for the entire trip. All of the existing conditions taken into consideration this consumption average shows very good and is somewhat indicative of the economy of the internal gear drive.

On arirval at Monterey, the Repunblic truck was turned over to the United States Army officials in command at the camp. For the coming month a series of unusually strenuous tests have been arranged for it. Endeavor will be made to test the internal gear drive construction for efficiency, durability and sturdiness of make-up. Mr. Poyer, the local distributor who donated this truck, declares his unbounded confidence in the ability of the Republic truck to come through these tests with flying colors.

LENGTHY TRIP TO GET SUBSCRIPTIONS.

For the purpose of stimulating interest in a campaign to raise a fund of $30,000 by popular subscription for the purchase of a permanent and lasting illumination for the Statue of Liberty, located in New York harbor, a party of New Yorkers are en route to the Pacific Coast in a chummy roadaplane. The car is driven by Miss Claire Rochester. According to reports received by Harris M. Hanshue of the local Apperson branch, the car is making fast time.

The first shipment of the eight-cylinder roadaplane is expected to arrive here within a few days. Mechanical refinements throughout, designed to make the motor more powerful and quieter, will feature these cars. A hollow crankshaft will be used to take care of oiling the wristpin and connecting rod bearings with a positive pressure feed system of lubrication.

AUTO COMPANY GIVES DIVIDEND.

The Autocar Company of Ardmore, Pa., has declared a 5 per cent. cash dividend, payable June 30, and because of its increasing volume of business, necessitating extensive additions to plant and machinery equipment, has increased its paid-in capital $300,000, making a total of $1,800,000.

TRUTH in ADVERTISING MOTOR TRUCKS

No. 10—Who Pays the Freight?

The Eastern truck assembler ships his trucks in complete units and the consumer pays the freight.

The Western assembler has parts shipped to him from Eastern factories and the consumer pays the freight.

The Eastern truck manufacturer ships his complete product and the consumer pays the freight.

In fact, the consumer pays the freight on everything from motor trucks to lead pencils.

BUT, THERE'S A DIFFERENCE

"Who pays the freight" does not determine quality. Freight does not count in comparison to the worth of the investment. What's in the truck does count.

The purchaser of a high-grade truck such as a MACK or SAURER, one that is a complete manufactured unit, pays less per mile for upkeep and operation over a period of years than does the buyer of any assembled truck.

Compare the number of trucks in the MACK and SAURER class that are on the second-hand market to the number of assembled trucks there.

The reason is the difference between manufactured and assembled trucks.

KING

EIGHT CYLINDER

A registered STOCK car (everything stock—gear ratio, ignition, tires, wheels, etc.) made this unparalleled record in a Car Owners' Service Test conducted under OFFICIAL A.A.A. sanction and supervision. Sheepshead Bay Speedway and Long Island roads were the scenes of this sensational trial which began at 12:14 P. M. June 15th and finished at 12:14 P. M. June 29th. Officials of the American Automobile Association maintained a daily 24-hour vigil during the entire two weeks. Many newspaper and motor journal representatives and parts manufacturers were in constant attendance.

The sturdy KING ran day and night through rain, fog and boiling sun without requiring a single replacement or adjustment.

10,850 miles equals about two years' travel in the hands of the average owners, yet in this entire mileage the car was stopped (with the motor running) for a total of but 15 hours, 25 min. 41 sec. On this basis the test demonstrated that a KING EIGHT, even with the motor running continuously for two years, requires only nine minutes per week of an owner's attention for all service —gasoline, water and oil fillings, tire changes, battery care, etc.

And most astounding of all, the KING made this 10,850 miles with a total labor expense of considerably less than ten dollars. During the entire 10,850 miles a weight equal to five passengers was carried and the car maintained an average speed of 34 miles per hour, excluding stops.

An examination made after the test proved the car to be in perfect running condition and ready for another trial of the same or greater length.

This great KING achievement tops off the series of remarkable road tests recently conducted on the Pacific and Atlantic seaboards. Climbing tortuous Mt. Wilson, in Southern California, sealed in high gear; traveling 987 miles in high gear from Los Angeles to San Francisco and return, and driving 554 miles in high gear from Providence to Providence via Albany and New York City, are three remarkable accomplishments of the eight-cylinder KING, all within a fortnight.

The accuracy of every statement in this advertisement can be proved by impartial, official documents. These grueling trials have raised still higher the proud estate of KING ownership, and to prospective car purchasers this PIONEER eight-cylinder car now offers a record which can mean nothing less than ABSOLUTE SATISFACTION IN PERFORMANCE, SERVICE and OPERATION ECONOMY.

IMMEDIATE DELIVERIES FOR MERCER BUYERS.

ALTHOUGH each of the present 200 California owners of the Mercers of the new "22" chassis had to wait for their cars from thirty days to four months after ordering, immediate deliveries are now promised with the arrival of several carloads of the latest models from the Trenton factory. The eastern buying season begins tapering off at this time of year and George R. Bentel, Pacific Coast distributor, has been able to increase his shipments as a result.

WILL NOT RUSH.

"Because of the Mercer fixed policy of not rushing cars through the plant we never have been able to catch up with orders on the Pacific Coast," said Bentel yesterday. "All of my telegrams for rush orders were ignored at the factory where the Mercer schedule was followed despite being 600 cars behind in delivery at one time. The result was that each Mercer came through with that individual engineering and attention that has made the car what it is.

"In the East the Mercers sold at a premium for sixteeen months. It recalled the early days of the auto industry to see bonus money being paid for quick deliveries. I know of one Chicago man who relinquished his first order for a bonus of $300."

FINISHED HERE.

Following the Bentel method of painting all the cars here to suit the individual tastes of the purchasers, all of the newly arrived cars have been finished here in the Grand avenue shops of the Mercer distributor. A car recently received in a lead coat is now in the paint department being finished to match a sample of silk dress owned by the wife of the purchaser. In another case a car was painted to match the color of the wife's latest hat.

Not only have the unusual color schemes been followed in painting the car but in upholstering as well. One Mercer was finished in tapestry that the wife had seen in an uptown store. Because of the facilities of the Bentel shop any latitude may be given the purchasers in finish, says the distributor.

A HONEYMOON CAR.

The motor car as a honeymoon conveyance, or as a means of transportation for the ever popular wedding trip, seems to be gaining this summer. Mr. J. N. Schuck, a leading young business man of Pocoima, left for the east, the first of the month, with his bride, who was Miss Charlotte Feip before marriage. They expect to make an extended tour of the eastern States, before returning to Southern California, in their new Empire tourabout, which was ordered to be specially painted and delivered at the factory in Indianapolis.

All After It.

PERMANENCE IS IMPORTANT POINT.

ENGINEERS RUN UP AGAINST THIS NECESSARY FACTOR.

Efficiency and Standardized Methods Make Permanence Possible in Lower-priced Cars. Poor Materials Fatal to Any Kind of Strength Construction.

It is the everlasting determination on the part of expert engineers to achieve permanence in the construction of their design, along with comfort, efficiency and standardized methods, that has made possible the production of high-grade automobiles to sell at a low price, in the opinion of A. F. Knobloch, general manager of the Cole Motor Car Company of Indianapolis.

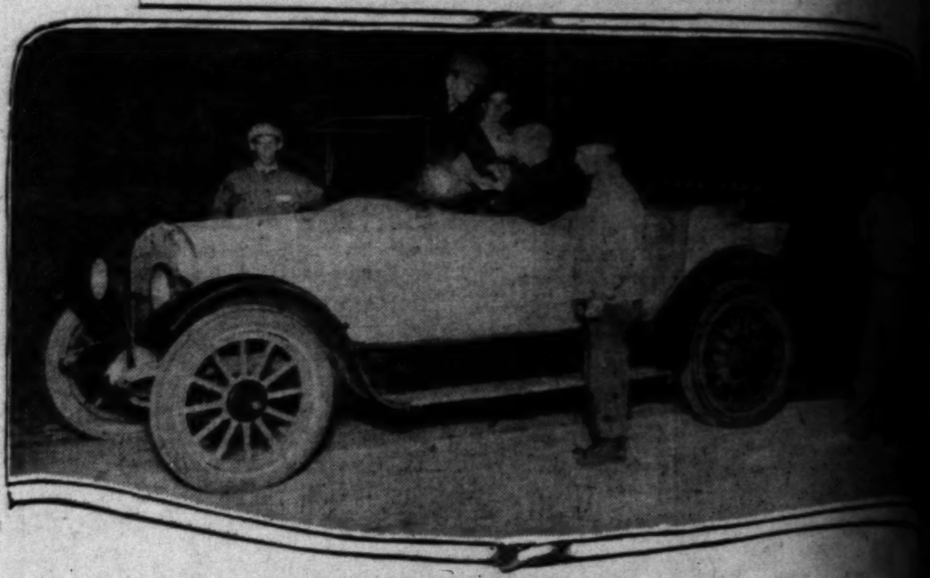
PERMANENCE.

"Permanence is the proof of motor car quality," Mr. Knobloch says, "and this factor has become a hobby with the builders of the Cole cars. With permanence the goal of our engineers, there is an absolute certainty that poor materials, inferior workmanship and slipshod methods will never enter into the building of a Cole car. After the permanent qualities of an automobile are established, other details, such as appearance and universal serviceability, are quickly arrived at.

CHANGING.

"Because of my close connection with the automobile industry for many years, I know that had any person predicted three years ago a car of the specifications of the Cole would be selling in 1916 for less than $2000 his statement would have met with laughter. I'll admit quite frankly that on the face of conditions at that time such a statement would have been more or less ridiculous."

Returned travelers from Roosevelt dam, Ocean-to-Ocean Highway, report the road somewhat rough, but greatly improved. The annual motor exodus via this highway to the hunting and fishing paradise of the White Mountains will begin this month.



Taking on a little necessary fuel.

The King "Eight" hesitating on its two-week non-stop jaunt on the Sheepshead Bay speedway. A speed of thirty-three and a half miles per hour was maintained for fourteen days and night mechanical adjustments or changes were made during the trip.

CROSS-COUNTRY RUN IS EASY.

That the transcontinental motor trip is of no great difficulty for the average driver, and that a vacation en motor is the ideal one, is the statement of Miss Frances Howe, who arrived July 5 at Mallette, S. D., whence she drove from Los Angeles in her Jackson light four. Miss Mallette departed from Los Angeles on the afternoon of Friday, June 16, announcing her intention of piloting her touring car the entire distance herself. With her were her grandfather, C. W. Bennett; her brother, Charles, and her sister, Mary.

Charles H. Thompson, who acted as advisory board on equipment and route, last Tuesday received a letter from Miss Howe, telling of the trip, which was made without mishap of any kind. Miss Howe drove every mile of the way herself, and encountered no bad going except on the short stretch between Barstow and Needles, which is meeting with complaint from all transcontinental motorists.

KING "EIGHT" ESTABLISH A NEW NON-STOP RECO

CIRCLING the Sheepshead Bay Speedway night and day at an average speed of thirty-three and one-half miles per hour continuously for two weeks, the King eight has just hung up a new record for itself in a nonstop test under the official supervision of the A.A.A.

This announcement received by Clarence A. English, local King distributor, states that during the long grind, when 10,850 miles were covered, no mechanical adjustments or changes were made in the car and the engine was not stopped once, despite the adverse weather conditions at New York.

ALL CONDITIONS.

The conditions of the test were specifically designed to approximate those under which an owner operates his car. Through rain, fog and night dew the King, with driver, mechanic and 450 pounds of sand aboard, swept around the speedway under the direction of officials of the contest board of the American Automobile Association and of representative newspaper men of New York City.

According to official statements, the technical men who were in charge of the test and who examined the various parts of the car at its conclusion were unanimous in asserting that the King could have gone on for another 10,000 and another on top of that, in the same consistent manner.

Factory officials that a stock model, sixty-horse-power lected at random from floor. The only time was to take on change driving crew, teen hours out of the average speed miles.

AUTO FIELD DAYS ARE TO BE NEXT.

Automobile field days of the future, where other events besides straight speed tests are in order, will probably have on their programmes the following:

"Running broad jump for motor cars. Purse, $1000, etc."

Twenty thousand persons at San Diego's big exposition were thrilled to the spine recently when Jack Little, moving picture "stunt" pilot, took a Maxwell touring car and leaped the gap time after time to provide the greatest spectacle most of those present had ever enjoyed. The record leap of the day was forty-four feet, and when both daring driver and sturdy car reached the ground and rolled on their way without a halt Little received a cheer that echoed clear to the Mexican boundary.

Inter-State

Announcement

WE are pleased to announce to prospective buyers and dealers that we have been appointed distributors for the INTER-STATE line of extra value cars for the Pacific Coast.

Hundreds of owners have proved beyond a doubt the value of Inter-State Power, Comfort and Beauty. This car has built up a reputation for service and economical upkeep in the hands of owners—precisely the kind of service that you have wanted in a good, high-grade, powerful car at a price which is not excessive.

It gives you your first opportunity to see and judge a car—not through the eyes of those who made it—but through the experience of those who use it.

Dealers and owners will find in this car an idea far above any wonderful change in design and construction from year to year. The Inter-State shows what standard, concentrated production on one product really means. If you want to know about proved value and actual assets for either the man who buys or sells—see us.

What the Factory is Doing

Last fall the Inter-State Motor Company anticipated conditions this season.

They purchased better materials in advance.

They got better quality.

They are supplying Inter-State cars to dealers to cash in on the extraordinary demand.

They doubled factory facilities—and are doing it again.

They are doing things competitors call "impossible" — because they figured ahead.

They are figuring right now on next fall and winter.

Watch for results on what the Inter-State plant is doing. It means substantial profits to Inter-State dealers with extra value for Inter-State buyers.

If You Are A Dealer

Inter-State Dealers are doing two things—

Making money and making friends.

Every sale of this "extra-value car" is adding one more enthusiastic salesman to the dealer's staff.

Inter-State dealers are doubling and trebling sales on the sound, logical basis of Actual Value and Extra Value in the car's performance.

Inter-State dealers are making good—just as the factory and the car have made good.

But today's growth over yesterday is merely an indication for tomorrow.

There are new angles that will make this Inter-State proposition even better.

The results of the success of Inter-State dealers await you in the form of a proposition that must interest any energetic salesman.

Better ask us about it.

If You Are An Owner

We cannot give you stronger evidence of Inter-State Extra Value than has been established by thousands of owners. The unimpeachable testimony of these owners makes our claims weak in comparison.

Inter-State owners are averaging 17.1 miles to a gallon of gasoline.

The cost of repairs on an average mileage of 3600 miles is $2.41. Hundreds have not spent more than $1.00 for repairs.

Power, Comfort and Beauty have been definitely proven Extra Value Qualities of Inter-State cars. Thousands of owners have told us their cars are easy to care for and operate.

If you are a dealer or buyer, consider carefully what these owner-proofs mean to you in actual dollars and cents.

Ask us for the complete facts these owners have established.

Some Extra Value Inter-State Features

Overhead Valve, high speed, long stroke, 30 horse power, extra efficiency engine.

Power Saving, extra strong drive elements including special design cone clutch, enclosed propeller shaft, nickel-geared silent transmission and armored type, extra duty rear axle.

Accessible, clean-cut, easily-cared-for chassis, hung on smooth riding, bouyant springs and controlled by extra size brakes.

Aluminum running boards; wide, protective crown fenders; long wheel base; oversize, non-skid tires; one-man, silk mohair, tailored top; theft-proof tire carrier, high-grade electrical equipment with wires in armored conduits.

Bodies that from their sturdy, weight-saving frames through every element such as hand-rubbed, high luster finish; extra-wide, comfortable seats covered with special, long grain, quality leather, upholstered in selected, curled hair; equalizing cushion springs and the easy-opening, rattle-proof doors, add to the distinctive lines in marking a decided advance in the body builder's art.

AMONG THE FANS.

The chess match between Frank J. Marshall, United States champion, and David Janowski, the French champion, resulted in a victory for Marshall by the score of 4 to 1 and 3 draws. Marshall won the first, fourth, sixth and seventh games, lost the fifth and drew the second, third and eighth. This is the fourth set match these two experts have played, Marshall having won three and lost one.

J. W. Showalter easily defeated Norman W. Whitaker in their chess match recently held at Lexington, Ky. The score was 6 to 1. From the result of this match, the chances of Whitaker defeating Marshall in their match September 15 for the championship of the United States, looks about as good as a turtle would have in a race with a jackrabbit on a Kansas prairie.

Newell W. Banks expects to start on a three-months' tour about October 1, which will land him in Los Angeles the latter part of December. As Banks plays both checkers and chess blindfolded as well as the regular simultaneous exhibition, it makes him the best drawing card of all, and he should have no trouble booking all the dates desired. Any club in this section of the country desiring to secure his services, can make arrangements for same by writing the editor of this column.

As there is great interest in the pending match between Norman T. Whitaker and F. J. (The price of the British Chess Magazine is 8 shillings a year, and subscriptions may be sent to the editor, 15 Elmwood Lane, Leeds, England.) Played at Washington, D. British Chess Magazine Chess Annual's notes to game between Garner and Whitaker.

a—PxP is the best move here, this move converts the game into a position more frequently arrived at through Black's playing 2—Kt-QB3; 3—B-B4, P-B4.

b—P-Q4 is generally considered stronger. However, Steinitz was of the opinion that playing the queen's pawn one square in similar position is just as good as playing it two.

c—Rather P-Q3, preparing Kt-R4.

d—White has now a position Black contains in a variation of the King's Gambit Declined and the Vienna Opening, but with a move ahead. He might simply have castled with a good game, or I believe he could have played with advantage: 5—Kt-Kt5, P-Q4; 6—PxP, KtxP; 7—Q-R5, QKtxK2; 8—Castles; 7—Kt-Q5; 8—QxKt, QxQ; 9—BxQ, KtxPch; 10—K-Q1, KtxR; 11—R-K1 is still more favorable for White, and so is 7—QKt-Kt5; 8—K-Q1, P-B3; 9—R-K1. The move made is weak, but White counts on the possible gain of the king's pawn.

e—The logical consequence of his fifth, but refused by Black's ingenious continuation.

f—An extremely pretty and quite sacrifice. After White accepts the offer of a pawn he is lost. Even had he played 9—KtxKt or 9—P-B3 he would have had the worse game.

g—A fine sequel to his ninth.

h—The finishing stroke; White has no defense. A very well-played game by Black, especially from the eighth move.

Aha!

CARBURETOR TO BURN KEROSENE.

ENSIGN MODEL LOOKS LIKE A COMPLETE SUCCESS.

Heavy Duty Truck Uses Ensign Kerosene Carburetor for Several Weeks and Shows Wonderful Performances in Power Production and Economy.

O. H. Ensign, inventor of the carburetor which bears his name, this week made the announcement from his local factory at 149 West Pico street, that he had perfected a kerosene carburetor which will be put on the market almost immediately.

Laboratory reports on the Ensign kerosene carburetor show that it ranks equally high with the Ensign gasoline and distillate carburetors in practical efficiency and economy. The same basic principles of construction are used in this new type, and only a few minor changes and additions have been made from the standard gasoline type to adapt this carburetor to handle kerosene.

TESTING IT OUT.

Mr. Ensign has had one of these kerosene carburetors fitted to a heavy duty truck for some months past; and it has had hard daily service. During this time it has made wonderful performances in power production and economy. In making the announcement of this new type, Mr. Ensign said:

"The active principles used in the construction of this kerosene carburetor are the same on which the basic patents were allowed for the first Ensign carburetor ever constructed. Except for minor detail changes, these fundamental principles have never been changed; and indeed the results attained in the past three years with the Ensign have proven the excellence of the scientific theory in daily practice.

"Before very long, kerosene will replace other fuels for automobile vehicle use. Kerosene is the only fuel we now know which can be had in great quantities, and at a low cost of manufacture. Its distribution is more universal than any other liquid fuel; it can be obtained in all quarters of the earth; and it contains a greater number of heat units, power producing possibilities, than any other refined fuel.

"Up to this time there have been a number of objections, and mechanical obstructions, to the use of kerosene; but this latest Ensign carburetor has been developed and perfected in such a manner that all of these opposing factors have been satisfactorily eliminated. It may be quite a while before kerosene is used for pleasure vehicle work; but we are planning to equip trucks and tractors immediately with our product.

"A number of orders have already been booked for these classes; including foreign business and factory installations."

WAR DECLARED ON MOTOR-CAR CONCERN.

Lynn C. Buxton has declared war on the Stearns factory. The local automobile man will leave for the seat of conflict this week to battle for more cars for Southern California. The demand for the Stearns has been exceedingly great here this season, and Buxton could have sold double the number of cars he did, had he been able to get them. However, the factory was unable to ship the cars, and many prospective buyers were not able to get delivery. These conditions will be changed during the coming season, declares Buxton, as he will be able to close a contract for more than double the number of cars he now is receiving. During the last four months he has delivered sixty Stearns-Knight cars.

Till Snow Falls.

LAST YOSEMITE LINK NOW READY FOR USE.

THE opening of the Tioga road yesterday completes the last link into Yosemite, and connects the valley with Lake Tahoe through the heart of the High Sierras. Despite all difficulties, the road was opened on scheduled time this season, and to do this the road builders were forced to repair the damage wrought by the worst storms in many years. The snowfall in the Sierras was unusually heavy last year, and the drifts remained until late in June, impeding the work of the roadmakers, while several bad washouts had to be repaired.

NOW OPEN.

The Tioga road, the most talked-of motor route in the country, will be open now until the first heavy snowfall, which usually comes about the middle of November. Sometimes the snow blocks the high mountains as early as the first of November or the 20th of October.

The opening of the Tioga route emphasizes the work the State and the government are doing to provide highways into California's finest wonderland. If the State bond issue for $15,000,000 carries, the road from Mariposa to El Portal, which will follow the Merced River and do away with the high altitudes and heavy grades of the present routes into the Yosemite, will be built at once. This road will be of concrete, and will extend to the entrance of the park.

EXPENSIVE.

The Sundry Civil Bill, which already has passed the House, and probably will be accepted by the Senate, will provide Federal aid to the extent of $250,000 for the improvement of the park, and $75,000 of this fund will be used in repairing and rebuilding the roads from El Portal into the valley.

"The value of the road plans now in progress or being arranged is well known by even the tenderfoot," declares David A. Curry, stentor of the valley. "But those who have been in the valley for the last twenty years and watched it grow in its power to attract visitors are better able to appreciate it, and they are doing everything in their power to help the movements.

"With the present road conditions the motor travel has been amazing and helped materially to bring the record mark of guests to more than 2000 a day for the four days ending July 4. The motor car has become one of the biggest factors in the valley, and we must prepare to take care of the motorists in the best possible way."

INCLOSED CAR MAKES LONG TRIP.

HAYNES CABRIOLET DRIVEN ACROSS CONTINENT.

Miss Lillian Stein Introduces New Idea in Transcontinental Travel—Trip is Made Without Any Trouble and Many Side Trips Add to the Mileage.

Four years ago the idea of a transcontinental motor tour in an inclosed car would have been considered foolish. At that time the inclosed vehicle was considered strictly a car for city driving, and entirely unsuited to the rigors of a cross-country trip. However, this belief has been dissipated in the last few years by the constantly increasing use of the inclosed car for travel between cities.

Credit for the introduction of this type of vehicle to the long trail belongs to Miss Lillian Stein, pretty Cincinnati society girl, who is spending the summer in Southern California.

Miss Stein used her Haynes cabriolet during the winter season for city driving in Cincinnati. When she determined to come to California for the summer season, she at first intended shipping the car. One of her girl friends suggested that she drive across and she was advised to trade the closed car for a touring model.

"If I make the drive, I'll make it in the cabriolet," she said. The upshot of it all was a dare and a wager, and Miss Stein started the long journey. The National Old Trails route was followed through St. Louis, Kansas City, Dodge City, Trinidad, Santa Fe, Albuquerque, Magdalena, Holbrook, Winslow, Grand Canyon, Kingman, Needles, Barstow and San Bernardino to Los Angeles.

FOR PLEASURE.

Several days were spent at the Grand Canyon, which Miss Stein was visiting for the first time. The drive required twenty days, including the stops.

The roads were found to be in good condition, with the exception of the Needles-Barstow stretch, which has been cursed by every transcontinental motorist who has made the drive this year. This 160-mile stretch required a day to cover.

There are 1100 football officials on the intercollegiate list.

Why Multiplied Thousands Choose the Chandler

NOTHING has been added to the price and nothing taken from the car to compensate for the higher production costs of the Chandler Six.

Before the prices asked for other cars were marked up, Chandler was the first choice of thousands of careful buyers. It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that with distinct price advantage added to distinct mechanical superiority, the Chandler is first choice today of multiplied thousands.

Chandler sales for the year 1916 are setting a new big record for high grade sixes.

In the midst of extravagant claims for new and uncertain theories, the Chandler Motor, refined and perfected through three years of development, remains free from any hint of experimentation. And Chandler bodies are the most beautiful of the year.

Truck Run.

nish much merriment. All of the entries rambled over the grade on second gear, passing up pleasure cars, etc. In the ascent, the big Doane stuck along with its faster company and walked up the hill in intermediate with power to spare.

TOO SPEEDY.

At La Jolla a slight change was made in the schedule. The cars had all arrived so far ahead of time that it was decided to check out a half hour in advance of the prearranged programme. The running schedules throughout the contest have been too long, which goes to prove that the modern motor truck is a real speed affair.

The number of perfect scores turned in by the entries certainly proves the efficiency of the modern commercial vehicle. Such improvements have been made in this line during the past few years that it is hard to find a test sufficiently severe to knock any number of trucks out of a present-day contest.

NO DEFECTS.

The Los Angeles to San Diego jaunt failed to bring out any weak points in any of the machines.

Checking at the exposition was completed considerably after lunch time and the drivers, observers, officials, etc., immediately adjourned to eat. During the course of the repast, Frederick Pabst was disqualified for devouring too much; otherwise there were no accident.

After lunch the official tests were started. The motor demonstration grounds at the exposition were used.

BRAKE TEST.

A fifty-foot space was marked off and the machines were required to stop in this space, going at their average running speed. There were no failures. In fact, some of the cars stopped so quickly that the official observer was nearly thrown from his seat. The Smith Form-A-Truck was the sensation in this event, stopping dead before he had crossed the line. All of the cars slid their tires and the automobile accesory men and the tire merchants stood around with pleased grins on their faces.

Gear tests were next. Perfect reports were made by every entry. The final test, the clutch test, was a wonder. The machine was driven up against an eight-inch curb, low gear was engaged and the foot clutch released.

EXCITING.

The observers eyed the results. Most of the buggies climbed over the obstruction with a rush. Those with pneumatic tires got a severe jolt and that's all. But the hard rubber-tired wagons were the sensations. When their back wheels would hit the curb it looked like the rear construction would be dragged completely off the car. For those machines this was a real test.

The fleet of Vim trucks entered by H. L. Arnold averaged a thousand. Their gasoline tanks needed only ten gallons apiece at the end of the trip. As for water and oil, they hardly knew it existed. Tonight the trio will return to Los Angeles, and it is rumored they will waste no time on the return journey.

The big Doane deserves all the credit in the world. The driver was the only one who thought it would finish at the start of the contest. Now everyone knows and swea' that it will go anywhere. J. R. Fouch drove the Stewart on a very successful trip and its showing was splendid. Three slight accidents took points from as many entrants. The G.M.C. broke a gas line yesterday. The Autocar had to change a spark plug. The little Giant stopped to take on water outside the regular checking station.

TEAMS TIE IN ROUND ROBIN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WHITTIER, July 15.—The first Round Robin ever given by the Whittier Tennis Club was a men's doubles this afternoon and resulted in a tie between McLoughlin and Way and Frees and Mace, each team winning twenty-eight out of a possible forty games.

The tie was not played off as the whole affair was an exhibition contest. The other scores were Browne and Duncan 17, Bell and Hornidge 10, Adams and Variel 17, Wayne and Sinsabaugh 20.

Whittier's first Round Robin drew a large and interested crowd of spectators, who were delighted with McLoughlin's drives and placing. The entire affair was regarded as a distinct success, and congratulations are profuse to the Whittier Tennis Club for their success in promoting local interest in tennis, and for bringing so many Coast racket celebrities to Whittier. A second Round Robin will be given in November, according to a prominent member of the club.

AUTO OUTPUT IS ALMOST UNCANNY.

A statistician has gathered together some interesting data which show the magnitude of the automobile business. He took as a basis the Willys-Overland capacity of 1000 cars per day and then figured out the average length of the various models—approximately fourteen and one-half feet.

The factory's output of a single day would extend in a straight line for a distance of about two and three-quarters miles, if the cars were placed end to end and touching each other.

In a year's time this stream of cars would be 860 miles long—an unbroken line of automobiles from Toledo to New York and then back again as far as Albany.

Even more startling were the figures compiled showing the value of the Overland factory's output. The enormous manufacturing facilities of the plant enable it to ship out finished cars valued at approximately $900,000 every twenty-four hours. In a year's time at the rate of 1000 cars per day, these shipments would represent over $200,000,000.

Bernie J. Wefers, Jr., will enter Columbia University from the De-Witt Clinton High School of Brooklyn next fall.

When the lure of the great outdoors draws the city dweller, he likes to gratify his longing for independence without carrying a tent or relying on the hospitality afforded by hotels.

This is particularly true of Southern California motorists, who have the advantage of roads, climate and scenery to enhance the enjoyment of their tours into the open country and far from the pavements of the city.

As a most satisfactory aid to the complete independence of motorists en tour, the advent of the Shattuck convertible outing trailer has made a decided impression, for with this device there is no need to pile the tonneau and running boards with a clumsy tent, dunnage and supplies; or to confine oneself to a single camping location. In a few minutes all the camping necessities are neatly packed on a sturdy two-wheel trailer, which is then hitched to the car and taken wherever fancy dictates.

"Even a canoe," said Mr. Juergens of Kline-Juergens Company, local distributors, "can be slung from the four posts of the trailer and carried safely and with ease. As camping equipment goes, that comprising the Shattuck trailer is most complete. An ice box, gasoline stove, and two large-sized spring cots, each large enough to hold two full-grown people, and the other little fittings take their part in making this trailer distinctly desirable."

All of the favorites survived the first round of play held yesterday on the Sunset courts. Jones, 6-2, 7-5; T. Tominaga defeated Ishi, 6-3, 2-6, 6-1; Wilson Jones defeated Cochs by default; Umetsu defeated W. Keen, 4-6, 6-0, 6-4; E. Omara defeated F. Hall, 6-3, 7-5; D. Shugart defeated H. ELECTRIC PLANT STILL ENLARGING.

Another addition has been made to the already long list of manufacturers represented locally by the Electric Equipment Company at Twelfth and Grand.

Ray Thomas, president of the company, upon his return from a business trip in the East brings the news that the local organization will hereafter represent the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Works of Philadelphia as direct service representatives, and will make replacements, repairs and give expert service to those whose cars are equipped with this ignition.

The company this week placed its newly added Klaxon service before 700 California garages, and has already established a large volume of business through its numerous garage connections.

AUTOMOBILE TRUCKS ORDERED TO MEXICO.

Another fleet ordered to Mexico. A land fleet of dreadnaughts this time, consisting of twenty-eight four-wheel drive transport and supply trucks and five tank trucks for the use of the army in its operations on the border and in Mexico. Thirty-eight drivers will accompany this fleet, among the number being several members of the Wisconsin National Guard, who will enter the Federal service as civilian employees.

This is the third fleet of trucks the Four-Wheel Drive Auto Company of Clintonville, Wis., manufacturers of the FWD trucks, has supplied to the government within the last month or six weeks.

The demand for FWD trucks, both in this country and in Europe, for war uses as well as for the more peaceful pursuit of hauling merchandise and freight, has been so great that, even with the addition of three units to the plant in a year, permitting of much larger output, the company has been unable to take care of its increase of business, and has been obliged to consign large portions of its foreign orders to other motor car manufacturers on a royalty basis, in order to make deliveries within the time specified.

FWD trucks are sold in this territory by the Four-Wheel Drive Truck Company at 810 South Olive street, Los Angeles, with branch offices and salesrooms located at Bakersfield, Fresno, Santa Rosa and San Francisco.

HARRY SALLEE TO JOIN THE GIANTS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ST. LOUIS, July 14. — Pitcher Harry Sallee, who announced his retirement from baseball recently, when he quit the St. Louis Nationals, probably will return to the game Sunday.

Dispatches from Cincinnati tonight stated that Sallee had signed a contract to play with the New York Nationals. Schuyler P. Britton, president of the St. Louis club, said tonight it was "practically certain the New York deal will go through."

Britton tried to obtain one of the New York pitchers in exchange for Sallee and, failing in that, is said to have decided to accept a cash offer made by the New York club.

Sallee is reported in dispatches from Cincinnati as having signed a check tendered him by McGraw today. The sale probably will be closed tomorrow in St. Louis. Sallee is said to be en route to St. Louis with the New York club.

New York Athletic Club will retain employees, members of the National Guard, upon the pay rolls, and pay their full salaries during their absence.

When you inspect this Series 17 FOUR look for the latest improvements

Not improvements that will be old and out of date a year from now, but the permanent, sensible kind that are in keeping with the rest of the features that have helped to make the Series 17 Studebaker FOUR one of the greatest motor car "buys" that the industry has yet produced.

But don't stop there—look further and compare the excess power, the big roomy compartments for driver and passengers, the deep, restful cushions that say Comfort at the first glance, with similar features that you have seen in other cars costing hundreds of dollars more. It is then that you will realize how needless it is to pay from $250 to $400 more for basic value that Studebaker gives because of unlimited factory facilities and quantity production.

There's a world of sound conviction in a Studebaker demonstration. Come in and let us give you one.

EMPIRE TIRES HELP IN RACE.

Empire red tires recently contributed largely to the making of a new automobile record between New York and Washington.

The Haynes car, driven by D. Brailley Gish, that clipped one hour and twenty-six minutes from the best previous mark, carried Empire reds on all four wheels.

The distance of 238.2 miles was covered in 7h. 26m., and during the entire run not a moment was lost for mechanical or tire trouble, a consideration that contributed largely to the success of the performance.

The start was made from Jersey City, and the route led through Newark, Elizabeth, Rahway, New Brunswick, Trenton, Philadelphia, Chester, Wilmington, Del.; Newark, Del.; Havre de Grace and Baltimore.

Dartmouth University has a course for athletic coaches which deals with the fundamental principles in coaching and conditioning athletes for all sports, individual peculiarities, rules for competition, physical condition, team work, sport strategy, equipment, etc. Application of these principles will be made to track work, football, baseball and basketball as the individual needs of the students in the course may require. Certificates will be given to those who complete the course.

TRUCK COMPANIES JOIN BIG MERGER.

SIGNAL AND COMMERCE CONCERNS ARE AFFECTED.

Merger will be Operated Under Holding Company Until Present Contracts are Filled—Other Motor Truck Firms may be Included in Big Proposition.

The Commerce Motor Car Company of Detroit and the Signal Motor Truck Company of Detroit, manufacturers of commercial vehicles and trucks, have been merged into the Signal-Commerce Motor Truck Company, it is reported, under a holding company of $6,000,000 capitalization and backed by Detroit capital.

This announcement, the first of its kind in the motor truck field, and in view of the character of the two companies and the men back of them, of the greatest significance, was made by Thomas Neal, who will head the new combination in association with present executives of the two companies and other men of wide experience in the commercial vehicle field. Mr. Neal was formerly president of the Genral Motors, later chairman of the board of directors, and is now vice-president of that company.

While the merger will be operated under a holding company until present contracts are filled, it is the intention ultimately to combine them into one complete plant. There is ground for belief that eventually the merger will include certain motor truck accessory firms.

The executives of the new organization start with the declared intention of making Detroit as big a factor in the motor truck field as it is now in the pleasure car branch of the industry. The strength of the two companies that have merged and the scope of their operations would seem amply to warrant such an ambition. Both the Commerce and the Signal have been remarkably successful and prosperous and by uniting will have facilities for manufacturing and marketing trucks from the half-ton type to the five-ton, practically covering the field. One of the first efforts under the new regime will be an extensive advertising campaign, in which considerable space will be used.

Buy—Instead of Being Sold a Car

There is a big difference. In the first instance you get what YOU want, and in the second you take what somebody else thinks you ought to have.

You're the man who pays for the car, and who is going to run it. You know what you intend doing with it, and what conditions it must meet. So, look into it for yourself, have it demonstrated, and be sure it does meet your conditions in every way.

METZ cars are bought, not sold. They so completely fill every demand of the light car prospect—they operate so easily and surely under all road conditions—they are so economical in the consumption of oil and gasoline—their upkeep cost is almost nothing—and they give heavy car riding comfort, at light car cost.

Look into a METZ—study the METZ—test the METZ—and apply the METZ IN ACTION directly to your own needs. That's the way to find out how thoroughly the METZ satisfies in every way. IT'S THE IDEAL LIGHT CAR.

24 2/10% Won Away From A Higher Price

Owners Who Will Have No Other Car 50 8/10%
11,000 Owners Rate Hupmobile Efficiency 99%

HERE is a startling glimpse of what is going on below the surface in automobile buying.

Our service system statistics show that 24 2/10 per cent of Hupmobile sales are made to men and women who have used higher priced cars.

We knew we were winning away great numbers who had previously paid more. We have known it for years. The Hupmobile has always held its sales on a quality basis.

But these statistics were a gratifying surprise even to us. Consider what they mean.

Hupmobile Market Goes On Growing

The multi-cylinder car has never presented its claims more aggressively than it is presenting them now. Millions of dollars have been expended in emphasizing these six, eight and twelve-cylinder claims in the past three or four years.

The Hupmobile stands out distinctly as an exponent of the older, simple, four-cylinder principle.

Its market goes on steadily growing, and 24 2/10 per cent of that market is coming to us from the field of higher price.

Our extensive system of service enables us to analyze sales more accurately than other cars can.

We are in almost continuous contact with our owners. We know that 24 2/10 per cent of these owners are coming from the higher priced source. We know that 50 8/10 per cent of Hupmobile owners will have no other car. But we know, in addition, something still more important to you.

11,000 Owners Say: 99% Efficient

We know exactly what 11,000 owners think of every phase of Hupmobile construction. We know exactly what they think of Hupmobile performance.

We know what they think of its lugging power, its nimbleness, its flexibility, its get-away, its high-gear efficiency.

We have their opinions of every unit in the car—their complaints, their criticisms, their favorable comments.

And these 11,000 opinions, tabulated and reduced to a percentage basis, register a rating of 99% for all-around Hupmobile efficiency.

No such thing as this has ever been made possible by any other car.

It is clinching, convincing and conclusive.

Performance That Matches Any

It proves that Hupmobile owners know that the Hupmobile daily outdoes cars that have more cylinders, or cost more money.

In pulling power, and quick get-away, they see nothing under a multi-cylinder name that they do not have.

In flexibility, they find themselves relieved of gear-shifting to an amazing extent.

And they know they are getting in the Hupmobile service system more than any other car offers: expert inspection, adjustment and care each month for eight months, by trained Hupmobile experts at Hupmobile service stations. A service they pay for with coupons supplied free of cost.

The least you can do is to have a demonstration of Hupmobile performance.

"DON'T FORGET THE BEST"

The latest thing in Inter-States.

A new arrival on automobile row, the new Inter-State four, which is creating quite a sensation on account of its power, beauty of body design and light weight. The little machine promises to make a high bid for honors in the smaller car division.

Rah for 'Em!

ASHTON-WRIGHT COMPANY TO HANDLE INTER-STATE.

ANOTHER impressive exhibit of the confidence of local and eastern capitalists in the prestige and permanency of Los Angeles as a pivotal distributing center for automobiles is furnished by the appointment last week of Ashton-Wright Company as Pacific Coast distributors of the Interstate Automobile Company of Muncie, Ind., with headquarters at No. 1048 South Olive street.

This new move of the Interstate Company is a direct outgrowth of a great evolution in that concern's affairs, resultant from the recent placing behind the factory of the millions of the Mason fruit jar business. Ball Bros., the controlling factor in the Mason business, and the pioneers of glass jar manufacturing in America, are now the principal owners and officers of the Interstate company. F. C. Ball is the president of the Interstate company, and G. A. and E. V. Ball are on the directorate.

NEW ERA.

Concurrent with the entrance into the automobile business of these multi-millionaires, a reign of modern factory methods and national distribution of the product has been inaugurated by the Interstate company, accompanied by a complete change in the model of the car. The Interstate now sells for less than $1000.

According to R. W. Ashton, senior member of the Ashton-Wright company, the local distributing concern, it was largely because of the financial standing of the factory and the high character of the car now being made under the new management that this firm was prompted to accept the wide responsibility of distributing the Interstate car on the Pacific Coast.

Ashton is an ex-banker, formerly of Minnesota, and his associate is Robert F. Wright, who is said to have had a wide practical experience in the automobile business, both here and in South Dakota, his former residence. This gives to the new firm the elements necessary for success, namely, sufficient capital and knowledge of the business.

An interesting presentment of the views of a mature business man on the future of the automobile business is furnished by the statements of Ashton concerning his investigation in advance of taking the Interstate agency.

"My investigations revealed," said Ashton, "that processes of necessity and evolution, rather than unthinking demand on the part of the public for luxury, were literally compelling every business house and individual to become an owner of a car. Actual results had shown that a man with an automobile and telephone was the equal of three old-fashioned men; that efficiency was at stake and that it was not a matter of choice, but necessity, when it came down to owning an automobile.

"My investigations also showed me that a car for less than a thousand dollars, having the refinements and advantages of modern construction and equipment, like the Interstate, was assured of practically an unlimited market, and that it was simply a case of salesmanship and marketing. The trend of demand is undoubtedly for the cheaper, well-built and substantially guaranteed types of cars, in other words, a happy medium in size and price, to fit the ideas and pocketbooks of the majority of the people."

Quite a wide territory is embraced in the distributing area of the Ashton-Wright company, which embraces all of California and Arizona and the western half of Oregon and Washington. It is stated that considerable territory has already been allotted to dealers and that applications are now being received for the remaining portion.

MOVING PICTURES OF PAIGE FACTORY.

The working of the gigantic conveyor system, on which the assembly of Paige cars takes place part by part at the Paige factory in Detroit, is shown in a big moving picture film. It is being exhibited this week on Thursday and Friday, July 20 and 21 at the De Luxe Theater on Alvarado street, opposite Westlake Park.

Stanley Smith, of Smith Bros., Paige distributors, has arranged for the display of the film, which shows exactly how hundreds of operations in the manufacture of the car are performed, and gives a good idea of the high degree of skill employed in equipping the factory for making every part of the Paige.

WONDERFUL RECORD ON PORTAGE TIRES.

A remarkable average made on Portage tires was recently turned in to Mr. John G. Boss, manager of the Portage Rubber Company of California, Coast distributors for the Portage tires, by Mr. Robert Bedford, a prominent contractor of Long Beach.

Mr. Bedford has averaged 23,000 miles with six of these Portage tires on a Ford ton truck, making a total of nearly 140,000 miles which the six tires combined have run.

This truck of Mr. Bedford's has been used in all-around work carrying all sorts of loads over all sorts of roads and but one precaution was ever taken, and that was to keep the tires properly inflated at all times.

WORM WHEEL IS A FIRE EATER.

The worm wheel in a worm drive rear axle will withstand a teriffic heat without being damaged in the least, acording to a recent accidental experiment.

Only a short time ago a big truck, equipped with a Timken-Detroit worm drive axle, such as are under the Signal trucks, went through a fire in Baltimore.

The owner of the truck wanted to find out the conditions of the rear axle, so he sent it back to the Timken company for their inspection, and after a very careful and thorough inspection, the engineering department returned the verdict that the only part that was fit for service was the bronze worm wheel and that was just as good as the day it left the factory as far as working efficiency was concerned.

United States Football Referees Union (soccer) includes most of the prominent association officials in this country. They have a representative on the United States Football Association governing council.

EASY PAYMENTS PROVE SUCCESS.

C. A. Page is moving from 1234 South Olive to 439-41 South Flower. Owing to the rapid increase in business since the first announcement that it was possible to have an automobile rebuilt, reupholstered and painted, and pay for the same on the easy monthly payment plan, it became necessary for Mr. Page to secure larger quarters where the work could all be done under one roof.

Many owners of old cars whose appearance is out of date, but are in good shape mechanically, are having them rebuilt into stripped cars and roadsters with stream line effects and equipped with electric lights and other modern improvements.

Keeping Ahead of 'Em.

INCLOSED CARS SHOW MANY IMPROVEMENTS

IT HAS long been recognized as an essential that automobile builders keep ahead of, rather than with the times. The car of the season that shows all the innovations that are in vogue does not compete in popularity with the car that is at least a year in advance. One of the most noticeable features of this season's latest models is the cowl back for the front seats. This has been accepted generally. More than anything else with the exception of mechanical alterations, it has branded the 1916 output as distinctive.

INCLOSED CARS.

Closely allied to the touring car styles are those that either make or break the inclosed car from the viewpoint of popularity. Only a few of these new creations have been received in Los Angeles, but those that have been placed in the hands of dealers are showing the permanent top as a prominent feature. By the adoption of this style, which is featured exclusively in Springfield bodies as exemplified in the seventeen series of the Chandler six, the necessity for having two distinct bodies for a car is done away with entirely.

A YEAR AHEAD.

The first of the Chandler inclosed models has been received here by Earl V. Armstrong, Inc. The shipment includes a sedan and a cabriolet model, both of which are built on the standard chassis. It is said for these cars that they afford more window space than any other similar type. The cabriolet is extremely advanced in design. All of the windows may be lowered and the car serves as a three-passenger roadster if desired. The windows are of the folding type, and the appearance of the entire car may be altered within a few seconds. With the windows in position, the car is absolutely closed. Each window may be adjusted independently of the others to suit the convenience of the car's occupants.

How About This?

NATURAL RACE COURSE FOUND IN DRY LAKE.

HIGHLAND, July 15.—Henry Crain and Frank Gunlach have returned from a motor trip to Big Bear Valley and on this trip they discovered the greatest natural automobile race course in the world, so they believe. The course is the dry bed of a lake on the road from Doble to Victorville and near the Box S ranch, and is large enough for a big track.

WELL, WELL!

The dry bed of the lake is composed of a queer mixture of salt and asphaltum and is just as smooth as glass. "The concrete highways will not compare with it for smoothness," says Crain. "There is never a bump and the surface is just rough enough to give the proper friction so that the tires will not slip. It is just a perfect track."

The two men spent several hours in driving over the bed, which is about four miles long and over a mile wide. It is off the road some distance. The Crain car is fairly heavy, but the tires did not make an impression on the surface of salt. The tracks in the sand where the car entered the lake bed were plainly visible, but after getting on it a track could not be found.

GOOD LOCATION.

Some of the motorists of the valley are talking of establishing a summer race course there, for it would be near enough to all the mountain resorts to attract a great crowd, it is believed. Crain and Gunlach found the road to Victorville in excellent shape, but somewhat uncomfortable to travel at this time of the year because of the heat. They made the trip from Big Bear Valley in four hours, showing that the road is in good condition.

They drove to the valley over the Crest road and it is now in much better shape than it was early in the season. Most of the soft spots have been repaired.

at first, when Johnson threw up his hand. The ball seemed to hit him squarely in the palm, but he couldn't hold onto it. Whether or not the Chief held the ball made no difference, as Daley was called out for the noble red-man's interference.

CALCIUM.

The Chief re-entered into the calcium in the eighth. First up, he drove out a grounder which would have been tapioca for Butler. Galloway made a gallant try for it, but only deflected the ball out of Johnny's grasp. Daley, with a powerful single to right, moved the Chief clear to third. Two on and none out is something to test the nerves of the most courageous bridegroom. With any kind of luck, Zabel even then would have pitched his way out. Gleichmann popped to Butler. Risberg drove a sharp grounder to Murphy.

The latter could have nailed Johnson at the plate by a baseball block, but chose to retire Risberg at first. He may have figured that the Chief couldn't hope to score from third on anything less than two infield outs. But the Chief fooled him and scored on merely one out. Bates grounded to Butler.

Murphy opened the eighth by drawing a walk, and stole second on Butler's third strike. Ryan, batting for Zabel, fanned on a called third strike. McLarry, doing a like turn for Jackson, deposited a fly in Mattick's mitt.

THE END.

Koerner sought to start something in the ninth, but couldn't get any help. Ellis flied to center, and Maggert was the victim of a great foul catch by Bates. Koerner then planted a single in right, hoping that it would grow into a run. Galloway loosed a hot drive directly over first that had every license to be a three-bagger, but Gleichmann bravely stuck his chest in front of the same. Gloomy Gus recovered in time to beat Jim to the bag and thus ended the game.

Hogg, who pitched the last inning for Los Angeles, one-two-threed his opponents. The score:

SCOUT CAR ENTERS NATIONAL PARKS.

SEQUOIA IS THE FIRST POINT VISITED ON LONG TRIP.

Mammoth Trail is the Worst Section of Road Discovered on the Way—Stones and Trees Block the Trail and Temporary Bridges Have to be Built in Many Cases.

The Oldsmobile Scout has just returned from a tour of the Sierras, making a loop that covered all the national parks, the Yosemite, Tioga Pass, the Mammoth trail and then home via the coast route.

The trip was taken with the idea of locating the best camping spots in the mountains and also to discover the condition of the roads.

INTO THE WOODS.

Leaving Los Angeles the route lay through Bakersfield to Delano, where the course turned east for the Sequoia National Park. The roads are in fairly good shape as far as Three Rivers, but the last twenty-eight miles into the park is not only almost straight up but is very dusty and should not be driven at any speed owing to the hundreds of sharp right angle turns.

In the Sequoia the party took pictures of the big trees, also the Whitney snow fields and spent half a day trying to round up one of the park bears for a shot in front of the camera, but the bears are rather bashful and would have none of it.

Leaving Sequoia, Grant's National Park was next in line, but instead of going back to Visalia the scout was sent over the old Dry Creek road, which is another Ridge Route and after a wild ride through the hills came into the back door of the Park. Here the main roads were in good shape except for the dust.

The run from Grants to Fresno was made over the Dunlap road, which is a shorter route, but much rougher.

From Fresno the Pines came next in line and no great difficulty was encountered until during the last eight miles, while going around Bass Lake. Here the road is full of sharp turns and dust and bumps require slow speed for comfort, but nobody in the scout asked for comfort and none was given.

Leaving the Pines the real fun started. The Olds was whooped over the Mammoth trail. The first six miles of this "path" was tough, but others had been over it. However, the final ten was over rocks and boulders, where bridges had to be built and trees hauled out of the way. This is a great country but is not open for the average tour. It would be asking too much of any man to hit it up over this trail for fun; the miners pack in over it, that's how bad it is.

Leaving Mammoth, the scout was hiked to Glacier Point, then through the Yosemite, then out over the Tioga and was the first auto to cross the Yosemite Creek this year. In the Tioga the road was full of snow and the members of the party had a lot of regular drifting to do before getting through.

Leaving the Yosemite country the scout was sent over the valley to the Pacheco Pass and then down the coast route to Los Angeles. The coast route is getting better all the time, although there are some very bad places between Salinas and King City. The San Marcus Pass through the Santa Barbara Mountains is nothing extra, but can be made easily with careful driving although it is not wise to try it at night, unless the driver knows the road.

The mileage covered in this trip was 1580, the car was not in trouble at any time, although it got into some pretty deep holes, and the Los Angeles air in the Goodyear stock equipment tires had not been touched when the scout car pulled up in front of the home stall at Twelfth and Olive.

CORONADO POLO FOUR TO PLAY IN THE EAST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, July 15.—The Coronado Country Club team, which will represent the Pacific Coast in the Polo Association championship tournament which will begin Monday at Narragansett Pier, R. I., is composed of Perry Beadleston, Malcom Stevenson, G. M. Hecksher and J. D. Milburn, Jr.

The four famous players of the Coronado team will play through the East this summer and fall and the entire team will come to Coronado in February to play here the coming winter. Beadleston, Stevenson and Heckshar played on the Coronado team last winter when they won several Coast championships and Milburn, the international nine goal man, played two years ago with Coronado.

VETERAN TROUT OF BIG BEAR IS CAUGHT.

Weighs Eleven Pounds and will Make Excellent Specimen When Dressed and Stuffed — High School Boys Making Fishing Records.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BIG BEAR VALLEY, July 15.—Gus Knight, the veteran sportsman and hunter of the valley, has on exhibit here one of the largest trout ever taken from the Big Bear Lake. It was one of the pioneers of the lake of which fishermen tell so many tales. It weighs eleven pounds, and when stuffed and mounted will make a beautiful trophy. Game Warden Malone saw two or three of the big fellows during the spawning season, and he says that they were covered with battle scars.

The high school boys have been making many records in fishing here during the season, and Robert Knecht of Redlands has just sent to his folks there one of the big fish of the season. It took the youngster fifteen minutes to land the big fellow, which measured twenty and one-half inches. Knecht has been having fine luck fishing all year.

John Stocker caught a fine mess yesterday, all of them weighing from a pound to a pound and a half, and he sent a number of them to friends in San Bernardino and Redlands.

W. A. Malone, Fish and Game Warden, and Fred Worthington are here to take fry from the hatchery and plant them in the headwaters of the streams of the mountains. It will take about two weeks to do the planting, county trucks being used in the work. Already about 500,000 have been put in Bear Lake and a like number will be planted in the stream.

The plantings are as follows: Plunge Creek, 8000; City Creek, 16,000; Waterman Creek, 8000; Cable Creek, 4000; Devil Canyon, 12,000; upper Deep Creek, 24,000; lower Deep Creek, 16,000; North Creek, 4000; Hook Creek, 4000; Little Bear, 4000; Willow Creek, 4000; Grass Valley Creek, 8000; Dark Canyon, 4000; Huston Creek, 8000; Seeley Creek, 12,000; Sawpit, 4000; East Canyon, 2000; Day Canyon, 4000; Cucamonga Canyon, 10,000; Lytle Creek, 16,000; Mill Creek and Mountain Home, 70,000; Alder Creek, Fish Creek and Vivian Creek, 20,000; Santa Ana, 10,000; Forsee Creek, 2000; Barton Creek, 4000; South Fork, 4000; Holcomb Creek, 16,000; Shay's meadow, 10,000; Van Dusen Creek, 10,000, and the balance in Big Bear.

The MORELAND

Is the Only Truck Built to Operate on DISTILLATE

Sellers of gasoline trucks may claim they will also operate on distillate—but the fact remains that the use of any other fuel than gasoline in a gasoline truck is a makeshift.

Distillate costs approximately only one-half as much as gasoline—and the fuel cost of operating the Moreland Truck is, therefore, only about one-half the fuel cost of operating a gasoline-driven truck.

We'll gladly demonstrate and prove this and other equally important Moreland advantages.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, July 14.—Arrangements have been made by Porterville Hunting Club officials for stocking many of the mountain streams of the resort sections with trout fry again this year. Notification was received here today from the State fish hatchery that the first consignment of fry, about 150,000 in all, would be sent here July 20. They will be taken in charge by officials of the Tule River Fishing and Hunting Association and will be placed in Middle Tule River. A later consignment will be sent to the Porterville Fish and Game Protective Association.

Maps of the principal trout streams and their need for fry have been made by O. P. Brownloy, game warden of this district, and the fish will be placed in accordance with this map.

I saved one-third on Gas with Miller Carburetor

Robt T. Linney
ATTY AT LAW

Gentlemen:

I drove my Studebaker "30," equipped with a Miller carburetor, 528 miles, and almost half the trip was mountain work. My average was 19 miles per gallon of gas. I feel sure that I saved 1-3 on gas and developed twice the amount of power I formerly had.

ROBERT T. LINNEY,
Atty. at Law, Washington Bldg., Los Angeles.

The brilliant performances of the Miller are delighting thousands of motorists. The great saving in fuel, increased power and mileage, absolutely automatic action to meet all motoring conditions, the joy of instant acceleration, the vigor and punch it gives to every motor—these winning features are creating Miller enthusiasts all over the U. S. A.

BOSTON, ST. LOUIS IN A DOUBLE-HEADER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, July 15.—St. Louis and Boston divided today's double-header, the visitors winning the first game, 2 to 1, while the second was Boston's by the wide margin of 17 to 4. Gardner made a bad throw in the first inning of the opening game, paving the way for both tallies. After the Red Sox began hitting in the third inning of the second contest the visitors piled up many errors and none of the four pitchers could stop the slugging. Scores:

ANCIENT HAYNES IS STILL STEPPING.

In all probability the Haynes "Light Twelve" car, offered for the oldest Haynes car that is running in America at the present time, will be awarded to Walter E. Smith, Bound Brook, N. J., who has an old two-cylinder car that was built in 1897. The car is in operation today, and this spring won a prize as the oldest car in a county contest.

The automobile retains its original appearance almost in entirety. Even the rubber matting which was furnished with the car is still intact, and the original warning system, a bell operated by a foot lever, is used by Mr. Smith today. Throughout its tenure, the old car has received the best of attention, and has never been in any sort of an accident.

This theory of the importance of good tires is substantiated by the Omaha races, where five new world records were established by drivers using Silvertown Cords. Resta broke all previous records for the five-mile event on a mile and a quarter track by a margin of five seconds, driving at an average rate of 110 miles per hour in his Peugeot. In the 25 mile race, Rickenbacker in his Maxwell averaged 103 miles per hour, 3m., 24s. less than the former record. Rickenbacker also broke the 10, 15 and 20 mile records.

During the past two years every race of importance has witnessed as victors the drivers who had Silvertowned cars. Records have been lowered in practically every instance. Not only is this shattering of speed records due to the durability of the Silvertown tire, which is known to be the least changed during the course of a race of any tire, but also to the rubber impregnated cable cord of which it is constructed. This cord is laid transversely in two layers forming the only sort of carcass that will give any noticeable increase in speed to a car. The tough springiness of the tread, added to the resiliency of the carcass, has a tendency to hurl the car forward.

NAME WANTED FOR NEW OAK CREEK HATCHERY.

AN APPEAL is made by the Fish and Game Commission to the sportsmen of the south to select a fitting name for the new trout hatchery, the largest and biggest in the world, which is being erected on Oak Creek in the Owens Valley.

At present the hatchery is called the "Oak Creek Hatchery," but that is far from satisfying to Commissioner Connell. He wants a name that will at least suggest the importance of this new hatchery, which is to stock the streams of all of Southern California. It means more to sport in the south than any one institution. It was made possible by the efforts of southern sportsmen. It belongs to the whole south, and a name that will suggest the whole south is wanted.

The hatchery is within sight of the Camino Sierra Highway and is built of stone, cement and tile. With a capacity of 8,000,000 fish, arrangements have been made for additions to it in case of need.

The names can be sent in to the Fish and Game Commission or to the sporting editor of The Times.

Make Good Record.

LIGHT SAXONS AVERAGE HIGH IN NATIONAL TEST.

THIRTY-FOUR and two-thirds miles per gallon of gasoline was the wonderful economy record achieved by the Saxon six which won the Saxon national non-stop economy run. The winning car was entered and driven by the Saxon distributor in St. Louis, Mo.

In all, 206 dealers took part in the great economy demonstration. The average of all entries was twenty-three and a half miles per gallon of gasoline. The total distance covered by the 206 Saxons was 61,800 miles, or an equivalent of nearly three times around the world. In all this distance, over all kinds of roads, under weather conditions that varied from intense heat to storms, the little six gave this tremendous demonstration of economy and endurance. Not one Saxon engine hesitated, much less stopped, in the 61,000-mile grind. One of the cars was driven its 300-mile run in a driving rain storm. The mud was axle deep, and it was necessary to use chains. Nevertheless, the gasoline consumption record made by this Saxon was very close to the average.

The Saxon entered from Los Angeles made the 300 miles on ten and seven-eighths gallons of gasoline, averaging twenty-seven and fifty-eight hundredths miles per each gallon. Stanley Turner, the Saxon distributor in Pasadena, drove to San Diego and back in high gear, finished his run on the streets of Pasadena, and used just ten gallons of gasoline. Mr. Turner's Saxon averaged just thirty miles to each gallon.

Every Saxon in the contest carried one or two newspaper men as observers. The course was set at 300 miles by the factory because it is impossible to find a down-hill course or a perfectly level course that long. The date was set for July 1 so that all cars would have to run on that day regardless of climate conditions. The factory planned the test so that each car would be called upon to meet conditions which any owner might encounter in a 300-mile trip.

Grand Circuit light harness races will begin at Cleveland July 15.

EMPIRE

Attractive Appearance---
With Sturdy Construction

The EMPIRE SIX has been called the best looking automobile of the season. It is a car that arouses pride of ownership and gives satisfaction in possession—a big car of handsome design and superior finish that you are proud to drive in any company.

But beauty is only one point in the EMPIRE SIX. Upon first inspection you are impressed with the exceptional roominess, distinctive individual seating arrangement in front, and the completeness and high quality of accessories.

Underlying this outward superiority is the mechanical excellence and sturdiness that insures dependable performance and long car life at low operating and upkeep cost.

The six cylinder Continental motor is so efficient and flexible that a range of speed of from 1½ to 56 miles per hour is attained on high gear. Every part of the chassis transmitting this power—gears, drive shafts, etc.—are made especially sturdy from the best materials obtainable. You will find upon investigation that units which enter into Empire construction are products of the same parts manufacturers who supply builders of much higher priced cars—a fact that makes the Empire Six the Quality Car of its Class.

To the buyer the Empire Six offers a greater value than any Light Six of the season. This we can prove to you by demonstration at your convenience.

206 SAXON "SIXES"

travel 61,800 miles without stopping average 23.5 miles per gallon of gasoline

ON July 1st 206 Saxon dealers in all parts of the country, driving stock model Saxon Sixes, staged a 300 mile non-stop run to prove the remarkable gasoline economy of "Saxon Six."

The winner averaged 34 2-3 miles per gallon of gasoline. The grand average for the 206 Saxon "Sixes" was 23.5 miles per gallon.

The total distance traveled was 61,800 miles—more than twice around the world—nearly 20 times across the continent. During the entire 61,800 miles not a single motor stopped running.

Men from a leading newspaper in each of the 206 cities acted as official observers, and their affidavits certify to the correctness of the records.

Stop for a moment and picture to yourself this remarkable scene in its entirety.

Don't think of just one Saxon "Six" traveling 300 miles without stopping, and averaging 23.5 miles per gallon.

Don't think of just one car "tuned to the minute" for a gasoline test on a measured gallon of gas over a specially selected piece of roadway, all conditions ideal.

But think of 206 Saxon "Sixes," each traveling 300 miles without stopping, meeting every condition of road and weather, running through congested city traffic, through mud, through deep sand, through rock strewn canyons, over hills and mountains and average country roads.

And then the full significance of this average of 23.5 miles per gallon of gasoline will strike you.

This country-wide Saxon "Six" test proves what any Saxon owner could do with his own car. Remember that in most instances, each Saxon "Six" carried five passengers.

Ask yourself (if you would know just how great an achievement this is) what other car, of equal size and power at less than $1000 could match this record.

Yet, after all, the average of 23.5 miles per gallon of gasoline is not the only remarkable thing about this 61,800 mile run.

For there is the fact that not a single one of these 206 motors stopped running once.

There is the fact that no mechanical troubles occurred.

There is the fact of the extraordinary stability and strength of Saxon "Six" that this run establishes.

In no other way could the pledge of STRENGTH, ECONOMY, SERVICE, made to Saxon "Six" owners by the Saxon Motor Car Corporation, be proved more vividly, more clearly, more impressively than by this performance of the car itself.
